Mistaking the CEO for a Gigolo Chapter 1245

Mistaking the CEO for a Gigolo Chapter 1245

"Yeah. She still needs some time as Crystal Rose ordered her to soak for another hour."

"For another hour? Why?"

"Because she was caught leaving her wooden bucket and was thus punished."

After hearing that she was punished, Davin could not help but sigh. "Suits her right! Someone as ungrateful as her should be duly punished!" After that, he looked toward Evan. "Evan, aren't you afraid she would still hold a grudge against us even if we managed to find a cure for her?"

The gleam in Evan's eyes dwindled. "She won't do that!"

"How are you so sure about it? You heard her saying she would continue to take revenge on us despite saving her life!" Davin retorted.

"She won't," his brother answered in a determined tone.

Looking at Evan's resolvedness, Davin was curious why. Did he perhaps think of a good idea?

Davin then continued, "Are you thinking of doing something to her? Like maybe save her life before killing her off?"

"You'll know about it in the near future." Evan shot him a meaningful look.

Davin knew that he was scheming something just by his look. As for what it was, the former would have to sit back and watch.

“Nina, it’s getting late. Go on and get some sleep.”

“Okay. Everyone, good night.”

After Nina returned to her room, the adults continued chattering for a moment before retiring for the night.

The following day, someone knocked on their door to announce breakfast was ready early in the morning.

Gaping at the bland dishes, Davin and Levant felt a loss of appetite.

“It’s not enough nutrients if we only consume leaves. Do you serve anything else?”

“No! People here eat it for all three of our meals.”

All three meals? How could the inhabitants of Nepenthe Valley put up with this?

As Davin and Levant were used to eating lavishly, they were unaccustomed to eating simple meals. Thus, they started to discuss the ways to improve their meals.

“How about we hunt for some wild animals?” Davin suggested.

“That’s a great idea. I saw that there were rabbits beside the wooden house. Do you prefer it to be steamed or braised?” Levant replied.

Before Davin could give his preference, the woman in white spoke up. “The animals in Nepenthe Valley are used in experiments here. Therefore, it might be unsafe for you to consume it as they might have poison in them.”

“Huh? Why would you do something like that?”

“Of course, it’s to try out our antidotes. Otherwise, how would we be so talented in this aspect?”

“So that’s their reason behind them being so talented in formulating antidotes. However, there must be many animals sacrificed for the sake of it. That woman is way too cruel,” Davin muttered to Levant.

However, the woman in white answered before anyone else could. “The main purpose of us doing this is to save lives. If compared, a human’s life is definitely more precious than an animal’s. Besides, less than a hundred animals were killed in the experiment. Which, I dare say, is nothing compared to those slaughterhouses.”

Levant and Evan exchanged glances. After seeing how fierce the woman was, they did not continue arguing with her. Since the animals in this valley cannot be eaten, we’ll have to think of another way.

Looking opposite him, Davin was absolutely horrified seeing Evan and Nina having finished their portion of vegetables. I didn’t know my older brother was such a pro! How on earth could he finish eating something as plain as that?

“You actually finished it?”

“Yup. It tastes good.”

After hearing his brother’s answer, Davin scooped a few leaves and slowly chewed them. Then, he swallowed it painfully with his eyes closed. It was as if he was consuming medicine instead of vegetables!

I firmly believe that Evan’s vegetables are different from mine. Next time, I’ll taste his first!

After breakfast, the group of people went to visit Crystal Rose to ask about their second task.

“Your second task is to let the two poisoned women pluck some flowers. Coincidentally, there’s no sun today. Remember to pick the flowers soaked in morning dew.”

After pondering for a moment, Nina nodded. “Okay. I’ll head to it now.”

Monica nodded along with her.

As Monica’s way of picking flowers was somewhat rough, the dew on the petals dribbled everywhere, causing Crystal Rose to scold her over it. After that, Monica started to pick flowers more gently despite cursing the woman angrily in her heart.

Meanwhile, Nina had plucked all the flowers with utmost care and put them in the basket as it was a precious gem, fearing to damage the petals.

Both of them finished picking half a basket of flowers. After that, they were only notified that the petals were used for their medication.

Looking at the mess in her basket, Monica deeply regretted her actions. I wonder if it would affect the effect of the medication? Darn you, Crystal Rose! Would it hurt for you to tell us earlier? I thought the flower was used to serve tea or other daily uses!

Then, Crystal Rose continued to cure them again. Two hours later, Nina had successfully detoxified another thirty percent of the poison. Immediately, her complexion seemed way better than before.

After Monica was detoxified, she checked herself in the mirror. I don’t think that my complexion improved at all. Did the stupid witch only remove 20% of my poison and 60% for Nina?

She seriously suspected Crystal Rose had tampered with the detoxifying process.

Despite having doubts in her heart, she did not dare to inquire Crystal Rose about it. After all, her life solely depended on that woman, whether she liked it or not.

As the first two tasks were way too easy, the group figured the third task would be as well. Therefore, Davin and Levant sat by leisurely as Evan asked for the third requirement.

However, they did not expect Crystal Rose's third condition to bring such a shock to them. It was evidently shown in Levant's reaction, staggering back as he stared at her in shock.

"What did you say?"

Crystal Rose slowly repeated her request, "I'm ordering you to kill Murphy!" Her tone was filled with malice.

Levant was silent for a moment before questioning, "Which Murphy are you talking about? Where is he from?" Perhaps, there might be someone with the same name.

However, Crystal Rose shattered his hopes as she answered thoughtfully, "The leader of K Nation, Murphy Morris."

So she's really talking about my dad? How could that be...

Levant recalled him confirming that issue with his father. However, his father made it clear he had nothing to do with Crystal Rose, not even knowing who she was. If that was true, why would she hold such a grudge against Dad?

"Do you really know who Murphy is? What grudge do you hold against him?" Levant continued to ask.

Crystal Rose's facial expression turned bitter. "A jerk as heartless as him deserves to die! My hatred toward him can never be resolved, not even if he dies!"

Her words caused everyone to feel stunned.

Evan had gotten information that there was a history between Crystal Rose and Morris. However, he never expected a grudge to exist between them.

Davin whispered to Levant, "Perhaps did Uncle Morris lie to us? Maybe there really is something going on between him and Crystal Rose."

"No way. Dad didn't seem to be lying about it. Didn't you hear him?"

"That's weird. That woman seemed to hate your father a lot. If your dad is really speaking the truth, there's no way she would feel this way."
