Mistaking the CEO for a Gigolo Chapter 1249

Mistaking the CEO for a Gigolo Chapter 1249

"I was Murphy's wife once," muttered Crystal Rose.

Levant was astonished by the information and didn't know how to respond. Isn't Murphy's wife Avril and my mother? Then that means that she...

Crystal Rose saw Levant staring at her in disbelief and tried to convince him it was the truth. "It's true. I left him because I discovered he was cheating on me."

Is this the truth? If it is, then she's my biological mother!

In that instant, Levant felt a flood of complicated emotions rush through him as his face fell. "You abandoned the child you had with him because you hate him. Not only that, you even deliberately sent the child to an orphanage!"

Crystal Rose frowned. How does he know about that?

Levant's face grew colder in response to the woman's silence. "So, those are the facts? You abandoned your own child as a mother. Where did you even get the audacity to reprimand and despise others?"

"I had my reasons when I did that! I would never have done that if I could have raised my child back then!" Crystal Rose explained desperately while staring at Levant in confusion. "How did you find out about these matters? Who told you about them?"

"No reason in the world could justify why you abandoned your child." Levant stood up and responded icily, then left the room.

Crystal Rose watched as he left the room abruptly and had an indescribable feeling about the latter's agitated reaction to the subject.

How did Levant find out I abandoned my child at an orphanage? How did he learn about my past? Also, why was he so enraged when he told me that?

Crystal Rose was initially perplexed by the situation. Soon after, she realized her abandoned child would be around Levant's age. Then a bizarre thought occurred to her. Could Levant be the child I abandoned back then? No, that can't possibly be true! What are the odds of reuniting with my long-lost son in Nepenthe Valley out of pure coincidence?

Davin, who was waiting for Levant outside Crystal Rose's house, spotted the latter approaching him. Yet, the look of rage on Levant's face baffled him.

Did his conversation with Crystal Rose go south? If not, why else would he look so angry? Davin paced toward Levant and intercepted him. "How did the discussion go? Is she still obsessed with taking Uncle Morris' life?"

Levant's expression was gloomy and complicated as he pushed Davin out of the way while saying nothing.

"What the... Hey, what happened between the two of you? Why are you acting this way?" Davin remained confused as he watched Levant walk away.

"Crystal Rose is such an odd woman. What did she tell Levant that irritated him to that extent?" he wondered to himself before heading off to find Evan.

After reporting the situation to Evan, Davin questioned, "Don't you think that it's weird, Evan? Is it because Levant failed to persuade Crystal Rose out of taking Uncle Morris' life?"

After some speculation, Evan disagreed, "There must be some other reason behind it. I'll go check on Levant."

Later, Evan arrived at Levant's room and noticed the latter was packing up his belongings. Bewildered, he asked, "Are you leaving so soon?"

"That's right. I'm getting out of here."

Evan was taken aback. Before witnessing Levant's behavior, he had assumed Davin was making a big deal about Levant's irritation out of nothing. Looks like something's really wrong with him.

"I'm genuinely curious about what Crystal Rose said to you that infuriated you to this extent. Was it really because you failed to talk her out of her mission to seek revenge and kill Uncle Morris?"

Levant looked at Evan seriously and answered, "Crystal Rose is a heartless woman. She abandoned her son! I'm absolutely disgusted by these kinds of people."

"How do you know she abandoned her son?" asked Evan.

Levant didn't answer Evan's question. Of course I know. I'm the son she abandoned!

Levant didn't want to talk with Evan about what he had discovered through his conversation with Crystal Rose.

"Since at least sixty percent of Nina's poison has been cured, she could probably get the help she needs from other doctors. Why don't we leave this place together?" Levant suggested.

Leave? It's not that easy to find someone else who is as skillful as Crystal Rose. I won't risk Nina's health and leave this place so recklessly.

“Are you really leaving?” Evan asked again to confirm.

Levant appeared to be extremely determined in his decision. “Yes, and I swear I’ll never step foot into this place again!”

Evan stared at Levant’s disappearing figure and suspected that the event which led to his departure wasn’t as simple as that.

What did Crystal Rose tell Levant? Also, Levant mentioned she abandoned her own child. Does that have anything to do with him leaving so suddenly? Yet, why does it matter so much to him?

Evan couldn’t figure out the motive behind Levant’s actions, so he met up with Crystal Rose in hopes of fully understanding the situation.

As soon as Crystal Rose saw Evan, she promptly inquired before the latter said anything, “I want to know who exactly the man who followed you all the way to this place is? Who are his parents?”

Evan mulled it over for a short while. Now that Levant had left, he knew Crystal Rose had nothing to hold against him. Therefore, he decided to tell her the truth. “He’s Murphy’s son.”

The answer was ultimately shocking to Crystal Rose, and her expression changed drastically. I can’t believe this. I really can’t...

“No reason in the world could justify why you abandoned your child,” the voice of Levant echoed in Crystal Rose’s mind. Furthermore, the reproach in his eyes was engraved inside her head. He was obviously blaming her!

What a coincidence... Levant is my son!

“He left Nepenthe Valley. If you feel the need to make his life difficult or let him pay for his father’s wrongdoings, then it’s too late.”

“He left? He’s really gone?” Crystal Rose returned to her senses and hurried outside while commanding others to help chase after Levant.

Evan swiftly blocked their way and stated, "There's no need to chase after him. He's long gone. If you wish to avenge yourself, you can go through me as I'm related to Murphy too."

"How are you related to him?"

"Murphy is my uncle!"

Hearing Evan's answer, Crystal Rose stared at him and asked, "So that makes you Levant's cousin, am I right?"

"That's right."

"Is there a way to make him return to Nepenthe Valley?" Crystal Rose voiced out her concern after a brief moment of silence.

Evan recalled Levant's determination when leaving this place and told her about his uncertainty.

"Now tell me which option is easier for you. Is it killing Murphy or making Levant return here?"

"Of course it's the latter! Murphy is my uncle, so I can't murder him with my own hands!" Evan replied without the slightest hesitation.

"All right, then. I'm changing the third condition in our agreement. If you can make Levant stay here for three months, I'll cure thirty percent of Nina's poison."

Evan couldn't figure out why Crystal Rose would change her mind suddenly. Why do you want Levant to return to Nepenthe Valley so badly?

"You don't have to think too deeply into this matter. I will never hurt Levant. I'll only treat him the best I can. He's my son, after all."

Your son?

At that moment, Evan finally understood the comments made by Levant regarding Crystal Rose's cruelty.

Levant was the abandoned child all along!

Under these circumstances, Evan felt it was nearly impossible to make Levant come back to this valley willingly.

What should I do to make Levant return?

When Evan returned, Davin asked immediately, "Evan, is it true that Levant left?"

Evan nodded. "That's true."

"Why? Is it really necessary for him to get mad at an old lady?"

"It is necessary considering their relationship."

"What? Evan, what do you mean by that? Who exactly is Crystal Rose to Levant?"

"Crystal Rose is Levant's biological mother."

Davin was utterly shocked when he heard the truth.

Darn it! I had thought Crystal Rose's urge to murder Murphy was already the biggest surprise. I can't believe there's something more astounding than that!
