Chapter 396

Chapter 396 The Look of An Elite

Angela felt tight in her chest, and she immediately loosened her frown. But her teeth kept shivering with rage.

How come she didn't notice that Gloria had such a wicked side before?

Angela gritted her teeth and tried hard to relax herself.

Finally she took a deep breath and restrained her emotions.

Whispered to Gloria, Angela said, "Do you think you can change people's opinions? Last time, I had devoted all my heart to the development of the company and I meant it."

Gloria nodded, "I know, Angela, you have been dedicated to the company all the time. But you know there are advantages and disadvantages, and doing anything has risks. Don't you know that?"

Angela laughed in anger, "You... I know you did it for this!"

Gloria only smiled and said nothing.

Angela didn't want to talk to Gloria anymore. Now she needed to figure out a solution immediately.

Since Ted was summoning people to the meeting, it meant that Ted must support this plan. The situation would be hard for Angela.

Gloria had sent a message to her father at that moment, telling him the situation in advance, hoping that he could respond as soon as possible.

Gloria guessed that her father would come to the meeting.

If Ted sincerely wanted to help Gloria, then he would not only support this project of hers. That day, he was determined to prove that Gloria was excellent and capable in front of everyone.

By then, the matter had become tricky for Angela. She didn't expect Gloria would do so. She thought she had underestimated Gloria.

People had gradually gathered in the room. room.

Just as Angela guessed, her father came.

When Claude saw Gloria, he obviously looked surprised. His reaction was the same as that of Angela.

But after all, he was quite experienced in the company. So he only smiled gently at Gloria and said, "Gloria, why did you come here?"

Gloria laughed and got up. "Uncle, Mr. Maguire asked me to come."

Gloria laughed and got up. "Uncle, Mr. Maguire asked me to come."

Ted's secretary went to inform Gloria in front of everyone just to let everyone know that Gloria didn't come over voluntarily, but was notified to come.

It was important to do so. So Gloria didn't have to pretend.

Claude managed not to look too surprised and quickly recovered his calmness.

He smiled, and the kindness in his eyes remained the same, "I see."

Seeing Gloria nodding, he didn't say anything. He walked to the main seat and sat down.

Claude was the last one to come. When he suddenly heard about the meeting, he felt a little agitated.

This rule was established by Gloria's father that the shareholders had the right to hold meetings without the consent of the president.

Although Claude hated this rule, he couldn't deny it openly. Otherwise, he would disappoint people in the company.

Around this time, Claude would swear Gloria's father over and over again.

If it weren't for the fact that they shared the same family name, he might even curse and swear the ancestors of Gloria's father.

Claude looked closely at Ted, and his eyes were full of puzzlement. He asked, "Ted, what is the point of this meeting?"

All eyes fell on Ted.

Gloria raised her eyes and looked at him. Mr. Maguire looked quite different from last night.

Yesterday, he looked so amiable, like Gloria's own uncle.

But that day, Mr. Maguire had become more serious, putting on manners in the workplace. His eyes revealed the look of an elite in the workplace.

Then Gloria saw him smile and say, "This meeting is mainly about the cooperation project between the White family and the Brown family."

Angela clenched her fist under the table. She glanced at Gloria, who was motionless, she gritted her teeth. Clearly she had known that it was Gloria's scheme.

She quickly looked at Claude, but found that there was still some confusion in his eyes.

Angela was speechless.

Angela was so angry that her father didn't see her signal.

Claude said, somewhat confused, "with the Brown family?"

Everyone looked at Ted with a confused face.

Someone has asked, "Mr. Maguire, do you have the intention to cooperate with the Brown group? Or have you already had a project with them?"

A project with the Brown group must definitely be a big one. Everyone must know about this project if it was already agreed by both parties.

So... since not everyone knew about it, it must be that Mr. Maguire had an intention to cooperate.

Ted whispered, "No official cooperation yet. It's just an intention. Everyone, I'll show you the plan first. Let's see how it works."

There were all shareholders in the room, so everyone's interests were tied together.

But they were all confused.

Claude glanced at Angela and Gloria again.

Gloria looked calmly at the big screen.

Angela

immediately winked at Claude. Seeing her daughter's signal, Claude suddenly noticed Gloria was plotting something and immediately looked grim on the face.

He didn't speak and turned his eyes to the big screen.

Ted said freely, "Next, I'll let Gloria explain this project to all of you."

Claude looked more and more aloof and grim, but he had to say nothing. Or otherwise it would only appear that he was jealous and that he didn't really love Gloria as his niece at all.

At that moment, he not only couldn't stop Gloria, but also had to pretend to listen to Gloria dotingly like an uncle should do.

At that moment, he not only couldn't stop Gloria, but also had to pretend to listen to Gloria dotingly like an uncle should do.

He should feel grateful that it was a serious meeting so that he didn't have to pretend to applaud for and encourage Gloria. Or otherwise, he would hate to do so.

While everyone was waiting, Gloria got up and walked slowly to the side of the big screen. She repeated all the details she had said to Ted before in front of everyone.

Besides, Ted discovered there were more surprises in Gloria's speech. When Gloria told him yesterday about the plan, she had not said it in such detail. It must be that she improved the script and refined it again last night.

He was quite amazed by the girl's unexpected talent.

Gloria talked for more than an hour.

Everyone was shocked. Yet they looked quite amazed by the idea.

Angela was stunned. How... how can Gloria have such capability?

How could she manage to make such a perfect plan?

Is she intentional to do this?

Angela was doubting that Gloria wanted to provoke Angela to volt against her so that Gloria would have the chance to retort and have a beautiful counterattack in front of so many people.

She was certain about her speculations. Because she thought if not so, Ted wouldn't put the two of them in the same meeting room.

Angela only felt that every time she saw and thought of Gloria recently, she was so angry that she couldn't even recover from hatred and rage.

Claude was so shocked at that moment. He looked at Gloria incredulously and asked, "Gloria, did you write this new plan?"

Before Gloria could speak, Ted said, "I'll show you the original plan."

Just before everyone had realized, Ted had opened the original plan to let others see it.

"This old plan was made by another staff. You can check it if you want."

The participants looked at the screen again, but found that the old plan only had a few pages of cursory, general requirements and ideas, and there was nothing useful in it at all.

So it was pretty much that Gloria had rewritten the new plan completely.

Chapter 398 I Will Be Confident With His Support

Seeing everyone had an impression of the old plan, Ted smiled and switched back to the page of

Gloria's new plan again.

He smiled softly at Gloria and said, "Well, you may go back and have a seat for a while."

Gloria nodded obediently and returned to her seat.

Angela was stiff all over as she stared at Gloria. If there weren't so many people, she would have hammered her doubts against Gloria and asked her whether she did this on purpose.

"This plan is the most well-designed plan I have ever seen. I think the two groups can cooperate with each other. Has the Brown Group seen this plan yet?"

Ted smiled and nodded, "Yes, they've seen it, and they agreed to cooperate."

Hearing this, everyone was sparkling their eyes with amazement. Then Ted slowly said, "but Mr. Brown put forward a condition."

Everyone looked at Ted and asked, "What condition?"

Angela frowned suddenly. Well done, Ted. Good for you.

Sooner or later, I will let you get out of the White family, Ted.

But since Ted was among the founding fathers of the White Group, what would she be supposed to do to drive him out?

As soon as Angela took a breath and restrained herself, Ted continued, "He asked Gloria to take charge of this project on her own."

Everyone was shocked still.

Someone said directly, "I think it's entirely acceptable that Miss White could come up with such a perfect plan, which will be more likely to develop than expected. Maybe the plan would even create more extensions at any time, which can bring sufficient benefits to the company."

The others didn't speak, as if they wanted to hear what developments and benefits the plan could bring next.

Ted nodded. "Yes, I also think so. Just yesterday, when Gloria told me about this plan, I already felt amazed. I didn't expect that what Gloria said today was more detailed than what she told me yesterday, adding more chances to the plan. She is completely competent. She is very similar to her father, an excellent, and talented person."

These words had increased people's admiration for Gloria. Everyone still remembered how excellent the former president was,

These words had increased people's admiration for Gloria. Everyone still remembered how excellent the former president was.

Claude's face sank again.

But after a while, his attention was once again attracted by Gloria's plan. Putting aside old enmities, he would totally support Gloria's plan to cooperate with the Brown Group. Because the Brown Group would invest hundreds of billions in cooperation, and the profits would also be distributed to them. It certainly would be a great benefit for them.

A tremendous benefit!

If the plan worked well, it would be no problem for the company to rank higher after exceeding several other companies and leaping to a new height.

One of the shareholders saw Gloria and asked, "Miss White, do you think you have the confidence to deal with this plan?"

Gloria nodded, looking serious and calm. She said, "Yes, although I am fully responsible for many things, Mr. Brown would check them personally. Only with his consent could I really implement the plan. It would also make me feel like being supervised so that I would be more confident in the plan with his support.

Ted smiled, glanced at the people in the room with totally different expressions. Then he looked at Angela's face.

Although he had a smile on his face, the look in his eyes was not as gentle as that when he looked at Gloria. It was an indifferent smile, more aloof and indifferent.

"The reason why I hold this meeting today is to ask for your opinions. In fact, Gloria's plan has been approved according to the procedure, but when it reaches Angela, Angela rejected the plan. So, Angela, can I hear your reasons for rejecting her plan?"

All of a sudden, everyone looked at Angela. Her face turned grim and grave. She spontaneously glanced at Gloria.

Chapter 399

Chapter 399 How Could I Go On

Seeing that

Gloria was with composure, she didn't dare to show too hatred toward her. She could only answer with embarrassment, "I'm sorry, what Gloria gave me the document at that time, she didn't explain so much to me. So I didn't know the specific details of the plan back then."

Just when Angela wanted to continue to shake off responsibility, Ted laughed and said, "You mean Gloria didn't tell you? Or that you didn't want her to continue explaining to you?"

Everyone looked at Angela with increasingly complicated doubts.

Angela's expressions changed slightly.

A sardonic look flashed across Gloria's face. Is Gloria plotting against me and putting on that innocent look?

But pretending to be innocent is not a difficult thing to do.

I guess it's not easy to be a sincere person, but it's totally easy to play tricks and become wicked for her.

Before Angela could figure out her response, Gloria said with guilt, "I wouldn't blame my cousin for this. I didn't expect to explain these things to my cousin because I didn't have enough experience at that time. Yesterday, Mr. Maguire asked me to explain the plan in detail, and that was when I realized this."

Angela was so irritated.

What a wicked woman!

Since when did she start to play tricks on others?

Gloria's words sounded as if making an excuse for Angela, but the participants in the room knew enough about what might possibly happen between the two.

They might start to blame Angela after hearing Gloria's words when she said she was in experienced. So Gloria managed to shake off responsibility and to blame Angela for being inexperienced as well.

Gloria didn't explain the plan, but it was Angela's responsibility to ask her to explain. But Angela didn't ask. Instead, she directly vetoed Gloria's plan, which proved that Angela was very arbitrary.

Seeing the people's doubtful and questioning looks, Angela was so enraged. She quickly shook her head and said, "My idea at that time was actually the same as what I have now. It was not that I didn't trust Gloria.

If this plan would bring no harm to the company, I'm naturally willing to approve of it. Because Gloria is my cousin, and I do hope she can have built her own future with this plan. But to be honest, the plan involves too many complicated things."

The crowd looked at Gloria and didn't say anything, obviously waiting for her to continue.

Angela took a breath, restrained her emotions and continued, "If the plan was carried out and succeeded, of course everyone will be happy to see this. But if it fails, I'm afraid it will affect the interests of the company. This is a huge issue that everyone knows that Mr. Brown will invest. But if Gloria didn't conduct it well, all the investment would be in vain and could not be recovered."

Seeing that people were listening to her carefully, she became calmer than just now. "Although it was not our company's money that would lose if the Brown Group suffered tremendous damage, everyone would know that the White Group made an awful plan. Then, who will cooperate with us again in the future? They were afraid of falling over if they worked with us, and then... the reputation of our company would be doomed."

Speaking of this, Angela couldn't help sighing. She acted as if she was worrying about her cousin and the company with sincerity. She said, "Of course, there is Gloria's reputation. How could she stay in the company in the future if she fails?"

The crowd listened to her words quite still and sound.

Another shareholder sitting next to Ted looked aloof at Angela and said, “Miss White is right, but why don’t you choose to make it public since this is a huge issue? Why did you decide to keep it private but cancel the plan according to your own opinions?”

Angela’s shivered slightly, and she wanted to refute, but Yvonne continued quickly, “You were worried about your cousin, but you should put the interests of the company in the first place. That you can’t trust Gloria and that you think everyone may not agree to let Gloria take up the plan could be made public to all of us. And we can work together.”

Angela remained silent.

She was so outrageous.

But Yvonne took a step further and questioned again, “But why did you choose to suppress this plan? If it wasn’t for Mr. Maguire, how could we know that Gloria would have such a good plan with such great benefits to come?”

Chapter 400

Chapter 400 No Light Punishment

“Because...” Angela only squeezed out one word from her mouth. She did not know how to continue.

She gnashed her teeth with anger.

Yvonne actually sided with Ted in the company, and she was well-known for her sharp questions.

Ted’s style would be tender and he would at least take care of everyone’s mood. But Yvonne was different. She had a poker face and spoke directly to the point.

The meeting room suddenly sank into silence.

Claude’s face changed slightly, but at that time, he couldn’t defend his own daughter. Otherwise, it would appear to others as if they were targeting Gloria together.

The only thing he could do was to remain silent, which made him stuck in a dilemma.

For the sake of keeping his authority, he couldn't show predilection for his own daughter while treating Gloria badly. He must agree to this plan for the sake of interest. At that moment, he was entangled and wavering.

Gloria sneered coldly and her heart was full of contempt. She thought it was time for her to make a move. She pretended to be innocent again with a guilty face and said, "Maybe my cousin only wanted to maintain my reputation at that time, but she didn't think too much..."

Angela was completely muted with rage.

She couldn't defend herself at all, and Gloria was once again dragging her down in a blog.

Then everyone would think that Angela didn't deserve to stay in the company because she wanted to protect the reputation of her own cousin and sacrifice the potential benefits of the company.

She was completely trapped by Gloria that day.

She took a breath and said hurriedly, "it's not like this. I've considered both sides of this matter. There are more risks for the company than my cousin's personal interests. That's why I chose to refuse the plan. Once the plan fails, we couldn't shoulder the failure added by the Brown Group's anger. Besides, Gloria has never had experience in this field, and I'm afraid she simply..."

"I have just said that if you think she can't do it, you can still report this matter. We could have a meeting to think of a workable countermeasure, but you have been suppressing the plan. I don't know what Miss White was thinking at that time." Yvonne targeted Angela again.

Angela could say anything.

Do you really have to put me on this dead end?

Some of the shareholders that supported Claude had looked at Yvonne, "Yvonne, are you a little bit

Some of the shareholders that supported Claude had looked at Yvonne, "Yvonne, are you a little bit sharp? You know how old Miss White is this year? It's already very rare that she could consider the matter so thoroughly. She will definitely be the elite of our company in the future. Why do you have to criticize her like you have ulterior motives?"

Yvonne looked coldly at Howard Owen, who was talking at that time. She answered indifferently, "I'm just being honest. The senior managers are not the positions for those who want to practice themselves. If one reaches such a high position, one should act competently in this job. There must be no faults. If the person doesn't have enough experience and competence, maybe it is still forgivable. But at least he or she should know how to learn and consult other people's opinions."

Angela didn't speak.

In that situation, she must not defend herself any more. Or it would aggravate the situation and expose her incompetence.

She could only curse Gloria in her heart.

If it weren't for Gloria, she wouldn't have been humiliated like this.

"You mustn't say that. Miss White is different from others. She is the daughter of the president, so she should practice as she likes. After all, she will still be an important person in the company in the future."

Another shareholder smiled and said calmly, "That being so, I think Miss White should work harder to make up for her shortcomings, shouldn't she? It's precisely because of her special identity that we must not tolerate slight punishment on her."

"You...!"

"Alright." Claude suddenly spoke.

The quarrel suddenly ceased. No matter how Yvonne and Ted disliked Angela, they still had to respect Claude.

The next moment, Claude smiled at Gloria and said, "Gloria, you really gave me a big surprise. This is an excellent plan."

Angela looked up at her father at that moment.
