Chapter 411 Arcane

“Don’t take it too hard. You don’t have to connect with her.” Angela was stunned. She had expected harsh words from him. In the end, he made such a remark. “Jordy, L.” “I still have unfinished business. When I’m free, I’ll come to visit you. Go home and have a good rest.” Angela was petrified. Her lips parted as she tried to say something. For fear of annoying Jordy, she said in a considerate way, “Okay, go ahead with your work. Take care and don’t stress yourself out.” “I know.” There was a tinge of impatience in Jordy’s magnetic voice. Angela’s face changed, but she said, “Gotta go.” Jordy hummed. Angela took a breath and hung up the phone. In the next instant, she glared at Martha and spluttered, “See? You shouldn’t have asked me to call him! What are Dad and you planning?” Just now, her mother had instructed her to do this and told her about the benefits. However, their real purpose was not shared. Angela was annoyed even more for not getting enough attention from Jordy. Martha chuckled and replied, “This is the effect I want, Sweetheart, you’re worried about nothing. Even if Gloria had a chance to work with the Brown Group, so what? Do you think she can take the White Group back?” Angela froze, looked at her mother, and asked, “What do you mean?” “Didn’t Mr. Collins tell you to have a good rest? Just leave the rest to me.” Angela was puzzled. She asked, “Mom, what are Dad and you up to?” Martha was disappointed in her daughter. “Haven’t you figured out our plan?” “Huh?” Angela was baffled. Martha shook her head and explained, “We’re trying to achieve two things. First, you should marry Jordy as soon as possible, second, we’ll stop Gloria from getting the White Group back. Don’t miss the point.” Angela didn’t get it, and she retorted, “I didn’t miss the point. I got suspended just because I tried to stop her, okay?” Martha sighed. “Forget it, all that you need to do now is figure out a Gloria rejected it but sent a message via WhatsApp. “I’m outside. It’s too noisy for me to answer the phone. Anything?” Gloria texted. “Oh? Where are you? I heard that your cousin has been suspended.” Nydia texted back. “Yeah, thanks to you. I’ll roast beef for you another day.” Gloria texted. “Ha-ha, great! Where are you now? Why is it inconvenient for you to answer the phone?” Nydia texted. “At the bar,” replied Gloria. “What? That’s not okay! You went to a bar without me! Who is with you?” Nydia texted again. “Myself. I came to take care of something. Let’s hang out together next time,” Gloria replied. “You’re alone? Which bar are you at? It’s not safe. I’m going to keep you company.” Nydia texted. “It’s okay. I’ll be fine,” Gloria replied. Nydia continued to advise Gloria, but the latter was certain about her safety. Without a choice, Nydia told her to exercise caution. Gloria put her phone down. She didn’t plan to drink and thus kept the mask on. However, the disguise couldn’t affect her beauty. A lot of men were attracted to her, and one of them came over with a glass of wine.

With a gentle smile, the man said in a soft voice, “Miss, are you alone?” Gloria nodded as if with expectations and replied, “Yeah, it’s just me.” She smoothed her hair and pulled her mask down a little under the fervent gaze of the man. In an instant, the ulcers on her face were exposed, and the man was shocked. No longer in the mood to talk to her again, he turned around and went back to his seat. The other men looked at him with inquiries in their eyes, and the man grunted. Gloria couldn’t hear him, but she could guess what he was saying. A smile tugged at her mouth. This would save her a lot of trouble. Then there came another two men. In the same way, Gloria showed them her ugly face and deterred them. Gloria waited for a long time before the target showed up. Corey appeared. In black sportswear, the man looked tall and noble. His shoulders were broad, but his waist was slender. His brown hair was styled into bangs. His features were sculpted, and his deep eyes were talking. His arrival attracted immediate attention, especially from those women. He ordered his drink and sat down at an empty table.

The woman froze and gritted her teeth. Daunted by the man’s icy gaze, she gave up the idea of challenging him and left in a huff. Those nearby heard everything and confirmed that the man was unapproachable. Those in a distance, however, thought that Corey didn’t like that woman. Soon, more women went over to accost him. The results were the same. Those women’s desire to conquer was aroused. They tried their luck one after another. In the end, Corey was annoyed. He took out a dagger and stuck it into the table. No one dared to go over again. Everyone could sense his cranky character. He didn’t like women at all. Some people sneered to themselves. In the corner, two potbellied men toasted each other and scoffed. “Those people are incredible. When men court them, they pay no attention. Instead, they go to pursue the unapproachable and get rejected. Heh... funny.” “They’re always like this. What’s the fuss? Let’s face it.

You get He ordered his drink and sat down at an empty table. However... He was too dashing to be ignored. Instead of rushing over, Gloria just waited and watched. A woman headed in his direction and sat down across from him. Corey looked at the woman with cold eyes and barked, "Go away." The flirtatious smile on her face froze. Such an attitude to a stunner like her was not expected. The next second saw her smiling again. "Handsome, isn't it boring to drink alone?" A lot of women were watching. They were surprised that the woman was given a cold shoulder. This man was such an iceberg. Attracted by the woman's words, people looked over at Corey again. His eyes were filled with ferocity. "Go away, or face my wrath." Corey sensed an approaching figure and furrowed his brows. His eyes glimmered with endless coldness as if one more step forward would cost Gloria her life.

Indifferent to it, Gloria went to the opposite seat and sat down. The annoyance in Corey's eye grew stronger, and his hand gripped the hilt of the dagger. Many people couldn't help but sneer, "See? As I said, she's gonna suffer. Her predecessors have worn his patience thin." Gloria was not daunted. Far from it, she looked at the man with composure. "Relax, my aim is different. Corey, we need to talk."

Corey's eyes were glazed at the mention of his name. It showed that she knew about him. No longer that hostile, he drew his hand back and rejected, "Not interested." Although the others couldn't hear them, they were amazed. "What the hell! He put his hand back. Is he interested in that woman?" "Are you kidding me? She has ulcers all over her face. Who would be interested in her?" "Corey doesn't know!" All the eyes were on the two of them, and Corey became the man of the hour. After all, this man was refined and had rejected so many women. Everyone was curious if he was into this lady. Corey's words didn't bother her. She remained composed as she said, "As far as I can remember, there is a very important person in your life. You used to say that you were forever indebted to him and would repay him even with your life." Corey froze before his eyes fell on Gloria. "Who are you?" Gloria's lips curved up. "Your benefactor has passed away. Would you find it unreasonable if his daughter asks you for a favor?"

Astonished, Corey sized her up. To his surprise, she was that woman. After a while, he croaked, "What do you need me to do?" Just then, the door to the bar opened once again. Two men came in one after another. The one at the front boasted a chiseled face. His lips were pursed into a line. The air about him was so awful that people didn't dare to look him in the eye. His reserved temperament was prevailing, making the others feel inferior. The man behind him was more human, but his aura was also intimidating Everyone in the room was attracted. The eyes of those women lit up. They were even more excited than when they saw Corey. The sexual orientation of this man was normal after all. He was so stunning and noble that they were willing to have a one-night stand with him. Their lives would be complete. Eying head, the two men were going inside till the one at the front came to a sudden halt. His eagle's eyes looked into the corner and almost penetrated the masked woman sitting there. The man behind him sensed something, followed his gaze to look over, and freaked out. "Miss White? What is she doing here?"

Jordy looked at him with cold eyes and asked, "Why are you following me?" Harold was stupefied Shouldn't he? Soon, he realized something and said in a helpless tone, "Okay, I'll wait here." Jordy glanced at the woman who hadn't noticed his presence and continued his way inside. As for Harold... He went to the corner. His eyes were thick with frustration. His boss was getting more and more like a double-dealer. Jordy needed him today but forbade him to go. He knew that he was left there to take care of Gloria. Jordy said no but gave away his real thought. Without a choice, Harold watched from the side. Gloria's attention had been on Corey the entire time. She was unaware of what happened between Jordy and Harold. She stared at Corey and asked with a calm look, "Could you let Kristina's son go?" "Corey narrowed his eyes and asked back, "Its all that you ask?"

Gloria nodded. "Yep, then we're even." Corey grinned with a hint of Sarcasm in his eyes. "How so?" Confusion tinted her eyes. "What... do you mean?" Corey glanced at her and said, "Your father helped me a lot while Kristina's son is dispensable, so we're not even. I don't like to owe people anything, and you can turn to me again when you need my help." Gloria gave him a surprised look. This man was different from what he was rumored to be like. Corey seemed to notice her doubt but remained calm. "Anything else?" Gloria measured him with curious eyes. "You won't verify my identity?" "Nope." Corey looked away. He had lost interest in continuing their conversation. Since he had agreed, Gloria nodded and said, "Thanks." Corey gave no response. Gloria got up and left. Those all around were confounded. They hadn't expected Gloria to Harold conversed with those inside and learned that Jordy had come out earlier on the pretext of using the bathroom. Harold was speechless.

Chapter 416 An Acquaintance

Harold stiffened, snapped back to reality, and somehow felt guilty.

He wondered if his boss had read his mind.

Gloria wandered around in the street instead of going home.

She seemed to be waiting for someone.

Or she was just taking a walk.

People went into or came out of the bar.

The street was lit,

Gloria glanced at the entrance of the bar from time to time. Emotions were mixed in her eyes.

Soon, her phone beeped.

"It was not him." It was a message from Vincent.

"Okay, thanks." Gloria texted back.

Then she prepared to put away her phone.

The man sent over a picture of whacking her, followed by another similar picture from the other man in the chatting group.

"Change your bad habit. You don't have to thank me." Vincent texted.

"Gloria, you're toxic," Braxton commented.

"I was wrong," Gloria replied.

"Are you coming back?" Braxton asked.

Gloria's eyes were glazed. For a moment, she didn't know how to reply.

All these years, she had been wasted and failed a lot of people.

Looking back, she found her life was a total failure.

For an unfaithful man, she had turned her back on her best friends.

After taking a deep breath, Gloria left a few words in the chatting group.

"I'm back."

The two men had just criticized her because she thanked them. This time, she didn't say sorry because that would annoy them.

Both men were sensible and supportive.

After learning about her divorce, they reappeared.

That was their way of comforting her.

Although they rarely contacted each other all these years, it didn't mean that their ties were broken.

In fact, Braxton and Vincent were both from rich families. They had seen much of the world.

She stopped wandering and headed to the parking lot.

The underground parking lot was packed. A lot of people came to get their cars. Gloria raised her eyes before a familiar face came into view.

Chapter 417 Pleasant Ringtone

Gloria smiled at the person who came over, "Ms. Hayes, what a small world!"

This is what Kristina said to her last time.

kristina sized Gloria up. Compared with before, her gaze softened a lot. With a calm look, she asked, "Care for a meal?"

Gloria smiled with her eyes. "Sure."

She locked the car and went outside with Kristina,

Before long, they entered a box

"What would you like to eat?" Kristina handed her the menu.

Gloria replied, "Anything will be fine. I'm picky about food. Please excuse me for a moment and go ahead ordering your dishes."

There was a restroom in the box.

Kristina ordered her dishes without further ado.

In fact, to have dinner together was just a pretext. It was business they were about to discuss.

Gloria removed her mask and tore off the fake ulcers before a comely face was revealed.

The waitress went out, leaving the two women in the room.

Kristina eyed Gloria and asked in surprise, "How did you do that?"

She had thought they would be in great trouble today.

To her surprise, her son was unharmed.

Corey promised that he would stop causing trouble to her son but warned her against messing with him again.

Instead of giving a direct answer, Gloria laughed and said, "It's just a favor."

Kristina wrinkled her brows before producing a contract. "We'll sign it."

Gloria smiled and said, "Great."

Kristina observed her expression and said, "You're not surprised."

Still smiling, Gloria said with ease, "I know about your character."

Kristina froze before staring at her. "The first time I saw you, I could tell that you're a shrewd but disagreeable woman."

Gloria snickered and asked, "What about now?"

"Sort of reliable," Kristina replied in a nonchalant tone.

Gloria's smile deepened. "You'll see me as a faithful friend one day. Time will tell."

Kristina pursed her lips but said nothing.

Gloria took the contract from Kristina's hand and skimmed it through.

Cocking her brows, Kristina said, "No one will play tricks on an expert."

Gloria laughed, "Force of habit."

The contract was fine, and she signed it.

"There will be experts for the follow-ups. Ms. Hayes, wish our cooperation success!"

The subsequent work was not her duty.

Kristina bowed her head. "I wish I could work with you. I like your proposal very much."

After signing the contract, Kristina was not sparing with her praise. It was her character to be straightforward.

After a while, she had another look at Gloria and said, "Thank you for your help. If you need anything, you can always come to me. I'll do everything within my power to help."

Gloria smiled and said, "It's rare that you owe anyone a favor. I'll cherish it."

A grin was Kristina's only response.

Before long, the waitress served the dishes.

After she went out, Kristina said, "Let's dig in. The food in this restaurant is hygienic and distinctive. If you don't like them, we can order something else."

"It's alright. These are fine."

As soon as her voice died away, the pleasant ringtone of the phone reached their ears.

Chapter 418 Public Duty and Private Feelings

Gloria didn't move.

Kristina looked over at her phone, frowned at the caller ID, and then looked at Gloria.
"Please

excuse me, I have to take this."

Gloria nodded her head.

Kristina then answered the phone.

Gloria was unable to hear the other party.

Kristina turned pale. Gloria's brows twitched as she wondered if anything went wrong with Kristina's son.

It can't be Corey. What is going on?

"I see."

Kristina hung up the phone.

Puzzled, Gloria looked over and asked, "Was it your son?"

"No."

Gloria was relieved. In fact, she wasn't 100% sure about Corey's promise.

Kristina said in an awkward voice, "Miss White, I... may need a favor from you."

She was a straightforward person, but it didn't mean she could remain that way when she asked someone for a favor.

Gloria was surprised. "Tell me about it. I'll do my best to help you."

"Help me win a lawsuit."

Gloria asked, "What kind of lawsuit?"

Kristina took a light breath before whispering, "We'll talk about it after dinner."

Gloria nodded, aware that Kristina didn't want to ruin the atmosphere. Without another word, Kristina ate as usual.

She followed Gloria to put down the knife and fork, sighed, and asked in a soft voice, "Can I add you on WhatsApp?"

Gloria nodded at Kristina who stretched out her hand. Through the QR code, they added each other before Kristina sent her a file.

"The situation is pretty much like that. Give me a quotation."

Gloria skimmed through the content and said in a calm voice, "If nothing is missing and everything is true, we'll win."

Kristina's eyes lit up. "Great! Tell me your commission."

Gloria laughed, "It's high."

The corners of Kristina's mouth twitched. "I know."

Instead of specifying the amount, Gloria smiled and said, "Send me all the evidence and the time of the trial."

Kristina was surprised. "I should have agreed to our deal sooner."

She was kidding

She would not let private feelings override public duty.

She would not use that to threaten Gloria.

Gloria didn't threaten her either. It was a favor and trade. Kristina felt good about Gloria.

Since Gloria didn't name her price, Kristina pressed with a serious look, "How much will you charge?"

Gloria curled her lips. "Just see it as a regard from a friend."

Kristina's face changed. "I can't. I'll owe you too much. Even reckoning makes long friends."

Gloria checked the time instead of going on with the topic. "It's late and time for me to go home. You should also go back to see your son, I presume."

Kristina wrinkled her brows.

Gloria took a copy of the signed contract and smiled. "See you around."

She stood up and went outside.

Chapter 419 My Future Daughter-in-Law

Kristina watched Gloria leave without saying another word.

Gloria reached home without any obstructions.

The following day, she went to work as usual and handed in the contract. Sheila marveled, "Oh my God! You sealed the deal with Kristina?"

She was shocked to no end.

It was not that Sheila was oversensitive.

But the cases Gloria had got were missions impossible for everyone in the office, Sheila and the department manager included.

In a matter of days, Gloria had accomplished four of them without much effort.

Everyone in the office was dumbfounded. Their eyes were filled with astonishment. They couldn't believe their ears.

It was the undeniable truth.

They were flabbergasted.

"No way! Gloria nailed it? Kristina is notoriously difficult to deal with!"

"Geeze, Gloria, you're amazing!"

Even those who rarely talked to Gloria looked at her in disbelief.

People had doubted her success in Hunter's case. This time was different. Kristina was a normal woman with a husband and a son. There was no way Gloria could seduce her.

How did Gloria do it?

Everyone found it hard to believe.

Gloria replied with a smile, "It was a stroke of luck."

As cool as a cucumber, she didn't share the details with them, but everyone in the office saw her in a new light.

In such a short period, she sealed four deals. It was just incredible.

As for Jonathan's case, it didn't mean she was incompetent. The company doubted it, which was not Gloria's fault.

Sheila cooled down, shook her head, and exclaimed, "Gloria, that was awesome! In this department, you're the most capable person I've ever seen."

With a humble smile, Gloria said, "I'm flattered."

If it were not the working hours, they would have gathered around and begged her to teach them.

It was just that...

Gloria's experience could not be learned by everyone. She was able to modify proposals and do the design on her own. She just had too many proposals and programs on her plate, otherwise she would have taken charge of the entire process.

Martha came to visit the Collins at their house.

Full of smiles, Olivia took Martha's hand in hers and said in a kind voice, "Martha, welcome to our house. I thought you were blaming me for what happened last time. I was careless. I hope Angela will forgive me."

Martha responded with a smile, "Olivia, it was not your fault. It was a trap that had nothing to do with you. Angela has no reason to blame you. Far from it, she is grateful to you for being supportive of her relationship with Jordy."

Olivia said, "Of course, I'm supportive! Angela is my future daughter-in-law!"

Martha fidgeted and sighed. There seemed to be something on her mind.

Puzzled, Olivia asked, "What's wrong?"

Chapter 420 The Other Things were the Key Points

Light flickered in Martha's eyes. She said helplessly, "L... I shouldn't have mentioned it, but if I didn't do that, all of us would be affected."

Olivia froze for an instant. Then it dawned on her. She sighed, "I'm also worried. He stayed in the company every day, and didn't talk to me at all. I can't even see him very often."

Martha's expression changed as she said in a helpless tone, "But if the thing is held up like this... Angela... she loves Jordy wholeheartedly. I can't watch the thing being delayed like this. Men can get married in their thirties, but girls' youth is short."

When Olivia heard that Martha was going to call off the wedding, she was a little worried, "No! Martha, we've agreed on their marriage. I can't watch my future daughter-in-law marry others!"

Martha sighed with resignation, "I only want Jordy to be my son-in-law, but they..."

She was too sad to go on in the back.

However, seeing Olivia's hesitation and anxiety, she could only continue, "A lot of things happened to the White Group recently. Have you heard of it?"

ec

Olivia said with a puzzled look, "What had happened?"

Martha sighed and then told her what had happened recently. She was much smarter than Angela, so she described what Angela had been through vividly and tactfully told her what Gloria did.

In this way, she would look like Gloria's fair and square aunt, and her tone would not arouse suspicions.

Olivia didn't like Gloria.

After hearing Martha out, she had a stronger prejudice against Gloria.

Olivia clenched her teeth, "How could she do that? How could she be so unfeeling and shameless! If it weren't for you guys, she would have lost her status long ago, but now she is actually so ambitious? She wants to bring all of you down?"

Martha had a cold and disdainful look in her eyes.

She hid it but just smiled and shook her head helplessly, "Gloria said that she wanted to return to the White Group and wanted her shares back. We would naturally agree. But if we do that, our White Group might be ruined..."

"Gloria is inexperienced, and if the company is ruined by her, her reputation would be damaged.

She is just a little girl. How can she stand that? And if she hurts herself for that, her father would turn in his grave! Alas..."

Olivia sneered, "You don't need to care about Gloria's feelings. She is very competitive and ambitious and just a crazy bitch with a bent moral compass. Don't let her get away with it too much."

Martha shook her head hurriedly, "We didn't. In fact, Gloria isn't..."

"Alas, Martha, I showed Gloria a nice attitude for your sake in case there will be rumors about her. You know what? She is really scheming. You should guard against her."

Martha smiled awkwardly, and then quickly changed the topic, "Let that rest. Let's talk about something else."

What they were going to talk about was the key points, which could only be drawn out by this thing.
