Chapter 704 Devastated Parents

In the snow lay a woman covered in blood.

The snow under her was dyed red, blooming around her like a red rose mortal.

Charis's body lay lifeless on the ground floor of the Larson Group building.

All his bones had been shattered after falling from such height.

Looking at the mangled body on the floor, Janet didn't could shake off the feeling that Charis was looking at her with wide eyes open.

Such a sight made his skin crawl.

Unable to bear it, looked away and buried his face in Brandon's arms.

"Have you contacted your parents?", I ask trembling."

Garett did it. They should be here soon." I answered.

Brandon expressionlessly as he looked at the Charlie's corpse. He took a deep breath, took off his scarf and wrapped it around Janet.

Rubbing her back comfortingly, he asked, "Do you want to wait for me inside?"

Janet shook her head like a little girl. She doesn't want to be separated from her parents.

In that moment, he heard the siren of an ambulance.

After gathering all the courage he had left, He raised his head and looked in the direction where he was found Charis's body.

Several workers were carrying her in a stretcher.

"I almost feel a little sorry for her", he muttered under his breath.

"He deserved it. There's no need to feel sorry for her."

Despite saying so, Brandon had mixed feelings. I really know he pitied Charis. never had feelings romantic for her, but admired and trusted her in her.

Ever since they were in school, she always she had been a confident and excellent woman. she was the cream of the crop, a head above the rest. Garrett once commented that she always would stand out from the crowd. she was like that extraordinary.

But no one would have expected she would end up like this.

Upon hearing the tragic news of the death of his daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Turner ran as soon as possible and threw themselves on the lifeless body of Charis, crying hysterically.

Luke had always been a quiet man who he never showed emotion.

But seeing the body bloodied from his daughter, he couldn't help but burst in tears, moaning like a banshee.

Catherine was also losing her mind.

You didn't give a damn that his expensive fur coat was submerged in bloody snow.

She buried her face in her hands, her makeup ran for her tears.

"We just had breakfast with her this morning... How can this be? How can be this?! Oh my Charis!"

Suddenly, he saw Janet in the crowd.

He stood up in a hurry and ran towards her, shouting: "You! All of this is your fault! You are the reason why that my daughter went crazy.

He said he would go back to start, but look what happened!"

The scolding made Janet frown strength. She didn't do anything wrong.

It was Charis who had been chasing.

Catherine raised her hand to slap Janet across the face.

However, before he could do so, Brandon suddenly pushed her, Brandon he wrapped his arms around

Janet protectively and looked at Catherine coldly.

"Mrs. Turner, be careful. We're the victims of his daughter's crime, not the other way around. got what belonged to him." Luke ran over and helped Catherine to her feet.

Eyes burning with hatred, he pointed at Brandon and he said with a trembling voice.

"The police will investigate Brandon Larson, I will not rest until you are Behind bars!"

Since someone had died, Janet and Brandon were taken back to the police station to be interrogated.

Fortunately, the Larson Group building it was well equipped with circuit cameras TV closed.

The police investigated everything with careful, watching the surveillance videos and asking witnesses to get a clear understanding of exactly what happened.

In fact, it was Charis who had manipulated the your office window beforehand. It was clear that he planned to jump off the building with Janet, who ended up being saved by Brandon, while Charis ended up dead.

Both Janet and Brandon were declared innocent and they were not held responsible for what it had happened to Charis.

Since the case was clear, it was soon resolved.

Catherine and Luke knew how crazy Charis was.

by Brandon, but they never knew the extent of his craziness.

Because the case was undisputed, they had no no choice but to accept the harsh reality.

In the end of the day, the two looked ten years old when they met.

Charis's mangled corpse was brought home desperate.
