

The Three Little Guardian Angels Chapter 1967

Chapter 1967 One of them was the Godfather who controlled the entire underground scene of Ora, Fabio Puzo, and the other was the biggest crime boss in East Eurasia, Sunny Southern.

Nollace rested his head on his hand and leaned against the window. "If he can hide there, he must have some help."

Edison remembered something. "By the way, Mrs. Pruitt is here."

Nollace looked out the window. "I knew my aunt wouldn't just let things rest. Tell Colton about this. He should protect his woman."

At the hospital... Freyja threw up so much that she went to the doctor to get some medication. When she got the medication, a call came through.

The name of the caller made her frown. She never contacted her father, so a discomfort crawled up her skin.

She picked up, and her father anxiously asked, "Fey, have you seen your mother?"

Freyja froze on the spot. "What did you say?" Brandon said, "After your mom found out that you were with Young Mr. Goldmann, she left home without telling me. She must have come to Zlokova to see you."

Freyja's face froze while she grasped her phone tightly. "She... is in Zlokova?"

It had been three years. She had assumed that if she left Yaramoor, she would be able to leave all the sadness and trauma left by her mother behind. However, she never thought that her mother would come to Zlokova.

"Fey, be careful."

He suddenly reminded her. "Your mother isn't in her best mental state. After your brother's passing, she completely lost her mind. I'm worried that she might do something extreme."

"I'm sorry, Fey, I'm too weak and never protected you. I really hope that you can have a good life, so no matter what your mother does, you have to be very careful."

He then hung up.

Freyja stood there feeling confused. "Ms. Pruitt, your medication." The nurse's voice drew her back. She took it and left quickly. After hailing a cab, she got a call from Tenet, and t

"I brought food here. Is he busy?"

The secretary smiled and said. "I'll inform him." She smiled sweetly. "Thanks."

After the secretary called into the office, she said, "You can go in now."

Daisie went in with some pastries and saw Leonardo with Colton.

Leonardo nodded. "Ms. Vanderbilt." She waved her hand, and he left. Colton raised his eyebrows and looked at the pastries in her hands. "You still remember me?" "Of course I do." Daisie walked to his desk and left the food on it. "How could I forget you and Waylon?"

I've always been the one who cared for her since she was a baby. You, an elder and her grandmother, how could you say any of that?” Sandy walked over, raised her hand, and slapped her on her face. Her face turned, and there was a deep palm print on it. Deedee started crying. “Grandma! Please don't hit Aunt Fey.” Sandy shoved her away, and Deedee stopped crying after falling to the floor. Freyja ignored the pain on her face and helped Deedee up. Her eyes were cold. “Mom, you shouldn't treat her that way. She's the child of your son.” Sandy smirked. “What's the point of a daughter? She'll end up just like you.” That made Freyja freeze on the spot. Her mother hated her since she was a child just because she was a girl?

Sandy glared at Deedee, who was shaking, then at Freyja. “Do the Goldmanns know of this kid's existence?”

Freyja didn't answer.

Sandy walked over and stopped in front of her. “I guess not. You would admit that this child was yours in the past, but I'm sure you wouldn't do that to the Goldmanns. Would you do that in front of Deedee, though?”

Sandy's words were venomous. She was evidently trying to use Deedee's lack of parental love to anger her.

Freyja had been taking care of Deedee and doing all that she could. Outsiders didn't know that she was the child of Ken and her sister-in-law, and Deedee never saw either of her parents. To Deedee, Freyja was her mother.

How would Deedee feel if Freyja insisted on cutting ties with her?

Freyja held her fists. “What are you trying to do?”

Sandy sounded arrogant. “Since you're now associated with the Goldmanns and are now Young Mrs. Goldmann, you might be useful. Your mother is here now, so are you not going to bring me to meet my in-laws?"

The air in the room froze and became heavy. There was no sound other than Deedee's sniffing.

Freyja took a deep breath and swallowed her hatred. "I'm not married to Colton yet, so I won't be able to decide that." Sandy looked unfriendly. "Are you trying to brush me off? "Young Mr. Goldmann has made your relationship public. Are you trying to lie to me? Hmph! I know that you will cut ties with us once you turn your life around. You're pretending that you don't know your mother now." Freyja was going to say something, but her stomach lurched.

Sandy thought that she was ignoring her, so she grabbed her by her hair. "Freyja Pruitt, as long as I'm still your mother, you'll never get rid of me..."

She was immediately covered in vomit after that.

Sandy looked at her pants and shoes, which were covered in dirty fluids, and her face immediately changed. She pushed Freyja away and barked, "You b*tch! How could you!?"

Freyja, who was pushed away, lost her balance, but right when she was falling backward, someone immediately held her. Freyja was stunned when she looked at this familiar face.

Colton hugged Freyja and looked at Sandy with cold eyes. "You expect her to love you when you treat her like this?"

Sandy's face dropped, and she ignored the filth. "You're my son-in-law? I'm sorry that you have to see that." "You have no right to call me that."
