

The Three Little Guardian Angels Chapter 1971

Chapter 1971 However, Colton was keeping her company like a normal boyfriend. He was worried that she would catch a cold, so he tightly tucked her into the bed. He was worried that she would be uncomfortable with her pregnancy, so he didn't dare to close his eyes. He was not used to taking care of other people, but he had learned how to take care of her.

After a long while, Freyja squinted and looked at him through the pillar of light. "You should go do your own stuff. I'll be fine."

Colton placed his hand on her eyes and said, "You shouldn't talk. Close your eyes and get some rest." "Colton." She was tired. Her eyelids felt heavy, but she tried her best to open them. She called out to him softly and said, "I have never thought of having an abortion."

Colton lowered his head to look at her. Even though she was exhausted, she still forced herself to explain to him before falling asleep. He did not know whether he should laugh at her or not. He leaned over slightly and played with her hair with his finger as he stared at her face.

Something came into his head, and the corner of his lips curled upward. By the time Freyja woke up, it was already evening. She got up and rubbed her forehead. She did not know why, but she easily got tired recently. Was it because she was pregnant? Suddenly, she remembered Deedee.

She hastily collected her hair with a hairband and rushed toward the restroom. She wanted to wash her face to freshen herself up, but when she saw the doodle on her face, she was stunned for a moment, and then she shouted, "Colton!"

Colton had already gone back to the company, and he sneezed.

Leonardo was in the middle of reporting his job. He was interrupted by his sneeze, and he lifted his head up. "Do you need me to turn up the temperature?"

Colton waved his hand. "That's not necessary."

He put down the document and massaged his nose. "Don't tell anyone about Freyja's pregnancy yet. There are too many people in the company, and I don't want things to get out of control."

Leonardo nodded. "Understood."

He picked up the document and exited the office.

Leaning against the chair, Colton thought about something and chuckled. He did not know if she had already woken up or not, but if she had woken up, he was certain that she would be scolding him when she saw the thing he had left on her face.

Meanwhile, at Taylorton...

Nollace was using his laptop on the couch. He seemed to be checking on something, and Edison knocked on the door. "Sir, after Mrs. Pruitt arrived in Bassburgh, she went to look for Ms. Pruitt at Tenet, and..."

He lifted his head and asked, "And what?"

"She brought Deedee to Bassburgh with her," said Edison.

Deedee was Ken's daughter, but she was raised by Freyja ever since she was born. If Sandy brought her to Bassburgh, there was only one thing she wanted to do-threaten Freyja with Deedee.

Nollace closed the laptop and raised his head. "I think she doesn't know I'm in Bassburgh yet, right?"

Edison shook his head. "Not many people know that you're in Bassburgh. They only know that you're having a long business trip. Besides, you haven't exposed yourself in Bassburgh, so there is no way she would know you're here."

Nollace put the laptop on the table and rose to his feet. "Send someone to keep an eye on her. Also, get the people in Yaramoor to find out who Mrs. Pruitt has been in touch with recently." "Are you worried about something?" Edison felt that Nollace was being very cautious, but he was certain that it was not because he was afraid of Sandy.

Nollace parted his tightly thinned lips and said, "I'm sure she didn't come all the way here for Freyja. Don't forget, she hates the Knowles and me to the core because of her son's death. Three years ago, the Pruitts knew that I was in a relationship with Daisie. "Daisie has announced her engagement, but she didn't tell anyone who she's engaged to. Do you think my aunt won't suspect that I'm the one Daisie is engaged to?" Edison was stunned. "But even so, she should've targeted the Knowles first if she knows that you aren't in Yaramoor."

Chapter 1974 “Leonardo.” Colton lifted his eyelids. “Contact the publishing companies that published these magazines and tell them to get the money ready.” “Money?” Leonardo was stunned for a while before understanding what Colton was going to do. “You’re going to sue them?” Colton put the cap of the pen back on and said, “We’re going to sue them for slander, disinformation, and spreading fictitious facts to degrade the reputation of others. Whether or not they want to compensate for our loss or shut down, I’ll let them make the choice.”

Leonardo nodded. “Understood.”

As soon as Leonardo came out of the office, he saw Daisy rushing down the corridor. However, before he could say anything, Daisy pushed the door to the office open.

“Colton.”

Colton raised his head to see Daisy pressing her hands on the desk. “Has Mrs. Pruitt come to Bassburgh?”

He frowned. “Yes.”

Daisy took a deep breath and continued. “Now she’s spreading fake news to discredit Freyja. If Freyja sees those things she said, she will... Her situation is kind of special right now, and she mustn’t have any mood swings. If she’s affected by this...” “I know that she’s pregnant.”

She was stunned for a moment and then let out a sigh of relief.

She was worried that it would bring bad effects on the baby in Freyja’s womb if Freyja learned about what her mother did. However, when she came to look for Colton that day, he did not seem to know about Freyja’s pregnancy at all, and she nearly told him about that just now.

Colton said, "Daisie, I know you're worried about her, but rest assured. I'll help her to settle everything."

Daisie lowered her head and thought about something. "Then how are you going to explain Deedee to Mom and Dad? I'm worried that they might misunderstand Freyja if they see the news."

He chuckled. "You don't have to worry about that. Our mother is far smarter than you think she is. Do you think she believes the news on the Internet or us? I'm sure you don't need me to tell you that, right?"

Daisie was relieved.

Just when she was about to leave, Colton said, "Daisie."

She turned her head around. "Yeah?"

"You and Nollace need to be careful as well."

Daisie was stunned, and it took her a few moments to come around to her senses. "What do you mean?"

"Nollace refused to reveal himself in Bassburgh because he's hiding from Donald. Since Donald is still alive, he'll undoubtedly get his revenge on Nollace. You're in a dangerous spot since you're living with him. You should stop going around alone, and don't let anyone find out about the relationship between you and Nollace." Daisie fell silent. When she came out of the building, she stopped in front of her car and thought about Colton's words.

Nollace had said before that they couldn't have a wedding for the time being because there was still a problem that he hadn't solved yet. Now that she thought about it, it seemed to her that the "problem" he was talking about was Donald.

'But why didn't Nollace tell me anything about it? Did he not want me to worry about him? That's why he has been keeping everything to himself?'

In the express inn...

Sandy was still criticizing and complaining about her daughter in front of the reporters. The reporters and the crowd surrounding the entrance couldn't help but sympathize with her. After all, she had traveled a long way with her granddaughter to a foreign country to look for her daughter, who "disowned her mother and child."

Suddenly, a reporter received a phone call.

No one knew what the person on the other side of the line said, but the reporter's face changed, and he said, "Yes, sir. We'll leave now."

The rest of the reporters were confused. A lot more other reporters received the same phone call as well. All of them shut down their cameras and left without any hesitation.

When Sandy saw that all of the reporters had left and that the hall had become empty, her face sank

The Three Little Guardian Angels Chapter 1975

Chapter 1975 Sandy vaguely heard them talking about the Goldmanns. 'Hmph! It seems like I've underestimated that girl.'

Sandy returned to her room. When she saw that Deedee was sitting with her entire body shivering in the corner, she flew into a rage. "How can you be so useless? I brought you here, yet you can't do anything. You should have died in your mother's womb back then."

Deedee lowered her head and sobbed.

Sandy walked up to her and pulled her up from the floor. She shrunk and cried, "Grandma, I'll be a good girl —"
Sandy kicked her into the corner and shouted, "Stop crying! All you know is crying." Deedee fell on the floor. Her back hit the desk, knocking off the glass of water on top of the desk and causing the water in the cup to spill across the desk. The cup fell on her forehead, and some of the water dampened her hair. A red welt soon appeared on her forehead. Her cheeks were wet, and her countenance was pale. She sobbed weakly, and her body was trembling.

Just when Sandy was about to hit her again, the bell rang.

Sandy clicked her tongue and pulled Deedee back into the room. She tied her up, put a gag into her mouth, and pushed her into the cupboard. Before closing the door, she warned her. "You'd better stay quiet. I'll beat you up if you make even the slightest noise!" She closed the cupboard and then went to answer the door.

She was stunned when she saw the group of bodyguards outside the door. "Who are you?" The bodyguards retreated to the side to make way for Colton. He stood in front of the door and asked, "Where is Deedee?"

Sandy did not expect him to come for Deedee. 'This must be that b*tch's idea. Hmph! There's no way I'll let them take Deedee away.' "Are you serious, Mr. Goldmann? Deedee is my granddaughter. Shouldn't you be taking care of my daughter? Why are you even so concerned about a girl who is unrelated to you?" "I'm not here to talk to you," Colton said expressionlessly. "I'll repeat my question again. Where is Deedee."

Sandy smiled. "She's in a safe place. You don't have to worry about her."

Colton did not say anything. He turned his head sideways and nodded at the group of bodyguards.

The bodyguards standing beside him barged into the room, shocking Sandy. She tried to stop them from going into the room as she said, "What do you think you're doing!? Even if Bassburgh is your territory, I can sue you as well for trespassing." A bodyguard pushed her into the wall and walked into the room. There was nothing Sandy could do

other than watch them warily as they searched through the room. The group of bodyguards searched through every corner of the room, but they couldn't find Deedee. One of them walked up to Colton and whispered something into his ear. Sandy let out a sigh when they couldn't find Deedee. "Mr. Goldmann, Deedee isn't with me right now, so you guys can save your energy. Besides, she's my granddaughter. Do you think I'll hurt her?"

Colton looked at Sandy with a cold gaze and said, "You can even hurt your own daughter, and you expect us to trust you?" Sandy harrumphed and said, "She disowned me and doesn't want to take care of me. She's my daughter, so I have every right to complain about her." Colton's face sank as he said, "Really?"

He walked up to Sandy and stopped in front of her. "Are you not worried about karma for what you did to Freyja, Mrs. Pruitt?" "Karma?" Sandy said, raising her voice, "My son is dead, but why didn't the Knowles and Nollace get what they deserved? If there is karma in this world, then Nollace should pay for my son's life first!" Colton let out a cold smile. "Ken deserved to die, and so do you." Sandy's face turned pale, and her entire body was shaking due to her anger. "Mr. Goldmann, I suggest you stay out of this. The feud between the Knowles and me isn't something that you can interfere with."
