

Let me go, Mr. Hill Author: Shallow South

Chapter 2895

Chapter 2895

Chester: "Charity, are you going to chase me?"

Chester didn't panic, but smiled and teased Lisa's chin with his fingers, making Lisa "giggle", not to mention how cute.

Seeing Lisa smiling so happily at Chester, she seemed to be very acquainted with Chester in just one day.

Charity was very upset, she hugged her daughter and turned to the other side, "Don't touch my daughter."

"Okay, I'm going to tell you about some aspects of your mother's condition at first." Chester said leisurely, "Something to say, I can't say it in front of her, I'm afraid she will be embarrassed."

Charity immediately became nervous when she heard this, "It was my fault just now."

Chester was stunned for two seconds, but he could understand that in this world, only Charity who felt the most guilt. After all, Charity took over Mrs. Robbins's daughter's body, Eliza. Charity will do her best to take care of Mrs. Robbins.

"Your mother didn't have a physical examination in the past years. She has a lot of problems in gynecology. Go for treatment as soon as possible. It's better to have a comprehensive physical examination or something." Charity was stunned. After the physical examination, and after she arrived in the capital, she was in a car accident and then pregnant. She never expected to go to the physical examination, and Mrs. Robbins would never tell her if she was uncomfortable, for fear that she would worry about it.

Charity: "My mother doesn't have cervical cancer..."

Chester: "I shouldn't, but I took her pulse, and there must be a serious problem with the cervix. If this kind of thing is not treated as soon as possible, it will easily cause cervical cancer. I've seen too many things like this in the hospital, most of which are the older generation who didn't have this awareness and were reluctant to pay. I didn't say it just now, because I was afraid that she would be embarrassed by the elderly, after all, she is an elder, and I am a man."

"...Thank you." Charity's mood was very complicated, and her voice couldn't help softening, "I'll take my mother to the hospital tomorrow."

Chester: "Let me say hello to the dean, and go for a direct examination, and the result will be faster."

Charity originally wanted to refuse, but after hearing the last sentence, she nodded, "I thought you were just a surgeon's book. It's amazing, I didn't expect to take the pulse."

Chester never felt proud of his career, but now he heard her praise, and inexplicably became proud, "I first studied medicine, and later I have a thorough knowledge of surgery and internal medicine, you don't believe me that I have more than a dozen medical certificates in my hands."

Charity thought for a while, "Since it's so powerful, why don't you go back to the hospital to work, don't waste yourself."

"You want me to go back to work in the hospital?" Chester was startled, looking at Chester with burning eyes.

Charity was stunned for a while, then rolled her eyes at him, "It's none of my business whether you go to the hospital or not."

Chester touched his nose depressedly.

In the kitchen, Mrs. Robbins secretly glanced at Charity and Chester, who had been outside for two days, and was overjoyed.

As long as two people are willing to chat, there was still hope.

The next day.

Charity didn't go to the company, so she took Mrs. Robbins to the hospital for a physical examination.

"What are you doing for a medical examination?" Mrs. Robbins suddenly became nervous, "Didn't Chester tell you something yesterday?"

"No, he just told me that you should go for a medical examination every year at your age, and Also I didn't expect you to look healthy and find so many problems. I'm too derelict as a daughter, so don't worry about doing a physical examination."

Mrs. Robbins's heart was soft and messed up, "It's still my daughter's filial piety, when your father still disliked it. You're a girl, you see, I'm going to enjoy myself first."

Let me go, Mr. Hill Author: Shallow South

Chapter 2896

Chapter 2896

Charity's mood was complicated.

Eliza committed suicide so selfishly for a man. If she hadn't come here, she can't imagine what life Mrs. Robbins would have had.

In this life, she's afraid that the most painful thing was that the white-haired person sent the black-haired person.

After arriving at the hospital, the dean personally received the two for a physical examination.

Charity was quite embarrassed, she said, "Dean, go and do your work, I've already troubled you a lot today."

"What's the trouble, you are the major shareholder of Jewell Corporation, so you are my boss." The dean said. His surname was Edwards, a round face, forty years old.

Charity: "Dean Edwards, don't say that. I am just a businesswoman and you are a medical expert."

Dean Edwards laughed, "I seem to understand why you are...It will make that prodigal son Chester relieved."

Charity smiled lightly, not wanting to talk about herself and Chester.

Dean Edwards: "Actually, I knew you just like Cindy before, you are an actress in the exercise, but you gave me a much stronger impression than that Cindy, both of whom are girlfriends who have been in contact with Chester. That Cindy ran in front of me when she had nothing to do, and asked me to perform the surgery on anyone. Those patients were some contacts she wanted to connect with in the Canberra circle. Originally, things like surgery were done in order. She couldn't do it. If I want to queue up, I don't agree, so I ask Chairman Jewell and his wife to press me, sigh."

"This is really not good." Charity frowned, "Some people are critically ill and are in a hurry to undergo surgery. Is there anyone else?"

"No." Dean Edwards sighed, "And some patients are only minor operations, and other doctors can also do it. If I have to do the surgery, I will be tired."

Dean Edwards knew the patient's thoughts. Dean Edwards was a top doctor in the country. The richer he was, the more he cherished his life. Even if it was a minor operation, he would invite the best doctors to treat people.

This was a bit of a fuss and wastes medical resources.

Dean Edwards: "Miss Eliza, in fact, I came here to see you today, mainly because I want to ask you for something."

Charity: "Okay..."

Dean Edwards coughed a little embarrassedly, "I want you to persuade Chester to come back sooner. He works in a hospital, even if he occasionally sits in a clinic. His medical skills... To be honest, even the director of me is ashamed. Let's just put it this way, looking at the world, his surgical skills can rank in the top ten. Once it meets those who only have a 5% chance of successful surgery, if Chester is the main surgeon, it can increase the success rate by 10%."

Charity was in a dilemma, she didn't expect Dean Edwards asked her to do this thing.

It must be useful for her to persuade, but this was Chester's own business.

"I actually called Chester many times, but he refused." Dean Edwards smiled bitterly, "He said that he hasn't had surgery for a long time, and his technique is not as good as before. Even if the surgical ability is not as good as before, the things in his mind are a little bit. Even if he sits in the clinic, he can become the best doctor in the hospital. He is very experienced, and many diseases have never been overlooked in his eyes, and even many diseases are treated by him, even if the severe and advanced patients can be extended for a few years of lifespan."

Dean Edwards: "If such a person does not practice medicine, it will be the misfortune of Australia."

Charity pondered for a few seconds, then raised her head and said, "I will try my best to persuade."

"Thank you." Dean Edwards was grateful Endless.

At this moment, the door of the ultrasound room opened, and the medical examiner came out with a report, "Is Mrs. Robbins's family here?"

"Yes, what happened to my mother?" Charity's heart skipped a beat, and she hurried over to ask.