Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 1130

Chapter 1130 "Is that George?" Ninian muttered to herself. "Am I hallucinating or something?"

'George has always looked sullen and indifferent. His visage could even terrify the executives in the Winters Corporation to tears.

'Today, he's actually buying roses in a florist by the roadside and is having serious discussions with the owner.

'If I were to take a picture of him like this and post it for the employees at the company to see, things would be chaotic! His reputation as an indifferent boss would be ruined!'

As Ninian thought of it, she heard the sound of cameras clicking

Her eyes widened when she turned to look.

The carefree Harold, taciturn Alden, and soft-spoken Melody were doing the same thing at the moment, They were holding their phones and taking photos of George frantically.

Ninian was left speechless.

“Guys, what are you doing?” Ninian was perplexed.

“We’re taking pictures of evidence.” Melody sounded excited. “We rarely get any leverage on him. Aren’t you going to get photos of him as well?”

“Hehe, if George were to cut me out again, I’ll use this to threaten him!” Harold laughed cunningly. He alternated between taking photos and recording videos of George.

Alden’s expression was still cold and indifferent, but his words were completely out of character. “When George gives me his tasks again next time, he must take into account the chaos that his employees will be in when they see these pictures.”

Ninian was so shocked that she became speechless.

“That’s too much! They’re so mean!

‘I can’t be the only one not taking photos of him!’

As a result, the youngest and sweetest Winters siblings joined the rest of them to take evidence of George to blackmail him in the future.

“I take photos not to threaten him, but this moment is too precious. Hehehe...” Ninian said.

Just as they knelt in front of the French window, George, who was downstairs, felt as if he was being watched. He paused and suddenly looked up.

The four of them were startled.

Alden had quick reflexes. He swiftly hid his phone and pulled Ninian and Melody away from the window with his two hands, hiding from George's sight.

Harold, who was not quick enough to hide his phone, met George's gaze.

George narrowed his eyes and pointed at him, as if warning him.

Harold was shocked and wanted to cry, but he could not shed a tear.

'It's not me! George, I didn't... Help!'

When he turned, he saw the rest of his siblings either looking at him with accusatory gazes or acting as if nothing happened. He closed his eyes and sighed heavily.

'Great. Just great. I'll be the one who'll take the blow, then.'

George was mostly missing for the next couple of days. Naturally, wherever Raina went, he would definitely be there.

Melody had started practicing for the upcoming piano concert.

Whenever Brooklyn, Melody's junior, came to fetch her, Harold and Alden would be around. They were obviously making their presence known to him.

When he knew that the two charming men were Melody's

- brothers, he became happy yet nervous.

After Melody said her goodbyes to her two brothers, they got into the car and left.

Alden and Harold watched as the car disappeared into the corner of the street. They raised their eyebrows in sync, which was a rare occasion. Their gazes were cold and as deep as the sea.

On the other hand, Ninian was lost in her thoughts as she watched them.

She was able to switch between being a wolf to a puppy at will.

'My dear sister is quite silly when it comes to emotions. She doesn't suspect a thing, hehehe...'

Ninian was so happy.

"Grapie," Alden said suddenly. His tone was cold and solemn. "You're still young, so you're not allowed to be in a relationship yet. You need to distance yourself from those who try to get closer to you with ulterior motives. When you're older, we will filter through your suitors for you, understand?"

“Huh?” After blanking out for a moment, Ninian nodded obediently. “...Okay.”

Harold looked back at her. He thought of something, which caused him to bear a contemplative look on the serious expression he rarely wore. After taking a deep look at her, he did not say anymore.

Ninian shivered, feeling as though her brothers had their sights set on her.

She smiled in embarrassment and said, “If I don’t understand, then I’m supposed to ask, right? When will I be considered a grown-up? When I reach big sister’s age?»

“She doesn’t count,” Harold and Alden said in unison.

Harold rolled his eyes inelegantly and said, “Mel is still young. I’ll beat up anyone who has ulterior motives toward her!”

Alden agreed with him, which was rare. “Hal is right, Mel is still young. When you’re at least thirty years old and can think maturely, we’ll consider whether you should start dating.”

Ninian thought. “My brothers are terrifying!”

Two days went by in a flash, and Melody’s concert would finally begin.

The audience entered the hall in a neat and orderly line. Their eyes were filled with barely concealed enthusiasm and excitement.

“Ms. Melody is finally giving a concert. I’m so happy!”

“As Master Albert’s last disciple, Ms. Melody’s talent and innate skills are truly amazing!”

“I know, right? This is the first stop of her global tour.

The tickets are so hard to get, they’ve all sold out!”

The Winters children were silent as fans from surrounding countries sang their praises wildly in different languages. Ninian was flanked by Harold and Alden as they walked in. She was smiling happily with a proud look on her face..

George would arrive a little later. After Ninian had followed her brothers to the best seats in the hall, she began to look around and observe the stage.

Their seats were excellent. They were in front of the stage and could clearly see everything that was happening on it.

Many people next to them cast envious and amazed looks. The first look was because people were envious of their seats. Ordinary people could never snatch such good seats. The second was because the attractiveness and temperament of the siblings were too high, which amazed others so much that they could not take their eyes off them.

Even though they had donned their masks and hats to keep a low profile, many people still took pictures of them, which made Alden very unhappy, and he frowned.

“After the concert, I’ll hack their electronic devices and delete all the photos,” Alden said coldly.

Harold, who had been enjoying the attention, immediately slumped when he heard this. “Can you leave the pictures of me behind? I think what I’m wearing is subtle and suave, it’ll definitely captivate a lot of girls.”

Alden glanced at him and gave a dour smile.

Harold immediately shrank back.

‘Fine, pretend I said nothing’

“George is here!” Ninian said suddenly, looking in the direction of the passageway in surprise.

Harold and Alden looked over and raised their eyebrows in surprise.
