Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 1152

Chapter 1152 She was still very young in the photo.

She was wearing a blue and white school uniform. She had an energetic smile as she looked forward with her head tilted.

It was not a photo of her from three years ago. Ninian could barely remember how old she was at that time. But she knew that she had no idea of Everett yet.

Why would Everett have an old photo of her?

Ninian held the photo while she got lost in her thoughts. Then, she heard someone knocking on the door behind her.

She turned back to see Everett push the door open and walk inside.

He was still dressed in a school uniform from the war era. His makeup had yet to be removed, and his expression was indifferent. He looked like a character who had just stepped out of the drama.

"What a young, energetic, talented, and passionate student," Ninian could not help but say.

How was he?

Very scary?

Very perverted?

Or very disgusting? Everett just felt pain in his heart, and the beast suppressed within was apparently becoming restless. He could not imagine what he would hear from her, and he dared not imagine the response he would give. As Everett's negative thoughts almost flooded his mind, he finally heard her voice.

"You're very..."

"Persistent!"

Ninian seemed to be in disbelief, but her clear eyes were obviously filled with gentleness and acceptance.

Everett was stunned. He stared into her eyes absentmindedly and could barely register what was going on.

Did she just say... persistent? After she guessed that he might have been watching her for many years, she did not find him scary or perverted. Instead, she just thought that he was very persistent?

"You..."

Everett nearly thought that he was hallucinating and hearing her wrongly. However, Ninian looked at him with surprise and asked, "So, have you been secretly protecting me for many years?"

Protect...

What a beautiful term. It made him feel better about his filthiness and shame.

It turned out that someone in this world would actually use such a beautiful word to describe him, and the person was even the one whom he cared about.

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 1153

For the first time ever, Everett's eyes were sore.

"Do you hate me?" he muttered.

"I secretly stalked you like a pervert. I couldn't help but pay attention to your every move.

"Do you feel afraid when you think of me?"

When Ninian heard his words, she frowned slightly. She began to look very serious and stern, as though she had realized the importance of the question.

She tilted her head and asked, "Did you frequently sneak shots of me?"

Everett shook his head.

He had been afraid of disturbing her, so he would just silently watch her from afar. Zayn had hired someone to secretly take the photo to calm him down when he fell sick and mentally collapsed.

At that time, he had ruthlessly taught Zayn a lesson, but in the end, he still failed to destroy the photo.

Therefore, the photo accompanied him year after year, and he never intended to throw it away.

Ninian nodded and further asked, "Did you collect anything from me?"

Everett shook his head.

“Did you disturb me?”

After Everett remained silent, he shook his head.

“Did you hurt me?”

This time, Everett shook his head firmly.

Hurt her? How could he? That would kill him.

Ninian held up her fingers and counted them one by one for him. “Look, firstly, you’ve never disturbed my life; secondly, you don’t have any strange hobby that disgusts me; thirdly, you’ve never hurt me. In fact, you’ve even saved me. After listing all of this out, nothing seems to be wrong with you.

“Everyone has someone in their heart. You watched me from afar without disturbing me and secretly protected me. That was gentlemanly and well-mannered of you.

You carefully protected the beauty of love and never crossed the boundary.

“Why would you think that I would hate you? Why do you think that you’re as shameful as a pervert?”

Ninian looked at him, and her clear eyes were full of sincerity. She accepted everything about him and also carefully pulled him out of his shell.

Ever since Melody told her about Everett’s mental disease, it had been on her mind.

She truly wanted to understand him slowly and save him.

When Everett saw such a clear, beautiful, gentle, and firm gaze, his heart fluttered.

The scenario that he was afraid of did not happen. His moon used her own light to shine the path before him and chase away the darkness in his heart.

Everett felt his heart tighten. He gently sighed before he walked forward and held her in his arms. "Silly Ninian, you're really killing me." Ninian raised her hand and held his slim but sturdy waist. She rested her face on his warm and strong chest. "Baby, I hope you'll be more cheerful and confident," Ninian muttered. "You're the one I care about. You're the unique person in my heart. No matter what you do, I'll support and understand you," she added earnestly.

Everett remained silent for a while and answered in a hoarse voice, "Okay."

The resting lounge was warm, but it was not as peaceful outside.

Many actors were discussing and gossiping about Ninian being in Everett's resting lounge.

"Even makeup artists and stylists need to sanitize themselves before they enter Everett's resting lounge, but Ninian just walked in so openly. Mr. Barnes personally led her in too. I don't think their relationship is as simple as it seems."

"I already guessed it. Don't forget how our former female lead left the team."

"Ninian looks so innocent and adorable. I didn't expect her to be a scheming person. This is 'the Everett'! All the female celebrities in the entertainment industry want to be with him! She's just an unknown junior actress who recently joined the industry, yet she's gotten together with him! Amazing!"

“It’s not strange. She’s too pretty. If I were a man, my heart would flutter for her too. It’s just a shame that Paul stands no chance now. He has the intention, but she doesn’t have the interest. On top of that, she’s interested in a better man.”

“Shh! Lower your voice! Paul’s right there.”

At the side, Paul held his lunch box tightly. He nearly could not retain his warm smile.

Finally, he got up, walked to a corner, and made a call.

“Last time, you told me that you found some information about Ninian Winters. Send it to me. Perhaps we can work together.”

Madam Winters’s Fight For Her Children Chapter 1154

After Ninian and Everett had lunch, she took an afternoon nap in his lounge for a while.

Everett was working at the side, while she lay on his single bed. When she smelled the familiar cold fragrance . in his blanket, she could not help but blush.

Everett seemed oblivious. He was seriously typing on his keyboard and calmly seated.

The light from the laptop screen shone on his face. He was cold and white like jade and indifferent like the ice on the mountain, hence people dared not stare at him.

As if he sensed Ninian’s gaze, he looked over and raised his eyebrows. “What’s wrong? You can’t sleep?” he asked.

Ninian shook her head and secretly giggled. She noticed that whenever Everett looked at her, he would immediately become tender.

She could not help but giggle at this realization.

This time, Everett could not continue working. He put down his laptop, turned around, and looked at her with a teasing gaze. "Why? Do you want me to hug you and sleep together with you?"

Ninian was speechless.

She blushed even more and anxiously said, "No!"

As she spoke, she pulled the blanket over to cover her head. She was extremely shy.

Everett could not help but chuckle in a low voice. His eyes were filled with warmth, and he said, "Good girl, get some rest. You'll feel better in the afternoon."

Ninian hid under the blanket and nodded. She curled up and finally started to fall asleep.

Everett soon finished his work and sent the email to the assistant in the Craig family.

He put his laptop away, walked to the bedside, and sat down.

At this point, Ninian was already sleeping soundly. Her hair poked out from under the blanket, revealing her bright and fair forehead as well as exquisite and petite nose.

Her eyes were closed, and her breathing was light. Her long, black, and curly eyelashes formed small shadows under her eyelids.

Everett subconsciously breathed lightly. He leaned forward and gently kissed her forehead, while his eyes were full of contentment.

Right then, his phone rang softly. He took out his phone only after he observed Ninian's expression and realized that she had not woken up because of the noise.

He saw Zayn's message, reminding him that it was time for him to take his medication.

Everett put his phone down without bothering about it.

All those medications were useless. She was his only effective medicine.

He was confident that he would recover as long as she was by his side.

He would not sacrifice his love the same way Timothy Craig did. Time flew quickly

Someone later knocked on the door, snapping Everett out of his thoughts and waking Ninian up from her sleep.

"What's wrong? Are we going to film now?" Ninian got up. Her hair was messy, and her eyes were filled with innocence and confusion as she had just awakened.

Everett glanced at the time before he comforted her. "There are still fifteen minutes left. We're not in a rush."

Only then did Ninian sigh in relief.

Everett walked to the door, opened it, and saw Lana's nervous and anxious face.

“Ever–Everett!” Lana stammered. She nearly bit her own tongue. “I–I’m looking for Ninian. They’re about to film her scene.”

Everett’s face was not unpleasant. He even looked unexpectedly friendly. He nodded and said, “Got it. Wait for a moment.”

After he said that, he nodded politely and closed the door.

Lana looked completely shocked outside the door.

. “Oh, God! I swear that I’ve never seen Everett being so friendly aside from in the dramas!”

Who did not know that Everett was famous for being unfriendly?

If it were not for Ninian, she would not have dared to risk being given the cold shoulder by knocking on Everett’s room door.

Who would have expected that Everett would be so welcoming? It was really surprising and shocking!

A good–tempered Everett was more handsome! Lana had stars in her eyes and smiled like an obsessed fan too.
