

Chapter 185

“When Harold met with the car accident, Adina was also there, and only her blood could save Harold. Dad, don’t you think it’s all too much of a coincidence?” George slowly said.

His voice was deep and hoarse, and he did not look like a four-year-old kid.

Duke narrowed his eyes. “Are you suspecting Adina of intentionally causing this car accident?”

“She has a motive.” George pursed his lips and said, “Dad, you know the conflict between Mom and Adina.”

“She wouldn’t do that,” Duke said indifferently.

His subordinate had already reported the car accident to him.

It was indeed a planned car accident.

However, he did not know who was so bold to hurt his son.

But that person was not Adina.

“Dad, you haven’t investigated it. How can you be so sure that it’s not her?” George’s voice became colder. “What if your investigation actually points to Adina?” “She would never hurt Harold.” Duke looked up at him. “She saved your brother. You shouldn’t suspect her.”

George’s black eyes slowly turned dark.

It looked like Mom was right. Dad completely trusted Adina.

He had just brought up a reasonable suspicion, but his dad already seemed unhappy.

His dad trusted that woman too deeply. She might do something with his trust,

“Dad, before the truth comes to light, I wish that you won’t let Adina get close to Harold again

Halfway through George’s sentence, Harold, who had been sleeping, suddenly opened his eyes.

“George, what do you mean?” Harold glared at George angrily. “Aunt Adina is very nice to me. She treats me like her own son. She wouldn’t arrange this car accident! George, how can you accuse her indiscriminately?”

George smiled scornfully. “One person will never be nice to another person for no reason. She has conflicts with our mother. Haven’t you thought about her reasons for approaching you? Harold, don’t harm the Winters family because of your recklessness and stupidity.”

“So, do I look very stupid to you?”

Duke stood up. He gave off a strong imposing manner, and the temperature in the ward immediately plummeted.

George pursed his lips and clenched his fists tightly. He just wanted to make his judgment after he discovered the truth, but Dad and Harold trusted that woman unconditionally.

No matter what he said, it was meaningless. "Dad, I still have work to do. I'm going back to the office now," George said before he turned around and left.

As soon as he stepped out, Harold's eyes turned red. "Dad, don't believe George. Aunt Adina wouldn't hurt me. She wouldn't hurt me," he said as he sobbed.

"I know. Don't cry."

Duke sat by his bed and appeared calm.

Meanwhile, George collected himself for a long time before he finally looked calm and aloof again.

He turned around and ordered his assistant behind him, "Investigate LaStar Technology Corporation."

Liam frowned. "Since when did this company exist in Sea City?"

George looked down and sneered.

If he had not helped his dad check his documents, he would not know that the woman was already connected to Winters Corporation. She was using a work opportunity to enter Winters Corporation.
