

My Baby's Daddy Chapter 1286

"There's something I want to tell you, Mom."

Charlotte took a sip of her tea. "Really? Why did you have to wait until she's gone to bring that up?" Oh, finally. He's bringing this up.

"Please stop inviting Miss Liamson over, Mom. I have someone I like," he said.

Charlotte looked at him in surprise. "Really? Who's the lady who caught your eye?"

"I'll introduce her to you guys in time."

Oh, he's finally bringing a girl home for dinner. Looks like the wedding's coming soon. She nodded. "I'll be waiting then. I'll see to Miss Liamson in time."

Ren nodded. "Sure. I'll be going back then."

"I wanna see her as soon as possible. It'd be best if you can have your own kid next year," Charlotte told Ren as he left the room.

Sophie was going to see Scarlet, but she ran into Angela, who was also making her way to where Scarlet was to spend some time with her, in the corridor. Even before they talked, tension was already rising in the air.

"Stop wasting your time on Ren, Miss Liamson. I heard what you told Ruka today. Back off if you know what's good for you," Angela warned.

Sophie held her anger back. She tried to be as nice as she could, and she said, "You took it the wrong way, Angela. It was for their own good. Yeah, they're not related by blood, but Ren's in a sensitive position. He can't afford to get hit by any scandals. The election is just around the corner. If someone finds out he's in love with his sister's goddaughter, it'd cause a whole slew of problems."

"We don't need any outsiders to tell us what to do. Mind your own business, Miss Liamson," Angela retorted. She knew Sophie's true colors, and it disgusted her.

"Oh, don't call me an outsider just yet. Someday, I might be your aunt," Sophie said confidently.

Sophie's chest was heaving in anger. Another servant then came for her. "Miss Liamson, Madam Charlotte is in the tea room. She wants to see you."

Sophie quickly turned around. Trying to befriend anyone in this household was a waste of time. She would rather make Charlotte happy, since she was the one calling all the shots here.

Charlotte was having tea in the tea room. She was looking really delighted. What Ren told her made her feel great relief, though she was a little unhappy that Ren didn't tell her soon. I wouldn't have asked Sophie over otherwise.

Sophie came into the room and happily took the seat beside Charlotte. "Hi, Charlotte. The servant said you wanted to see me."

"Ah, Sophie. There you are. Here's a gift for you. It's been great talking to you. Do visit me often, alright?" Charlotte gave her a gift while looking at Sophie affectionately.

Sophie was a smart woman. The gift and what Charlotte said were bad signs. Her heart sank. So the blind date's over? She's giving me up? Why? Did Angela do something again?

"I can't take this, Charlotte. It's great enough that I get to talk to you." She pushed the gift back into Charlotte's hand while smiling!

"You're a nice girl, Sophie. I like you very much, but Ren told me that he has someone he likes now. I don't want you to waste your time on him anymore. You're a brilliant girl. You'll find a nice guy to marry. Sorry for taking up your time." Charlotte sounded apologetic.

Sophie looked down. She was smiling, but her eyes were filled with disappointment. I see. So I didn't make the cut. Is this the end?

All of a sudden, she realized something. She sneered quietly. He has someone he likes?

She looked at Charlotte, "Charlotte, may I know who's the lady he likes? Maybe I know her."

Charlotte smiled at her, and she sighed. "He's keeping her under wraps. Wonder what's the mystery."

A hint of evil glinted in Sophie's eyes. He's not being mysterious. He's just too scared to tell you guys who he likes. Oh, so he's going to toss his future away and reveal his sordid relationship with Ruka, huh? He'd probably reveal it if he wasn't the vice president, but since he's still the VP, he needs to keep his image intact.

"There's something I really want to tell you, but it might upset you, Charlotte." Sophie bit her lip and acted like she was in a dilemma.

"What is it? Tell me," Charlotte asked curiously. She was in a good mood today.

"So I was looking for Ren before lunch." She blinked innocently. The lady was still keeping up the act. "I did find him, but... but I saw..."

"What did you see?" Charlotte's interest was piqued.

"I saw Ruka and Ren together in the study. I didn't see what they were doing inside, but they came out holding hands. Ruka was the one who held Ren's hand first, but that can't be real. I must have been seeing things. She can't be dating Ren. Scarlet's her godmother."

Charlotte's cup fell and shattered into pieces. The old lady looked furious. She asked with a trembling voice, "What did you say? Are they dating?"

Sophie looked horrified. She quickly shook her head. "No, that's not what I said. I said I saw her holding Ren's hand, but I don't know if she's doing anything else."

"Unbelievable!" Charlotte slammed the table. She was just going to get up, but then dizziness washed over her, and she slumped down onto the couch.

Shocked, Sophie stood up. She shouted, "Charlotte fainted! Somebody, come!"

Two servants made a quick dash into the room. One of them called the hospital, while the other summoned the family physician.

Charlotte was deathly pale. The sight of it made Sophie gulp. Fear was finally kicking in. She had no idea what she said would make Charlotte faint, but then she realized that the lady was almost eighty. Of course telling her anything shocking would do a number on her.

Scarlet came right away. Sophie quickly picked up her bag and tried to leave. Angela was hurrying over, so she bumped into her.

She noticed the nervous look Sophie was giving her. Wait. She might have something to do with this. Angela grabbed her by the collar. "What did you tell her?"

"N-Nothing. Let me go. I have to go." She escaped Angela's grasp and left in a hurry.

Angela heaved a sigh. Great. She must have told her about that. I can't believe an outsider broke the news to Charlotte first.

Scarlet and Richard were right beside Charlotte. They massaged her temples and wrists, but she still didn't regain consciousness. Harold was asleep from drinking too much, so Scarlet told everyone not to wake him.

The ambulance had arrived. Richard picked Charlotte up and quickly went into it. The ambulance quickly made for the hospital, while Richard and Angela were following it in a car.

Scarlet picked her phone up and called Ren.

"What is it, Scarlet?"

"Mom fainted. We're on our way to the hospital."

"What happened to her?"

"I don't know. She just fainted. Probably got some shock. We're on our way to the hospital now. Don't worry. I'm just informing you about this."

"I'll be right there."

"Sure. You come too." Mom's not exactly young anymore. We need to be prepared for anything

Angela hesitated for a while, then she told Richard about how Sophie looked all nervous and left in a hurry.

"So you're saying Grandma fainted because she told her about that on purpose?" He frowned. Anger was welling up in Richard.

"Probably. She hates it that Ren likes Ruka, and she just threatened Ruka in the afternoon. Not to mention she left in a real hurry. She must have something to do with this," she guessed.

"This is why Uncle Ren didn't tell them about this. They're too old to get another shock of their lives. That's also why he didn't tell anyone he's given up the election, because this might happen."

"But Ren loves his parents. What should they do now? He and Ruka are in for a rough ride." Angela sighed. She was worried for them as well.

At the same time, Ruka and her parents had arrived home. Right after they went inside, Claire looked at Ruka solemnly. "Ruka, come with me."

Robert was a little tipsy. He lay down on the couch, still oblivious to the fact that his wife was looking a bit too solemn.

Ruka went with her mother, and Claire closed the door. Ruka's heart skipped a beat. She looked at her mother nervously. The tension in the air was almost suffocating her. She was not used to seeing her gentle mother being this solemn.

"Are you trying to say something, Mom?" Ruka asked.

Claire wanted to say something, but she started crying angrily before she could. The emotions she held back finally broke out and her chest heaved.
