

I'm A Quadrillionaire

Chapter 324

Celia returned to the villa alone.

When Jon and his wife saw that David did not return, they asked Celia and learned that David had gone to look for Hanley.

It made the two of them panic.

However, there was nothing they could do even if they panicked. They were no match for Capital city's first-rate aristocratic families like the Chese family.

They could only wait anxiously and ask Celia to keep calling David.

She made two calls in a row, but no one answered. The phone was even turned off in the end.

David turned on his cell phone on the way home and saw several missed calls from Celia.

He called back to tell Celia that he did not find Hanley and would be back soon.

Celia and her family were also relieved.

After hanging up on Celia, David called Paul again.

Paul's voice soon came.

"Mr. Lidell!"

"Paul, I have something to ask you!" David said.

"Please go ahead, Mr. Lidell!"

"Why do you think those foreign mercenaries go all out for?"

Paul froze, confused why David would ask a question like that, but he still answered, "Most people do it for profit, but a few do it for fame."

"Then I'll give you a mission!" David said sternly.

"Please go ahead, Mr. Lidell!"

"I want you to return to where you fought, recruit stray mercenaries, and help me form a regiment of mercenaries called Red Flame. Money is not a problem. I'll pay you whatever amount you need."

"Mr. Lidell, do you want to assemble the Red Flame Mercenary Group?"

"That's right!"

"Mr. Lidell, I'm wondering what you're trying to do with the group? Money can indeed recruit many people, but some of the best players aren't all about the money. It's because many of them don't lack money. What they need is fame! Moreover, mercenary units built in a short time have little loyalty and unity."

"If you can recruit with money, use money. For those you can't, tell them we're attacking Dark Cape and taking down Bloodthirsty Mercenaries a month after they join Red Flame. Once we take down Bloodthirsty, they'll make a name for themselves by taking Bloodthirsty's place as the third-largest mercenary in the global underworld, after which loyalty and unity will increase."

'What?'

Paul felt dizzy when he heard what David said.

As a mercenary who had been abroad for more than ten years, he knew about Bloodthirsty Mercenaries that occupied Dark Cape.

It was a legend in the mercenary world.

The third most powerful mercenary in the global underworld.

They were powerful.

It was no exaggeration to say that the top three mercenary units in the mercenary world were legendary. They were even capable of destroying a small country.

However, David said they were going to attack Dark Cape and destroy Bloodthirsty Mercenaries.

Even though David's financial power and strength impressed him, he still thought that David had no chance to kill Bloodthirsty Mercenaries.

Bloodthirsty Mercenaries not only had advanced weapons and equipment but also occupied Dark Cape, which had a unique geographical location that was easy to defend and hard to attack.

Most importantly, the leader of Bloodthirsty Mercenaries, Tyrant, was recognized as the best master in Dragon Rank.

The person was not only extremely strong but also brutal. He would torture his enemies to death in countless ways.

It was how he got the name Tyrant.

The expression of anyone in the mercenary world would change at the mere mention of him.

He was not something you could handle with numbers alone!
