

When His Eyes Opened

Chapter 2458

Chapter 2458

Gloria was free. In her own way, she got rid of the shackles of pain.

The moment Mrs. Wiens saw her daughter's body, she fainted from crying.

The Wiens family was in a mess, and soon calmed down.

"It's fine if she dies. I won't cause trouble for me!" Mr. Wiens said indifferently, "There is no need for a funeral, and there is no need to say anything about her. Just cremate her and bury her."

Mr. Wiens left the funeral to his son, and then left the Wiens family.

After her father left, Giselle held back the tears and shed them in a rush.

"Brother, can you give me my sister's mobile phone as a souvenir?" Giselle begged her brother, "I'm so uncomfortable, if I don't give my sister a hairpin, nothing will happen to my sister..."

"She wants to die, She can die anyway! If you don't give her a hairpin, she can die too!" Her brother returned to his room, took out Gloria's mobile phone, and handed it to the younger sister, "I threw away her mobile phone sim card, and this mobile phone will be given to you!"

After Giselle got her sister's mobile phone, she went back to her room with red eyes.

Aryadelle.

At the Tate Industries's annual meeting, Elliot was invited to deliver a speech.

After Elliot took the stage, everyone applauded immediately.

"Mom, aren't you the boss of the Tate Industries now? Why did you let Dad go up?" Layla asked in a low voice beside her.

"Mom doesn't like to speak on stage." Avery explained, "Mom will be nervous. But your father won't."

"Why isn't Dad nervous? He will cry, so he must be nervous too! It's just that he has a thicker skin." Layla chuckled, "Mom, when will Uncle Eric come?"

Avery took out her phone, wanted to see if Eric had sent a message. As a result, a new email was seen.

"Your uncle Eric didn't send a message, so he should be here on time." Avery said, and clicked on the mailbox, "He said he would come at eight o'clock, and now it is seven o'clock, and he will be here in an hour."

"Oh well!" Layla said, looking intently at the stage.

Avery clicked on the new email, and when she saw that it was from a stranger, her brows frowned.

Could this be spam?

However, spam generally did not send audio to people. Avery stared at the audio attached, feeling a little confused.

What was this audio? Could it be a virus?

After Elliot's speech ended, there was thunderous applause all around, but Avery didn't notice it.

Soon, Elliot walked over to her and sat down.

"What are you looking at? Are you looking so seriously? You didn't even applaud me." Elliot moved closer to Avery and looked at the screen of her phone.

"Are you finished?" Avery came back to his senses and said blushing, "I applauded you when you came on stage."

"What is this?" Elliot pointed to her phone screen.

"An email from a stranger. I suspected it was spam, but my mailbox was not intercepted. Nothing was said in the email, only an audio file. I was thinking whether to click on it to listen." Avery generously handed the phone to Elliot,

"Do you think it might be a virus?”

Elliot took her phone over and took a look.

“If it’s a virus, your phone should alert you. Didn’t you install anti-virus software?” Seeing that she was curious about the audio,

Elliot clicked on it.

“Hey, turn down the volume of my phone, don’t make any weird sounds.” Avery took her phone over, turned down the volume, and put the phone to her ear, trying to hear the audio clearly.
