They each also had the support of some of the core members of the family.

This was not one-sided.

The patriarch of the family, Delmont, was also a little undecided.

This decision was related to the path the family would take in the future.

Hence, he had to be careful.

Moreover, several elders in the family made it clear that they were old and out of touch with society, so they would no longer be involved in any family affairs.

Now, the core of the family could only discuss and decide on their own.

"Raymond, tell me what you think," Delmont said, looking at Raymond, the number one among the younger generation of the King family.

When Raymond heard Delmont calling him, he stood up and said, "Grandfather, I think we can merge the opinions of Uncle Cameron and Uncle Augustus. Since Somerland wants people, then we will send some of the people with ordinary strengths to preserve the strength of the family as much as possible. Then, we can join other powerful forces depending on the situation. If Somerland has hidden means, then it's best if it can withstand the probing of the major forces led by the Haran family. We contribute the most among all the hidden forces, so they can't fault us. If Somerland really reaches the point of being destroyed, we will withdraw in a timely fashion and find another way. With the strength of the King family, we will have absolutely no problem protecting ourselves if we unite with several powerful families or sects."

"Yes, very good. What Raymond said is preferable. Before the situation is completely clear, it is not advisable to place too many bets. If we win, it will certainly benefit the King family, but if we lose, the King family's foundation dating thousands of years will also be affected," Delmont said as he nodded.

During this critical period, Delmont was reluctant to be too radical.

With the idea of taking it easy and keeping his nose clean, he reckoned it would be fine as long as he protected the millennium foundation of the King family during this turbulent period.

The core of the King family present all expressed their agreement.

This was indeed a fair compromise.

They would not offend Somerland completely and they could even pull away depending on the situation.

Neither Augustus nor Cameron objected.

Apparently, they also felt that it was somewhat impossible for the family to go with their own opinion.

Hence, they would accept a compromise that everyone could accept.

Both were strong contenders to become the patriarch of this generation.

Taking one's opinion would embarrass the other.

At this critical time, the family obviously would not do this.

The reason why Delmont was still the patriarch of the family was that he was afraid that a new patriarch would divide the family because both Augustus and Cameron each had supporters of their own.

They could only wait until the situation was stable before considering another patriarch.

Just as Delmont was about to make a decision, a crisp female voice suddenly sounded in the hall.

“Grandfather, I have something to say! ”

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 772

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 772

The core of the King family present looked at the source of the voice.

The person who spoke was Selena, the daughter favored by God among the younger generation of the King family.

She had won the love of the elders of the family.

Selena was thinking about how to convince the family to fully support Somerland.

She promised David that she would not expose David's strength.

However, she did not want the family to miss this opportunity to befriend David.

Whether or not David was the borderline mythical one, she did not know.

However, she could be sure that David was definitely the key to dealing with the catastrophe in the future.

He was a late God Ranker in his early twenties.

What concept was this?

The strongest combat power of the King family was only a late God Ranker, and the youngest among them was her grandfather Delmont.

He was now over eighty years old.

It was said that he broke through to the late God Rank more than ten years ago.

He only broke through the late God Rank at the age of 70, which was already very outstanding in the family history.

David was only in his early twenties and had already reached the strength of a late God Ranker.

Selena felt that David was born to deal with the impending catastrophe.

More importantly, David was now just showing the strength of the late God Ranker.

Who knew where the true limit of his strength lay?

Based on Selena's intuition, she felt that David had something to hide, but at the same time, it felt so incredible.

The reason was that if David's exposed strength was one level higher, then he would be the supreme peak God Rank powerhouse.

This was the ultimate combat power that only the five major forces in the world had.

The King family, a family with thousands of years of history, did not have one to this day.

She was almost certain that Somerland was playing a huge game.

The weakness they were showing now was just to confuse the world.

This was the perfect time to curry favors with Somerland and David.

There was only one chance.

Once missed, it would be too late to regret later.

Therefore, Selena thought about it and said firmly, " Grandfather, I hope that the family will spare no effort to support the Somerland Discipline Team, support David, and help Somerland stabilize the situation in the country. Believe me, the benefits the family will get in the end will be beyond your imagination. This is an opportunity for our family to take off again, so it must not be missed."

After Selena said this, all the cores of the King family at the scene were shocked, including her father, Augustus.

Spare no effort to fully support Somerland.

This would completely bind the King family and Somerland together. Once Somerland could not take it anymore, the King family would also be greatly implicated.

It might even ruin the King family's foundation that lasted thousands of years.

No matter how powerful the King family was, it could not be the opponent of any of the other four major forces in the world.

It was because they all had peak God Rankers who were their decision-makers, but the King family did not.

This would be a huge gamble.

Brothers Augustus and Cameron had been arguing despite their different views, but they did not dare to risk the whole family on a huge gamble as Selena did.

It would be insane to do so.

If they were careless, the entire King family would be doomed.

Delmont stared blankly at Selena.
