I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 926

"I called everyone here today to discuss some things. During this time, I believe that everyone has learned about the situation in the Milky Way from the Internet. The Earth is about to enter the interstellar era, but everyone can rest assured that the Earth will be very safe as long as I am here. No one will dare to do anything to the Earth, but I hope everyone can manage their own people and maintain order within the Earth," David looked at the heads of the forces in Somerland and said.

"Don't worry, Mr. David! We will do our best to maintain the order of the Earth, and we will never cause any trouble for you. You can deal with the aliens without worries."

"Yes, Mr. David, don't worry. We won't cause any trouble for you."

All heads of forces immediately expressed their opinions.

"That's good! There's another reason why I called you here. I got something called genetic drugs from the alien's spaceship. They're produced by the Stella Civilization Galaxy. As for the effect, you can search that up on the Internet, so I believe you will understand what it does soon enough. I will wait for you to do so."

After David finished speaking, he took out his mobile phone and signaled that everyone could use their phones to log on to the Internet to look this up.

When everyone heard that, they took out their phones and started searching.

Gradually, everyone's eyes became brighter, and their expressions became more and more excited.

They quickly learned the power of genetic drugs.

After a few minutes, David saw everything putting their phones down before looking at him in surprise.

He opened his mouth again and said, "Have you read everything? You should all understand the function of genetic drugs now, so I don't need to explain it anymore. I asked you to come today because I will distribute some genetic drugs to everyone. You can take them back and pick some talented people to consume them."

"Thank you, Mr. David!"

“Thank you, Mr. David!”

“Thank you, Mr. David!”

Everyone present stood up and bowed to David.

David had completely won them over with what he did.

He was sharing such precious things with them.

No wonder David had achieved so much.

None of them could compare to David’s generosity.

If they had such precious genetic drugs, they would hide them and use them secretly to improve their strength.

They would never take them out and share them with others.

“I can distribute genetic drugs to you, and I won’t interfere with how you use them, but I hope that when you choose who to give the drugs to, you will first consider their character. If their character is not good enough, you can’t give them the drugs no matter how strong they are. If not, the stronger these people are, the more detrimental they will become to the Earth.”

“We understand! Please rest assured, Mr. David, we will do as you ordered,” someone answered.

Others followed suit, indicating that they would obey David’s orders.

“Since this is the case, then I won’t say anything anymore. The distribution of genetic drugs is based on the contribution of each force. I hope that everyone will agree to this. The more you contribute, the more you get, and the more you work, the more you get. This is the rule.”

As soon as David said this, some were happy while others were glum.

However, even if they were dissatisfied, they would not dare to raise objections. Of course, they would also not dare to harbor any resentment

They could only secretly regret not doing their best in the first place.

Then, David took out a piece of paper.

The paper recorded the number of genetic drugs assigned to each family, which Julia allocated based on each family's contributions.

"100 for the king family."

Delmont stood up happily and said, "Thank you, Mr. David."

"50 for the Krums." Ted also stood up and said respectfully, "Thank you, Mr. David."

The ones who were called first got more, while the ones who were called last got less.

However, even the last one got 10.

After the last name was read, more than 100 forces in Somerland, big or small, got their allocation of drugs.

More than 4000 genetic drugs were thus distributed.
