A huge meteorite floated in the void and moved forward slowly in an empty area somewhere in the Milky Way.

On top of the meteorite , there was a luxurious loft, and on top of the loft were three shiny words.

The Meteor Chamber.

This was the Meteor Chamber that claimed to be able to undertake anything within the scope of the Milky Way as long as the price was sufficient.

The enormous Meteor Chamber was not as crowded as everyone thought.

It was rather quiet, and there was hardly any sound.

The entire Meteor Chamber was eerily silent.

It was hard to believe that an entity that had given all the forces in the Milky Way huge headaches, even the Milky Way Empire, was located in this speck in the distant background.

The inside of the huge Meteor Chamber was divided into countless small rooms measuring only two or three square meters each.

There was a figure in each room, operating the equipment in the room, replying to all the Milky Way people making deals with the Meteor Chamber.

Anyone who saw this scene would be shocked because these figures were not humans consisting flesh and blood at all. Instead, they were robots.

They were constantly answering questions from the humans in the Milky Way, and they did not look like robots at all. Instead, they were like human beings who had their own ideas and were each very knowledgeable.

David traded with the staff of the Meteor Chamber, constantly spending money to acquire more knowledge.

If he knew that the person who traded with him was a robot, he would surely be shocked. This was because the 'person' he chatted with knew almost anything David asked about the Milky Way.

However, when there were some major issues involved, the other party would need to report to their higher-ups since they had no authority, for example, when it came to information on core privacy issues about the Royal Family of the Milky Way Empire.

David was so bored that he directly asked the Meteor Chamber how many illegitimate children the emperor of the Milky Way Empire had. Of course, there was some information he could not obtain with money.

For example, David wanted to know that since the Milky Way was a level 3 civilization, so what were the level 4,5,6 civilizations called? How far were they from the Milky Way, and how advanced was their technology?

David would need to pay way more than Galaxy Dollars for this information, so David did not waste time pursuing this information.

He now understood the Tuffin family's situation thoroughly.

This also gave him a certain mental preparation for dealing with the Tuffin family in the future.

The Meteor Chamber had existed for a long time.

Strictly speaking, they were not actually a local power in the Milky Way.

Instead, they suddenly appeared in the Milky Way many years ago.

At that time, its sudden appearance caused a bloody storm. It was like a god and could do anything for you if you paid them enough.

This also attracted the attention of many forces in the Milky Way at that time.

Not many people initially believed it, but as one after another of their commissions became a reality, everyone started to pay attention to them.

In the end, all the major forces in the Milky Way, including the Milky Way Empire, joined forces to eliminate this entity that could threaten their status.

However, the result was dismal.

Nobody knew what happened during that battle.

They only knew that all participating forces in the Milky Way had suffered heavy losses, but the Meteor Chamber remained to this day.

However, they would need to pay very high prices to hire the Meteor Chamber, especially the ones who would commission them to murder someone.

Basically, it was difficult for the client to meet the requirements of the Meteor Chamber.

For example, David needed to give them 1kg of Nine Turning Star Iron if he wanted them to kill Grandmaster Tuffin.

This was something that had never been seen before in the entire Milky Way.

Therefore, how would David have it?

Despite everything, the Meteor Chamber still stood proudly in the Milky Way.

This was an undeniable truth.

Since that battle, all forces in the Milky Way also acquiesced to the Meteor Chamber's existence.

No one had ever proposed to destroy this entity ever again.

Knock knock knock! David's discussion with the Meteor Chamber only stopped when he heard knocking on his door.

He stood up and looked at the time.

One night had passed without him knowing.

David looked at the system panel.

(Host: David Lidell

After a whole night of hard work, it had finally paid off.

David spent 59 billion Galaxy Dollars and got 590 lavish points.

Although it was not enough to raise his physique to Celestial Rank, it was not that far off.

He should be there after another night of hard work.

Moreover, he also learned a lot about the inner workings of the Milky Way, especially about the Tuffin family.

David knew almost everything he could think of about different generations of the Tuffin family, including their ancestors.

However, he already knew almost everything he needed to know, so what should he ask tonight?

The Meteor Chamber was pretty bad*ss, but at the same time, it was strange.

David had to ask specific questions, and then they would set a price based on the importance of the message and then answer it after payment.

They would not answer at all if David asked them a broad question.

For example, David had to ask one question about the Tuffin family at a time.

He could not say that he wanted to know everything about the Tuffin family as this was considered unacceptable.

Knock knock knock!

Someone knocked on his door again.

David went into the courtyard and opened the door.

Mia was standing prettily outside the door.

“What’s wrong, Mia?” David asked.

“What? Can’t I chat with you because I’m bored?” Mia said with a smile.

If she had just met David, she would never have dared to talk to David like that.

She had been with David every day for half a month, so Mia still had a certain understanding of David.

In reality, after getting acquainted, David became pretty easy-going, and he was not as unapproachable as he seemed in the beginning.

“You’re hilarious, Mia. Come in,” David moved to the side and invited Mia inside.

After Mia entered the courtyard, she went into the living room to sit down with David.

After that, David poured a cup of tea for Mia.

“Thank you,” Mia said after taking the cup.

David also poured some for himself. Then, he sat down and started drinking. Back then, he did not like tea.

However, he gradually learned to like it. Drinking tea would calm him down.

“Master David, I came here to talk to you about some worldly wisdom,” Mia said. “Huh? Worldly wisdom? What do you mean?” David asked curiously.

Mia rephrased her sentence and said indirectly, “Hmm, how should I say this? You don’t need to fight Master Fergus and Burke the moment you meet them, making the situation difficult for everyone. It won’t be good for everybody.” Immediately, David understood why Mia was here.

“Mia, you want to tell me that I shouldn’t disrespect them as soon as I meet them, right? After all, this is someone else’s territory, and I will be the one losing out in the end,” David said with a smile.

Mia was stunned for a moment and said a little embarrassedly, “So you understand, Master David.”

“Why would I not know? Mia, do you really think I was out of touch with society after spending many years exploring outside?” “Then why did you do that? Do you know who Master Fergus is?”

“Who is he?”

“His last name is Callisto, and everyone calls him Master Fergus. I told you about eight prominent families of the Milky Way Empire, right? You should be able to guess who he is.”

“You mean the Callisto family that’s ranked second among the eight prominent families of the Milky Way Empire?” “Exactly! And he’s very outstanding among the direct descendants of the Callisto family, and he will have the opportunity to compete for the position of the Callisto family’s head in the future.”

“Is he that amazing?”

“So, Master David, offending him won’t do you any good. If you think it through, I can help you to mediate with him. I have a pretty good relationship with him,” Mia looked at David expectantly.

David was speechless.

‘Did I offend him?’

‘It was him who displayed the murderous intent when we first met and wanted to kill me, okay?’

And it’s all because of you that Fergus wants to kill me.’

As for what Mia said about taking him to reconcile with Fergus, she better not! If they did that, Fergus might directly try to kill David out of anger.

By then, David would surely kill Fergus due to him being unable to hold himself back.

‘Great, I haven’t settled the matter with the Tuffin family, and now here comes the Callisto family,’ David thought.

‘Gosh, please stop making trouble for me.’

Mia was the only one who did not know the reason behind all this.

“Mia, forget it,” David rejected. “Why? Master David, Master Fergus’s background is not weak, and you just returned to the core. This will be detrimental to your future development . Even if you're not scared of him, it's better to have a friend than an enemy, right?" Mia advised.

She was truly considerate of David.

She did not want David to offend such a big shot.

If Fergus were lucky enough to become the Callisto family's head, he would be a formidable force even toward the Milky Way Empire.

There was no advantage to offending this kind of person with great potential.

Also, Mia did not think that the force behind David could fight with the Callisto family.

After all, the Callisto family was ranked second among the eight prominent families.

Plus, they were miles apart compared to the Tuffin family, a family that was about to lose their position among the eight prominent families. "Um, well... Because... I don't like Fergus. Even though he looks like a noble on the surface , he's sinister and petty on the inside. Don't ask me how I know. Anyway, I just don't want to reconcile with him, and I don't want anything to do with him," David said casually.

Even though he said this to make Mia forget about this, what he said went straight to Mia's heart.

Fergus had been pursuing her publicly and secretly, but she had never responded to him.

This was because she felt Fergus was too possessive and she often felt oppressed when she was with him.

This was a woman's intuition, and it was usually very accurate.

She believed him now that David had hit the nail on the head.

"Master David, do you genuinely think Master Fergus is someone like that?" Mia asked.

"Yeah, but this is just my gut feeling. You can choose not to believe me, but I will trust my gut," David answered.

"I believe you, Master David , but you must go with me even if it's just to apologize to him. If not, Master Fergus will never forgive you once he gets the authority."

“Mia, you’re too naive. Even if I kneel in front of Fergus, a person like him will never forgive me. Plus, I’m not scared of him, so why would I go and seek forgiveness? No matter what he does, I’ll just accept it,” David said nonchalantly. Mia stopped insisting when she heard David say that.

The main thing was that Mia felt David was very reasonable . Perhaps this was what the quote ‘Love me, love my dog’ meant.

The news that Mia went looking for David early in the morning was immediately passed on to Fergus.

Smash!

Fergus directly smashed the cup in his hand.

“David is seriously pushing his luck. How dare he touch my woman? Does he want to die?” Fergus roared.

He had been eying Mia for a long time and had already regarded Mia as his own.

Now, this punk who appeared out of nowhere was going to steal from him?

Plus, he was the one who indirectly caused this.

How would he not feel mad?

If he had not arranged for the space pirates to intercept Mia, how would David get the chance to save her?

The two would not even get a chance to know each other at all.

“Master Fergus, please calm down. Until we find out who David is, we should hold back. Now is the most critical moment for you to compete for the head of the younger generation of the Callisto family. There cannot be any accidents,” Heathcliffe persuaded him.

“Heathcliffe, what kind of identity do you think David has? Burke has always been stubborn and intractable, so there are not many people who can make him restrain himself publicly.”

“I can’t figure this out either. I haven’t heard of a bigshot named Lidell in the Milky Way’s vicinity. Of course, it’s not impossible that they are hiding in the dark. After all, the Milky Way is too large. Master Fergus, you can go to Burke to find out. He should know something about this.”

Fergus thought for a while and decided to listen to Heathcliffe’s advice and go to Burke.

He was at a critical period right now.

Fergus still knew how to prioritize between a woman and being the head of the younger generation of the Callisto family.

The most important thing for him now was to get the position of the head of the younger generation of the Callisto family.

After he married the daughter of the Milky Way Empire’s minister, his odds of success would be much greater with the latter’s support.

Fergus took Heathcliffe to the palace where Burke lived and found Burke.

“I wonder why you’re looking for me, Master Fergus,” Burke said, holding a beautiful and enchanting woman in each arm.

“Burke, I won’t beat around the bush with you. Who is David? Please tell me,” Fergus said, going straight to the point.

“How would I know? This is the first time I have met this David person. If you want to know David’s identity, you should ask the Dance Fairy. Why did you come here?”

“Burke, a straightforward person does not resort to insinuations. Everyone knows your temperament. If you act soft toward David in front of so many people, you must know something, so don’t hide it anymore.”

“Master Fergus, you misunderstood. I didn’t know anything. Instead, I’m just doing that for the sake of the Dance Fairy. After all, I invited Dance Fairy, and David saved her life. If I fight with David, the Dance Fairy will definitely get implicated. Tell me, what should I do then? I told everyone that the Dance Fairy will be dancing at my banquet a few days later. I don't want to be the laughing stock of the galaxy, so I just endured it for the time being," Burke explained.

Of course, he would not tell Fergus the truth.

He even wished the two of them would fight because of Mia so he could see who was the more powerful one.

It would sure be a sight to behold.

Fergus did not speak. Instead, he stared at Burke for a long time.

He was judging whether Burke was telling the truth.

"A brat who appeared all of a sudden dared to disrespect you, Burke Lutgen, and he's even doing it on your Planet Boundless. Can you genuinely swallow this grievance?" Fergus asked.

"How is that possible? I'm only doing it for the time being. After the banquet, I'll show that kid the consequences of offending me. However, you also seem to be at odds with him, right? Everyone knows you fancy the Dance Fairy, so David is slapping you in the face by doing this," Burke ruminated. "Since you know David is our common enemy, why don't we work together?" Fergus asked.

"No! You said David is a brat that appeared out of nowhere. If others find out you're acting against someone like this and even asked for my help, wouldn't I look very bad? If you can endure this and not do anything, I'll naturally take action against him after the banquet," Burke rejected. He said this not because he wanted to take action against David. Instead, he wanted Fergus to think that he would do something as long as Fergus stayed put.

Burke knew that despite looking like a nobleman, Fergus was actually very narrow-minded.
