I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 1005

She never played any music anymore, but there were still legends about her appearing all the time.

The music she played at the state banquet was also regarded as a masterpiece by the galaxy.

No one could threaten her position as the head of the four fairies.

This was the princess of the Milky Way Empire, Astrid Barlowe; a mysterious woman loved by thousands in the Milky Way Empire.

When she was only seventeen years old, she amazed the world as soon as she appeared.

1 Now that eight years had passed, Princess Astrid was twenty-five years old.

She turned into a twenty-five-year-old woman in full bloom from a young girl at the budding age of seventeen.

L Once she reappeared again, everyone firmly believed she would shock the world again.

Burke felt as if he had been given a shot of adrenaline.

He had to definitely seize this opportunity.

"Father, why did Her Royal Highness appear near the Boundless Region?" asked Burke after he had calmed down.

"Her Royal Highness snuck out a year ago.

She left a letter saying that she wanted to go out and see the outside world.

She asked the emperor not to worry as she would be back soon," Ramos replied.

"Even if Her Royal Highness is near the Boundless Region, it's not likely to cause the annihilation of the Lutgen family, right? There must be other reasons." "Princess Astrid took two maids with her when she left, and they contacted the emperor immediately after they left.

The emperor was afraid the princess would be unsafe outside, so he sent a group of palace guards to protect her secretly.

The emperor was afraid the princess would be unsafe outside, so he sent a group of palace guards to protect her secretly.

It was fine at first.

As long as Her Royal Highness has had enough fun, she would go back, but there had been an accident recently."

"What accident?" Burke asked curiously.

"The emperor received news that a group of Sangruil Sinners, who had disappeared for a long time, suddenly appeared near Planet Boundless.

They must be targeting Her Royal Highness.

They want to capture the princess to threaten the emperor.

As for how they got the news, no one knows.

Perhaps some of them have infiltrated the higher-ups of the empire.

Her Royal Highness is the emperor's only daughter, and she must not fall into the hands of Sangruil Sinners.

Otherwise, we will be in a difficult position.

Thus, the mission this time is very challenging.

No matter what, we have to keep Her Royal Highness safe."

'The Sangruil Sinners!' Burke exclaimed inwardly.

The Sangruil Sinners had disappeared for hundreds of years.

Thousands of years ago, the Milky Way was not the way it was now, and the Milky Way Empire did not wield absolute power.

Back then, another force could fight the Milky Way Empire, Sangruil.

Aside from Sangruil, countless small forces and countries also existed.

The Milky Way Empire and Sangruil were like fire and water.

They were constantly at war, and the entire Milky Way was constantly under the blanket of war.

In the end, after more than a thousand years of battle, the emperor of the Milky Way Empire, the current emperor's grandfather, killed the king of Sangruil back then while sustaining severe injuries himself.

After the king of Sangruil died, Sangruil fell apart, and finally, they lost the war.

After Sangruil lost, the other small countries were no longer the Milky Way Empire's enemies.

In the end, they surrendered and paid allegiance to the empire.

Many of the forces in the Milky Way Empire were formed by small countries that paid allegiance to the empire.

Even though Sangruil lost the war, many of their people survived.

Those people were called Sangruil Sinners.

They always sought to restore the glory of Sangruil, so they were constantly attacking and seeking revenge against the empire in secret.

There were a lot of them, and they were very powerful.

At the same time, they would not go head-on with the empire.

Instead, they would only launch sneak attacks in the dark.

Because of this, the empire could not eliminate all of them.

This situation lasted until centuries ago.

The Sangruil Sinners disappeared overnight, and they never showed up again.

At that time, the current emperor of the Milky Way Empire was taking over the throne, so everyone thought the emperor had acted to eliminate all of the Sangruil Sinners.

However, they did not expect the Sangruil Sinners to appear now.

When Burke learned that the Sangruil Sinners had appeared near Boundless Region, he felt sick. Although he had not experienced that era himself, the Lutgen family had a complete record of the horrors committed by the Sangruil Sinners.

These people were not only powerful, but they were always drifting all over the place and were very erratic.

If Princess Astrid fell into the hands of the Sangruil Sinners, they would be doomed.

The entire Boundless Region would suffer from the emperor's wrath.

Furthermore, Burke was the head of the main planet here, Planet Boundless.

If he were charged with colluding with the Sangruil Sinners, he and the entire Lutgen family would be wiped out.

This pleasant surprise thus turned into panic.

"Father, I'm sorry! I..." Burke was interrupted by Ramos before he could finish speaking "You did nothing wrong.

Even if Princess Astrid and the Sangruil Sinners did not appear in Boundless Region but somewhere else, the Lutgen family still wouldn't be able to escape because I was chosen to be one of the people who would rescue the princess this time.

If the mission fails, we too will suffer the emperor's wrath."

"Father, if I postpone the banquet and increase the publicity, will Her Royal Highness come here?" Burke asked.

"Definitely.

Princess Astrid likes events like this the most, and the people around her will ask her to come to Planet Boundless.

The princess doesn't know the danger she is facing yet, so you must protect the princess's safety when the time comes.

If you succeed, our family will prosper, but if you fail, we will face annihilation.

We can't afford to gamble," Ramos said solemnly.

"I understand, Father.

I will do my best to protect the princess until you come."

"Well, if there is nothing else, then you can arrange it as soon as possible.

If Her Royal Highness arrives on Planet Boundless, I will notify you.

You should make security preparations in advance." "Father, I have another question," Burke said.

"Go ahead." "Are the Sangruil Sinners really as powerful as they say they are? Is it true that even the palace guards can't stop them?" Burke asked.

"Sangruil was once the only force that could fight against the Milky Way Empire.

The two sides fought for over a thousand years before the winner was clear.

After the then -emperor killed the king of Sangruil, Sangruil knew their time was up, and they arranged a backup plan for the Sangruil elites.

The talents of these two royal forces are unquestionable.

Look at the eighteen princes of the emperor now.

Which one of them is easy to deal with? What would it be like if they were united? Besides, Sangruil doesn't only have royal talents.

How can just one group of palace guards be enough to stop them?" Ramos explained.

Burke understood.

Whether it was the empire's royal family, the Barlow family, or the former Sangruil royal family, they were all blessed by God.

Although this kind of family did not have many children and it could be seen from the fact that the emperor had only given birth to nineteen children in the past few hundred years, every direct descendant was highly gifted.

This was unlike the other big families with numerous direct descendants but only very few were truly talented.

If the eighteen princes of the Milky Way Empire united unanimously, they would definitely deter all the other forces.

It was a pity that they were destined not to be able to coexist peacefully and unite as one because of their identities.

This was the sad part of being born into the royal family.

Several hundred years later, only two or three of the eighteen princes with extraordinary talents would be left after the new emperor ascended the throne.

This had always been the case with royalty.

Just like when the current emperor ascended the throne.

There were fifteen brothers.

In the end, only the emperor and his two older brothers remained.

“Father, if the Sangruil Sinners are so powerful that even the palace guards are no match for them at all, how can Planet Boundless resist them? Once they get here, they will destroy us in an instant.” “You don’t have to worry too much about this.

The Sangruil Sinners are powerful, but they shouldn’t have sent many people this time.

Otherwise, they would have already attracted the attention of the empire.

As such, the palace guards should be able to resist them for a while.

As long as you deal with this properly, you should be able to hold on until we get there.” “How long until you arrive?” “At least half a month.

If nothing happens, Princess Astrid is expected to arrive on Planet Boundless within a week.

You just need to endure for another week.” “Okay! Then I’ll go and make arrangements.”

The father and son hung up their communication devices.

Burke began issuing a series of commands. The banquet three days later was postponed by another five days.

At the same time, he sent invitations to all the powerful people on all planets in Boundless Region, missing no one.

Furthermore, the invitation was a strict order.

All those who received the invitation had to go to Planet Boundless within a week.

Otherwise, they would bear the consequences.

Some people in seclusion also had to come out and quickly rushed to Planet Boundless temporarily.

The Lutgen family, where Lord Burke of Planet Boundless was from, was a big deal in the empire's military.

No one would offend Burke over such a trivial matter.

The main thing, of course, was that they dared not.

Compared to the Milky Way galaxy, the entire Boundless Region was still just like a small boat in the sea.

However, it was much bigger compared when with the solar system.

There were many living planets in the region, at least hundreds of them.

However, they were nothing compared to the millions of living planets in the Milky Way galaxy.

Planet Boundless soon started preparing for the emergency. All weapons had been moved out to arm Planet Boundless heavily.

In reality, they were just deceiving themselves and others.

If they encountered someone like David, a peak Celestial Ranker, he could destroy the entire Planet Boundless with just a stomp.

Burke also knew it was useless, but he had to still try.

In case the mission failed, he would at least look like he had tried his best.

This would also give him and his family a chance to survive.

Planet Boundless was bustling nervously, but none of this had much to do with David.

He merely stayed inside his temporary residence.

Mia would still come to chat with him every morning.

David also heard from Mia that the fastest way to spend money in the Milky Way was to go to the most prosperous heart of the Milky Way.

That was where the headquarters of many trading companies and chambers of commerce gathered.

Hence, they would often hold large auctions.

Auctions were often the fastest places to spend money because the things usually put on for auction were precious.

The unit price of any random item would start from tens of millions or even hundreds of millions.

There were even occasional auctions of items worth more than 10 billion.

It was said that something from an ancient ruin had appeared at an auction not long ago.

Although the auction organizers had no idea what the object was, it still managed to make the major aristocratic families fight for it.

After countless bidding rounds, the object was finally sold at an astonishing price of 28 billion Galaxy Dollars.

David told Mia that as soon as the banquet on Planet Boundless was over, she should take him to the bustling heart of the Milky Way, as that would soon be David's stage.

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 1008

There was a small independent living planet near Boundless Region.

The volume of this planet was not much larger than Earth's.

It was considered a tiny living planet in the core of the Milky Way.

Although this planet was small in size, its scenery was stunning. Forests covered more than 90% of the area.

All kinds of towering trees stood on the planet, and countless birds and animals lived on it.

Humans inhabited only about five percent of the area.

The technology level on the planet was very backward, and it was still in a state of self-sufficiency.

Everyone lived by hunting the animals in the forest.

The original ecological environment could be maintained because a powerful person once lived in seclusion here.

He bought the planet and made it a high-class citizen planet of the Milky Way Empire, which no one dared to touch.

Later, after the man left, no one dared to have any ideas of this place, so it was just kept in its original state.

Right now, on this planet, a woman with a veil on her face was wandering around aimlessly.

Her graceful figure made her look like a fairy that had descended to Earth.

She was Princess Astrid of the Milky Way Empire.

Two maids, one old and one young, followed her.

The younger maid was named Emerald and was about the same age as Princess Astrid.

The two grew up together and bonded like sisters.

The older one was Astrid's mother's maid and a beginner Cosmos Ranker.

Therefore, she was responsible for keeping Astrid safe.

Of course, as the most favored princess of the Milky Way Empire, she would not have just this low level of security guarding her when she went out.

There was also a team of palace guards overseeing her.

Palace guards were people that would sacrifice themselves for the emperor.

Each one was carefully selected from childhood and cultivated through special methods.

Not only was their individual combat power strong, but they were also good at joint strikes and extremely loyal to the emperor.

As long as it was a task assigned by the emperor, they would complete it even if it cost them their lives.

Furthermore, everyone had a Blood-Burning Potion that could instantly increase their combat power.

They would not hesitate to take the Blood-Burning Potion if any accidents happened during a mission.

No force was unafraid of such a powerful team that was not afraid of death.

One could say that the palace guards would scare all the major forces in the Milky Way Empire at the mere mention of their name.

Once a team of palace guards appeared, even partial Celestial Rankers would need to avoid them and avoid fighting them head-on.

Only Celestial Rankers would not be scared of them.

However, this was just in terms of strength.

Who would be so bored to stir up conflict with the palace guards if there was no extreme hatred or grudges between them? Wouldn't that be courting death? So what if you won? Would you still have a foothold in the Milky Way Empire after offending the emperor? Within the scope of the Milky Way, there were only two forces that were not afraid of palace guards at all.

One was the Sangrui sinners who once fought the Milky Way Empire for over a thousand years and despised the Milky Way Empire to the core.

The other was the weird and mysterious Meteor Chamber of unknown origin that claimed to take on anything in the Milky Way as long as the price was right.

These two forces were also the most troublesome issues for the Milky Way Empire.

The empire still had not found a solution to get rid of both of them, so they could only try their best to stop them.

In the first year Princess Astrid snuck out from Planet Royal, everything outside looked new and exciting to her.

Even though most of the things in the outside world also existed on Planet Royal, with their Planet Royal counterparts mostly being even more valuable versions of the same item, Astrid had seen them since she was small, so she still found the ones outside more attractive.

Before this, she would only understand the world outside Planet Royal through books or the Internet.

She was in good spirits now that she could come out and look at them herself.

“Wow, Your Royal Highness! Look! That butterfly looks so beautiful!” Emerald squealed excitedly.
