

The substitute wife: my poor husband is a billionaire

Chapter 729

□ □ □

Chapter 729

new colleague “Mr. Wesley, are you all right?” Janet knows quickly apologized to Draco and checked to see if his hand was scalded.

Draco waved dismissively and set the glass down. on the table.

“I’m fine, but what about you? you were so distracted just now.” Janet looked away.

“I am sorry.

My mind I was somewhere else...” Draco looked at her kindly.

“What’s happening? are you affecting stress? Janet shook her head with a slight smile, but it seemed that he had not come to his senses yet.

His eyes were glassy as he said, “No...” what you saw on your laptop last night was so strange that it really scared her.

He clearly didn’t want to talk about it, and Draco didn’t.

I planned to force her.

He trusted that Janet was more than capable of dealing with whatever she was bothering.

“You are free this afternoon? A new colleague is coming today.

When it was time to work, the eyes of Janet lit up.

“Do we have a new designer?” Since Rosa left, W Marks only had two design assistants: Janet and Elizabeth.

It was time that they got a new designer “Well, Dalores isn’t exactly a recent arrival.

I used to work here before, and now return.

You will meet her this afternoon.” Draco explained.

Seeing that Janet looked fine, Draco didn’t say anything.

more and returned to his office.

Sure enough, later that afternoon, Dolores came to the studio.

The designers were usually slender, but Dalores was on the slimmer side.

chubby.

She wasn’t tall either, and her hair was curly to the sides.

shoulders.

He was very approachable and greeted everyone in the studio with warmth, as if they were old acquaintances.

Dalores used to work for W Marks but he had been gone for a while. Now she was back again.

It was one experienced assistant designer, so he was on the same level as Janet and Elizabeth.

Janet introduced herself briefly, while Elizabeth didn't say a word.

didn't even look at pains.

Finding this strange, Janet soon realized that everyone had a good relationship with Dalores except Elizabeth.

“Did something happen between you and Dalores?”

Janet asked to Elizabeth in private during lunch hour.

Elizabeth was silent for a moment. before finally sighing.

“No, nothing happened. It's just that we weren't really friends or anything.

So.

Mr. Wesley had trained her for two years.

After that, he felt that it was capable enough to go out alone and insisted on leaving W Marks to be a designer Independent.

But his work did not win any momentum in recent years, so he asked if I could go back to work here.

The studio needed an extra hand, so Mr. Wesley agreed”.

Janet didn't know if there was more to the story, but I could definitely tell that Elizabeth didn't like it.

I really liked Dalores.

But he thought that I would learn more about what really happened to as time went by.

Nevertheless, a lot of work has been piling up recently in the study.

Even with Dalores now present, Draco still said he needed one more assistant and then put Dalores and Janet in charge of the interview.

W Marks was a well-known studio thanks to the fame of Draco.

A few days after they announced that they were hiring, there was a queue of interviewees.

Janet did not want to participate in the interview.

After After all, she was not as qualified as Dalores.

“You are more than capable of handling this, Janet.

I think that you will be of great help to the new assistant.” Draco didn’t give Janet a chance to refuse.

With a crooked smile, Janet thanked Draco.

to recognize her, but at the same time, she still felt restless.

The next day, after lunchtime, Dalores walked over to Janet’s desk to to converse.

However, she did not speak to Elizabeth in absolute.

Elizabeth also ignored her.

She kept a serious face and said nothing.

Janet really wanted to know what had happened between them two.

Out of curiosity, he asked Elizabeth again in low voice:
“What happened between you two?”

□ □ □