

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3096 - 3100 -

Chapter 3096

When the odds were announced, the warriors in the spectator stands thought nothing of it, but Ethan was the first to blow up. He turned to look at the caretaker. He almost went up and snatched the scroll from the caretaker's hands.

Why were his odds one to four?

Jackie's odds were half of his. Higher odds meant that the caretakers did not think he was as strong as the other side. That was why the odds were pulled up to attract other warriors to bet on him. That was to even up the bets between the two of them.

Ethan got frustrated just thinking about it.

Before they got on the stage, Jackie had coldly mocked him quite a bit, so Jackie was obviously pleased.

Ethan's face reddened as he said to the caretaker, "That's not fair! Lord caretaker, please look at it again. How could you have my odds so high against this guy? Do you think my skills are worse than his?"

"How are my skills not at his level? I'm an alchemist from the Pentagonam Clan of White Marsh Continent. Even if I'm an alchemist, I didn't completely abandon combat! He's just a wandering warrior without any background!"

He did not dare to be too harsh with his words. He tried to hold back and did his best to reason with the caretaker.

The skull-masked caretaker did not show any emotion at those words. He stiffly and coldly turned to look at Ethan.

Feeling the caretaker's cold gaze, Ethan pursed his lips, suddenly regretting what he said.

At that moment, the caretaker said, "The odds are set by the caretakers. We have our own rules to follow, and you have no right to interfere. If you continue questioning the caretakers, you will be punished by the middle city's rules!"

Hearing that, Ethan shuddered. Even an idiot knew that the punishment was being struck by lightning immediately which would result in one getting burnt alive. There was nothing he could do against that. Ethan completely stopped questioning everything.

The caretaker pointed at the betting area, "The betting area has opened. Those who want to place any bets can go there. The rules are the same. You have an hour to make your choice. After an hour, the match will start!"

After saying that, the caretaker walked off the stage. The warriors on the stands had already placed a lot of bets and had accumulated quite a lot of experience.

After the announcement, no one stood up and went to the betting area immediately. They continued to make their observations on the stands of the two alchemists on the stage.

"Even though I hate alchemists, I have to say that they're starting to look better after I have heard those odds!"

"The odds are incredibly high. In the few matches before, the odds have shifted around one point something to two points something. The two of them are at two and four. With odds that are so high, there should be a lot of itchy hands!"

"I've decided to bet anyway. I happen to have a million left on me! If I get it right, I'll either double or quadruple my spirit crystals!"

"Stop talking about the odds for now. Let's hurry out and figure out who will win."

"Does anyone know either of them? I heard Ethan say that he's from the Pentagram Clan of White Marsh Continent. Does anyone know him enough to explain to everyone what his skill levels are at?"

Chapter 3097

"I know him! My clan has a good relationship with the Pentagram Clan. I'd seen him a few times before, but I don't know what his skills are like. After all, he's still an alchemist who focuses on alchemy. Normally, they never take part in fights between warriors, so I've never had the chance to see his skills!"

"Then who's that Jackie guy? Does anyone know him? How are his skills? Which clan is he from?"

"Are you deaf? Didn't Ethan say it before? That guy has no background. Since that's the case, Ethan should have better odds, so why are Jackie's odds lower? Quickly look into it. Why is this so?"

"I don't know Jackie! Are there any warriors from Hestia Continent? Who knows Jackie?"

An intense discussion was starting among the spectators at the stands.

First, they looked into Ethan's skills. After finding nothing, they started to look into Jackie. However, there were far fewer warriors from Hestia Continent than in the other two worlds.

There were even fewer of them who knew about him. There were a few of them who did know about Jackie, but they were from the Unbreaking Pavilion and the Compass Pavilion.

The Unbreaking Pavilion and the Compass Pavilion absolutely hated Jackie. His image had been sent around to all the disciples within those clans. Almost every disciple knew Jackie. They had even received orders to notify the whole clan the moment they noticed Jackie. After all, not only was Jackie mysterious, but he was also a huge bane for both of those clans.

The disciples of the two clans were stunned when they saw Jackie walking onto the stage. When they saw that his opponent was an alchemist from Hestia Continent, they exchanged strange looks between themselves.

They knew Jackie, but would definitely not reveal Jackie's true strength. They did not want others to know about him, nor did they want anyone to know about his true skills. Only then would they not be interrupted when they wanted to deal with Jackie.

They naturally knew who was stronger among the two alchemists standing there.

A disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion in dark black clothes said to his fellow disciples, "This is a great chance to make some money. We should really thank him. Everyone, don't be stingy. Those who can afford half a million spirit crystals take all of it out to the betting area. Let's place a bet!"

The Compass Pavilion was the same. All of them clenched their fists. Even those who did not have half a million in hand took out loans!

Those who wanted to bet on death matches had to bet half a million!

No more, and no less. It had to be that number. That was why the disciples who did not have half a million all took out loans.

To the disciples from those clans, it was free money. They would naturally not let it slip by!

Compared to the noisy crowd, the two of them on the stage were much quieter. Jackie could not be bothered with Ethan, feeling like Ethan was just an annoying fly.

Ethan was trying to find the chance to mock Jackie, but he knew that Jackie was not so fragile. Even if he wanted to mock Jackie, he had to say something that Jackie would not be able to form a reply to.

Yet, he could not figure out anything to say after a long time. He was a bit frustrated as he panted. His expression was rapidly souring.

Chapter 3098

He could not stand it anymore in the end.

He turned and said to Jackie, "These odds are nothing, so don't be so pleased with yourself! Everyone makes mistakes. The results will prove everything!"

Jackie snorted, closing his eyes as he ignored Ethan which made Ethan even angrier.

He started at Jackie and said, "You can keep on acting like this. The more you act like this, the happier I am. That's because you're about to kneel and beg me for mercy soon! However, I'm warning you. I won't let you off easy..."

"Even if you kneel and plead for your life in front of me, I'll still torture you! I won't kill you so easily. I'll slowly torture you. There's no time limit to the death match after all. I have plenty of time to slowly torture you! I'll let you feel the greatest pain, and have you hoping for death. You'll just see yourself slowly dying away!"

Ethan felt more and more excited when he said all that to Jackie. His smile almost split his mouth in half.

Jackie turned to look at Ethan, who was smiling sinisterly and just felt incredibly exasperated.

He felt like there really must be something wrong with Ethan's mind. Talking to Ethan would only lower his own intelligence. Ethan saw that Jackie remained silent and merely looked at him with a mocking expression, and his rage burned even greater.

"I know you're actually already scared. You're just pretending not to care. I've already seen through your thoughts. Don't think that I can't tell just because you're acting this way!"

Jackie's lips twitched, suddenly not knowing what to say.

He felt like Ethan was living in his own world, feeling like whatever he said was definitely right. Jackie only felt exasperation when dealing with those people.

In the end, Jackie retorted, "You can think what you want. I can't be bothered with you, but can you just shut up? I feel like I'm fighting against a complete idiot listening to you speak!"

Jackie almost caused Ethan to start fighting right there and then. Jackie's words had been too hurtful, completely damaging Ethan's heart.

Ethan's fists trembled in anger as his eyes almost popped out of their sockets. He clenched his teeth as he looked at Jackie, wanting to rush right at Jackie, "I will definitely have you begging for mercy!"

There was nothing else he could say at that moment.

Thoughts of how he would torture Jackie filled his mind. He wanted Jackie to beg for mercy, repenting for everything he did wrong!

The crowd was incredibly happy with those arguments. Since there was nowhere to sit, Rudy and the disciples of the Pentagram Clan were waiting in the betting area. The moment the caretaker announced the odds, Rudy impatiently put five hundred thousand on Jackie.

The disciples of the Pentagram Clan did not move at all. As the leader of that team, Trevor's expression was incredibly dark.

Sometimes, the odds would reveal certain problems. Before announcing the odds, Trevor had already thought about it. He felt like the caretakers would not have their odds be too far apart. He felt like they should only be one decimal place apart at most, but the situation was unexpectedly worse than he thought. One side had double the odds.

What caused Trevor even more nervousness was the fact that Jackie was the one with one to two odds, while Ethan's odds were one to four. From that, it was obvious that the caretakers felt like Ethan would lose.

With that in mind, Trevor became incredibly worried.

Chapter 3099

Yet, some things could not be said. After all, Rudy was still beside them. He could not put himself down!

Probably because they could see through Trevor's worries, one of the disciples from the Pentagram Clan whispered, "Trevor, don't worry. The caretakers aren't gods. There's no way they can tell which one of them is stronger just from a look..."

"They're just relying on their intuition. If the caretaker actually understood the two of them, the odds would not be like that. The odds might even be the exact opposite!"

Trevor nodded slightly, "You're right. It's not like the caretakers can judge everything accurately. It's probably because of Ethan's bad temper. The caretakers probably feel like a bad attitude means having horrible skills. That's why the odds are so high!"

The disciple behind him nodded vigorously, "Jackie's just an alchemist. Didn't Ethan say so before? Jackie has no background. An alchemist like him is lucky enough to be good at alchemy. He definitely put most of his time into alchemy, not having any time for martial training at all! That's why we don't have to worry that much. I believe in Ethan!"

After saying that, the other disciples of the Pentagonagram clan expressed their support for Ethan. They did not know much about Jackie, but they knew Ethan very well.

Ethan's skills might not be comparable to notable warriors, but among alchemists, he stood at the top.

There was not a single alchemist from the Pentagonagram clan who could beat Ethan. Since that was the case, then Jackie was definitely no match for Ethan.

Trevor snorted and said, "I was overthinking things. I was just fooled by how he acted. He's just acting too calm, causing me to feel like he's hiding something..."

Trevor could not help but laugh after saying that, feeling like he was being naive to actually think that the guy was hiding something. Even if he did, he was still just an alchemist.

He was just an ant in front of Trevor, that Trevor could deal with easily!

Rudy had heard everything they said and almost laughed.

Facing other strong warriors, Rudy would not have dared to say that Jackie would definitely win, but if it was Ethan, he could confidently tell everyone there that Jackie would be the victor. That was because Ethan was the ant that could die at any moment!

Rudy laughed and said, "Since you're so confident that Ethan will win, then hurry up and bet on him. Could you just be saying that you support him, but actually thinking that he'll lose?!"

"What do you know?!" A disciple behind Trevor said loudly.

The disciple had widened eyes and rage on his face, "We're not as stupid as you, blindly trusting Jackie! We didn't place our bets because we were talking! Couldn't you see that?"

Chapter 3100

After saying that, the disciple pulled out half a million spirit crystals from his storage ring with a huff, betting it on Ethan!

After doing that, he coldly looked at Rudy, "Do you see it now? Don't try to be petty with us! I despise ignorant country bumpkins like you guys!"

Rudy sneered, already used to hearing words like that. Had it been in the past, he would have shouted something back, but at that moment, Rudy could not be bothered.

He turned to look at the two people who were standing on the stage. He tried to estimate the time it would take for the battle to end. With Jackie's personality, the fight would have a result soon.

Time ticked away, and the spectators were finally reaching their conclusions. Even though they were still discussing, most of them already knew who they were betting on. There was just some uncertainty left.

After all, the odds were so high at that time. If Ethan won, those that have bet on Ethan would be able to quadruple their spirit crystals. So, most of the warriors hoped that Ethan would win. After all, Ethan's odds were far higher.

Just thinking about winning four times the spirit crystals made them happy. If Jackie won, they would only be able to get a million from half a million, which was far less.

"No matter what, I feel like Ethan's more likely to win. After all, he's from the Pentagram Clan. It's one of the top eighth-grade clans in White Marsh Continent. As for Jackie, he's from Hestia Continent, and he's a wandering warrior. The two of them are from completely different backgrounds!"

"You're right, but the odds are so high. It means that the caretakers think that Jackie's more likely to win. Even though I don't know how strong he is, there has to be a reason for the odds!"

"The caretakers make mistakes. Don't regard the caretakers so highly, okay? They've made a few mistakes before by giving the loser much higher odds. So, before the results are out, everything is uncertain!"

"From their conditions, I think Ethan's better. After all, Ethan comes from a high grade clan, he's stronger than Jackie no matter how you look at it!"

It was obvious from their discussions that most of the spectators planned on choosing Ethan. After all, Ethan came from a high grade clan.

Jackie was from Hestia Continent and did not have much of a background. White Marsh Continent was already stronger than Hestia Continent.

In the eyes of the warriors, White Marsh Continent's eighth-grade clans were comparable to Hestia Continent's ninth-grade clans! Even though Ethan was an alchemist, he should still be stronger than a warrior from a small clan.

After Ethan heard the discussions, the rage in his heart started to get suppressed.

He coldly stared at Jackie, "Do you hear that? Do you still think you can win?"

Ethan yearned to see Jackie's hopeless expression. As long as he had the chance, he would say something to provoke Jackie. Jackie frowned, opening his eyes in frustration as he looked at Ethan, who was pleased with himself.

Jackie sneered, "Do you still remember how much you bragged in the tournament? You told everyone that you would definitely get the golden treasure, but what ended up happening?"

"You are behaving exactly the same today. Can you just stop bragging? I'm getting annoyed just listening to you!"