

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 901

Chapter 901 Duke stood by the bed as he took off his suit with his slender fingers. He unbuttoned his shirt one by one, revealing his broad chest. Adina gulped. 'He held himself back last night. He has also observed the changes in me... 'It looks like tonight, he won't be able to hold himself back.'

"Addy, I love you..."

He leaned in and kissed her forehead. From there, he started kissing downward.

His kisses were warm. Adina's heart fluttered as she curled up her toes.

As they became even more intimate, she realized there were no commands being given from the robotic female voice in her head.

No matter how close she was to her lover or how deep she was in her thoughts, she was finally able to have some peace for herself.

After they were done, she was exhausted. She soon fell asleep, feeling so exhausted that she felt like collapsing. Duke was not much better, either. He vented all his worries and anxieties over the past few days.

After it ended, Adina was already sound asleep in his arms.

As the night grew deeper, Adina suddenly opened her eyes. The room was dark and quiet. She could not see anything at all. With just the slightest of her movements, Duke, who was beside her, woke up. He asked in a hoarse voice, "What's the matter?" "I'm going downstairs to drink water." He sat up instantly. "I'll help you get it. "I need to go to the washroom too. I don't mind getting you water on my way back." Adina pushed him down and pulled up the duvet.

She wore a cardigan and put on her shoes. She opened the door, went out, and closed the door softly. Her expression turned cold as soon she closed the door behind her. 'How dare Earl order me around in the middle of the night?

'He's still able to wake me up with his orders, even though I'm sound asleep.'

"Get out of the house, turn left, and walk straight for another hundred feet." The voice repeatedly echoed in her mind. She slowly went downstairs and put on a down jacket before going out of the mansion without 'making a sound.

The temperature of Sea City on winter nights was extremely low, it was about like minus ten degrees. Adina shivered from the cold as she headed out. She climbed over the yard wall and walked away slowly. Before she could reach a hundred feet, she saw a black figure at the end of the road.

The shadow of the swaying tree fell on the black figure, making him look like a specter climbing out of hell. Adina stopped and asked coldly, "Why did you ask me to come?" "Heh, I'm surprised. Turns out, you're pretty capable."

Earl sneered and walked towards her.

She wanted to step back, but the command in her head did not allow her to do it. She could only stand still and watch him approach her.

She clenched her jaw so hard that it felt like her jawbone was about to get crushed.

"My carefully designed biochip code has been modified, just like that. Your son really impressed me."

Adina glared at him, "You spied on me?"

"I can not only spy on you, but I can also control you and make you a walking corpse!" Earl grimaced. "I initially wanted to play this game with you slowly. Unfortunately, that child is too smart for me to take my risk." Adina clenched her jaw as she suppressed her anger. "I'm giving you three days to think about it. Three days only. You better be prepared."

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 902

Chapter 902 With the cold breeze blowing past her face, Adina could barely feel the pain.

She clenched her fists and spoke, one word at a time. "Earl, what exactly do you want to do?" "I want you to leave the city with me." Earl stroked her chin. "I'll let Duke go as long as you come with me."

Adina looked at him. "What if I refuse?"

"Refuse? Hmph!" Earl sneered. "I'll let him meet Hades, then." He lowered his head and sniffed her neck. "How unpleasant. You smell like Duke." Adina lowered her gaze. She caught the dagger that slipped out from her sleeves. She raised it and stabbed it towards his neck. He seemed to have expected it long ago, as he quickly took a step back. "You're digging your own grave, Adina.” His expression turned cold, colder than the winter breeze. “Let’s die together, then.” She raised the dagger and charged forward again.

‘It has been about a month, and I’ve had enough of this!

‘I rather die fighting with Earl than being terrified all the time. ‘If he’s dead, no one will take control over me...

‘I’m sure Duke will have a way to settle the rest of the controllers.’

Earl maintained his distance from Adina, knowing that he would not be able to defeat her.

However, she continuously charged forward fiercely. The dagger scraped across his cheek, and it started bleeding.

He touched his face and his fingers were covered in blood.

A murderous look started forming on his face as his eyes filled with rage.

“Adina, since you insist. Let me show you how to play.” He revealed a wicked smile and took out the gold earrings.

“Let’s have a starter.”

He watched Adina rush towards him as he gave a command.

—“Kick Alden out of the Winters family’s mansion.”

As soon as the command was given, the sentence kept echoing in her head. The dagger that she raised was lowered. She stared at him angrily, “You’re despicable! The child is innocent! You’re so shameless!” “He modified my program. That’s not so innocent, is it?” He sneered, “If you don’t complete the command within twenty-four hours, there’ll be more terrible things waiting for you, Adina. Let’s take our time and play.”

He turned and left after he was done speaking.

He drove off as his car disappeared into the night. However, the voice in Adina’s head only grew clearer. The back of her head began to ache.

It would not go away until she did what was told. The more she resisted, the more pain she would feel. The dagger in her hand fell to the ground.

She held her head and struggled as she headed back to the mansion. Before she reached the entrance, a tall and slender figure rushed over to her. “Addy, where were you? What's wrong? What happened?" Duke carried her and hurriedly returned to the mansion. The house was warm, and Adina did not feel any better. The back of her head still hurts, and her thoughts were disorganized. "Don't talk to me. Leave me alone."

She hugged her knees and buried her face in between her knees in agony, like an ostrich trying to escape from the world. Duke bent over and picked her up. "Go lie down on a bed, then."

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 903

Chapter 903

Duke put Adina onto the bed. He then sat on the couch beside the bed and watched her in silence. He could already guess what happened, but he did not dare to ask her. Some things could not be answered, even if he posed questions. Daylight was emerging as the bright sun rose from the east. A new day had come. The pain at the back of Adina's head had gotten worse. She lay on the bed, about to break down.

Duke clenched his jaw and looked at his phone. "We were able to spot Earl last night. Indeed, he was just around here. "He changed cars three times, and in the middle of it, we lost track of him. But he's definitely in Sea City. He couldn't have gotten far." His gaze darkened.

'It's my fault. I should've insisted on following Adina downstairs.

'I've only given Earl another chance to meet her... Duke pursed his lips guiltily. He went downstairs to cook a plate of pasta. He then came back upstairs. "Addy, eat up." "I told you not to talk to me! Get out!" She pulled her hair and screamed hysterically. As soon as she said this, she came back to her senses. She held her head and said in pain, "Duke, I'm sorry, I didn't mean to..."

She felt herself splitting into half. On one end, the command wanted her to throw Alden out of the Winters family's mansion. On the other end, she tried to go against it.

Her head was about to explode. She could not hold it anymore. 'Earl is ruthless.

'Not only does he want me to harm Duke, but he also wants me to hurt my own child too...

'No matter how sensible or considerate Al is, he will definitely be hurt...

'I'd rather die than make him go through this. –“Duke, please leave me alone. Close the door, and lock me up here...”

'With that, even if I can't control myself anymore, I won't be able to go find Al...'

Duke was saddened.

He approached and hugged her as he whispered, “Addy, what did Earl command you to do?”

“If he asked you to hurt me, just do it. It's okay. I can stand a little injury.”

He comforted her as he took out the dagger under her pillow.

Somehow, he started getting used to knowing that a dagger would always be hidden under Adina's pillow, in the drawer, in the crack of the couch, in the pocket of her clothes, and even in her sleeves.

“No...” She shook her head. “He asked me to...”

Before she could finish her sentence in between her pauses, they heard lively voices from downstairs. It was the children's laughter.

She froze suddenly. “Duke, you mustn't let me see the children. I must not see them. You can tell them that I'm still sleeping...”

She pulled the blanket over her head and hid in there.

Duke patted her back gently a couple of times. “Alright. I'll go downstairs and have a few words with them and send them back.”

Mabel was chatting with the children in the living room, with her luggage at the front door.

“I brought the children out for New Year shopping, and we happened to pass by here,” Mabel said with a smile. “They say they haven't seen both of you for a long time, so I brought them here for a visit. I hope I'm not bothering both of you.”

Duke said calmly, “Addy is still sleeping. Take a seat, everyone. Have a cup of tea before leaving.” Harold said cautiously, “Daddy, can I sneak in and look at Mommy before we go?” ‘I've been behaving very well for the past two weeks. I didn't make a fuss. Today, George and Al finally gave in and let Grandma bring us here for a visit. Since we're here, I'm sure we can definitely at least meet Mommy...’

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 904

Chapter 904 Not a trace of emotion showed on Duke's face. His cold gaze swept toward Harold. "You klutz, what would you do if you woke your mommy up?"

Melody blinked. "Daddy, I'm not a klutz, can I go see Mommy?"

Duke said indifferently, "Naturally, your mommy and I will be going back for the New Year. You don't have to see her now."

The children's faces were full of disappointment.

George knit his brows together.

'Didn't Al say that this matter was mostly solved? So we should be able to get in touch with our mother...!

Why was their daddy still trying to keep them from seeing their mommy? The confusion in Alden's eyes grew all the more.

He had personally modified the program commands yesterday, so it would be reasonable to say that Mommy should be fine to see them. 'Why is it still like this?'

He looked at Duke.

Duke gently shook his head at him.

He did not know what orders Earl had given, but he could make a vague guess when he saw how Addy treated the children like they were the plague.

Not only did Earl have Addy hurt him, but he was even trying to get their children hurt.

At that moment, Duke felt truly remorseful. He had let Earl live because he was his twin brother.

But did Earl ever feel the same?

He wanted his wife and wanted his children hurt; was there anything Earl would not do?

This time, he would not be merciful!

Seeing the coldness on Duke's face, George knew that today, they would certainly not be seeing their mommy. He sighed. "Then we'll take our leave first, Daddy."

Harold was reluctant to go. "I'll give you a call tonight, Daddy. You have to put Mommy on the phone!"

Melody leaned against Duke's body and hugged him. "We'll go back first, Daddy. I'll miss you and Mommy."

Alden looked up and gazed at the tightly shut second-floor bedroom door. He pursed his lips tightly. "Goodbye, Daddy." "Don't worry, Duke, I'll take good care of the children," Mabel said with a smile. "You and Addy can work without worries. Leave the household matters to me."

After she said this, Mabel left hand-in-hand with the children.

Before they even reached the entrance, the door to the master bedroom swung open.

Adina came out of the bedroom, dressed in white pajamas. She stared blankly at the area downstairs with an aloof look in her eyes. "Mommy!" Harold jumped with delight. "Mommy, you're awake! Sob... I really missed you!" He flew up the stairs and plunged into Adina's arms.

Adina's eyes were a little dazed. She had not slept all night, and her eyes were bloodshot. She seemed like an entirely different person.

Harold only realized that his mommy seemed to have changed as he got closer to her. A bit fearfully, he asked, "Mommy, why aren't you happy to see me?" Adina glanced at him, then she pushed him away and slowly made her way down the stairs.

Harold's eyes widened, and tears welled up in his eyes.

Before this, every time he jumped into his mommy's arms, she would always hug and kiss him. But today, he was actually pushed away... "Mommy, I haven't seen you for so long..."

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 905

Chapter 905 Melody also pounced forward, but Adina avoided her.

Adina's eyes were locked on Alden.

But the noise in her mind was growing louder and louder, and it was replaying itself more and more...

"Addy..."

Duke walked over and held her in his arms.

“You haven’t rested yet, I’ll take you upstairs.”

Without another word, he led Adina up the stairs, but she forcefully broke free from him.

She crouched down in front of Alden and said in a slightly hoarse voice, “Al, Mommy has to make a decision.”

As though he had anticipated this, Alden remained calm. “Tell me what it is, Mommy.” “Leave the Winters family.” Every word Adina said sent a pang into her heart, but she soldiered on to finish the sentence. “Don’t live in the Winters family’s mansion anymore, go wherever you wish.”

Even though he had anticipated this, Alden was nonetheless shocked by this and was at a loss for words for a long time.

“Addy, how could you make this kind of joke to a four-year-old child?” Mabel was incredulous. “Al is only a child, where is he supposed to go?”

Duke’s eyes grew dark. He walked over and said, “Al, did you hear Mommy’s words clearly?”

“I—I heard them.” Alden had difficulty getting his mouth to open. “I’ll move out today.”

“Al, how can you take a joke so seriously?!” Mabel said angrily. “As long as I’m around, no one is kicking you out of the house!” “I’m not joking,” Adina said quietly, “Mrs. Winters, I would also like for you to leave the Winters family’s mansion.”

“What did you say?!” Mabel was stunned. “Addy, speak plainly.”

“Mrs. Winters, why don’t you bring the children to Ascrialia?” Adina clenched her fists and spoke in a steady voice. “When Duke and I are done working through this busy period, we’ll go to Ascrialia to bring you all home.” “Preposterous!” Mabel reprimanded. “New Year is just around the corner, who would be traveling abroad at this time?”

“Mommy, is it because we were naughty? Is that why you’re sending us away?” Harold was choking up. “I’ll be good from now on, I’ll listen to Mommy, so don’t send us away, okay?” Melody clutched at the hem of Adina’s clothes. She could not say a word through all her tears.

George stood quietly without saying a word. Adina closed her eyes.

Earl, that demented snake, would not only try to hurt Alden, but also harm the other three children.

Adina could not risk it. She would never risk it. "Then, don't go to Ascrialia," Duke said at the right moment, "Mother, take the children back first. I'll contact you later."

Mabel had vaguely realized what was happening and did not say anymore. She took the four despondent children and left the mansion. Once they were gone, the living room instantly felt desolate.

Feeling decrepit, Adina sat down on the sofa. Her tone was dejected. "Duke, the children can't stay in Sea City. Earl hates us too much, he would never spare the children..."

"Ascrialia is where my mother is from, Earl knows it well. Having my mother and the children stay there alone would truly be detrimental to them." Duke held her face and said solemnly, "The order this time was to send Al away, right?"

Adina gave a pained nod.

The disbelief in Alden's eyes was like a stake that pierced her heart, and the pain in her heart far surpassed the pain in the back of her head.

"I'll send Alden to the Xavier family, that should count as fulfilling the command," Duke said gently. "My men are already on Earl's trail. They should have him in custody within three days. Don't be afraid, Addy, I will always be here."

Adina lowered her eyes. She did not know if she could wait another three days... However, before the day could turn to night, Earl's voice emerged in her mind again.