Avery couldn't bear to nod when she saw how irritated Elliot was.

"It happened the day Layla called you to the room?"

Elliot thought quickly.

"Well. Elliot, Layla didn't dare to tell you because she was afraid that you would get angry, so you know what to do, right?" Avery reminded.

Elliot breathed heavily and was very angry: "What should I do? Avery, teach me."

Avery had a little headache: "Just pretend you don't know anything, okay? Don't bother Eric, and don't go either. Comfort Layla.

She feels uncomfortable. She is most afraid of letting you know about it."

"Am I so scary?" Elliot could hardly pretend not to know.

Layla refused to eat because of this incident, and Elliot might suffer from insomnia tonight.

"You are not scary, you are very scary. You see, Layla and Eric are impossible, but you are so excited." Avery picked up her chopsticks and stuffed them into her hands, “Eat. After dinner, I will persuade my daughter. Don’t say anything, don’t do anything.

If you feel overwhelmed, go talk to someone.”

“Who should I talk to? How can I talk to others about this kind of thing?” Elliot put down his chopsticks again.

“If you don’t eat, I won’t either.” Avery also put down her chopsticks, “Our family is hungry together.”

It’s okay for Elliot to be hungry, but he can’t starve his wife.

“After dinner, I have to talk to my daughter.” Elliot picked up the chopsticks and picked up a piece of meat for Avery, “Don’t worry, I won’t blame my daughter.”

“You will definitely speak ill of Eric. The more you talk, the more Layla thinks Eric is better. Elliot, I hope you won’t be stupid in this matter.” Avery put the meat in her mouth, “If you don’t say anything, maybe my daughter will figure it out in a few days.”

Elliot: “...”

Because the new year was approaching, Cyrus Hogan, the second young master of the Hogan family, had returned from abroad.

Cyrus Hogan was twenty-two years old this year and he would soon graduate from university.

He was picked up by Mr. Hogan when he was six years old. Mrs. Hogan had a big fight with Mr. Hogan because of this incident.

Fortunately, Cyrus Hogan was young at the time and was very obedient, so Mrs. Hogan was basically not angry with the child except for the illegitimate child.

After Cyrus Hogan came back, Master Hogan led him to meet Lucas in the auxiliary building.

“Lucas, this is your second elder brother, Cyrus Hogan.” Master Hogan introduced the two brothers, “Cyrus, this is your younger brother Lucas. I just brought him back not long ago. You can spend more time during your vacation. Come and chat with him.”

“Okay! Father.” Cyrus Hogan nodded in agreement. Master Hogan left after the introduction.

Cyrus’s eyes quickly fell on Siena.

Cyrus: “Siena, why are you here?”

“Second young master, I am the nanny of third Young Master Hogan now.” Siena replied with a smile, “Madam gave me double salary!”

Cyrus nodded: “Working here will not affect your studies?”

Just as Siena was about to answer, Lucas suddenly stood up from the sofa: “You two have such a good relationship? How about I make room for you two to chat alone?”
