

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 1343

Chapter 1343

David left South River University.

He did not alert other people in case there was a commotion after he was exposed.

East League Capitals would take out a huge sum of money annually to sponsor David's old schools.

Thus, he did not need to get involved with this anymore.

In the end, Ava still could not decide immediately.

She told David she needed to go back to consider this.

According to David, she might not come back after leaving.

After all, Ava had been living for more than 20 years on Earth. Her friends and family were all here.

Ava genuinely could not accept this immediately if she needed to suddenly abandon all these to go to a foreign place with David.

David figured Ava might not go.

Of course, this was also his goal. It would be best if she did not go.

She would bring a lot of trouble to David if she went.

He was already troubled enough by his complicated relationship with Selena and the women.

Wouldn't it be more trouble if Ava was added to the mix?

Only a good-tempered woman like Celia would not mind and even help Selena and the others.

If it were another woman, they would have raised hell.

After walking out of campus, David did not stop at River City. Instead, he went straight to Shu City.

He had been living here for almost twenty years, and he had created a lot of memories here.

Even though most of them were not good or even painful, they were all in the past.

David figured he should come back to take a look before he left.

He went to two middle schools first. However, they did not look the same anymore.

With East League Capitals' financial sponsor, the two schools were renovated and expanded.

After looking at the schools, David went to his home.

He had a lot of childhood memories there.

However, a lot of them were blurry. Back then, his parents were still around and they were living together harmoniously.

Unfortunately, an accident took everything away from him.

Then, David started his hellish life with his Uncle Bobby.

Without alerting Uncle Bobby and his family, David crept into his unit on the second floor.

It had become a storeroom for junk.

He walked from the living room to the kitchen, then he walked upstairs to the bedroom he used to stay in.

All traces of the past were gone.

David shook his head and walked to the balcony. Then, he jumped from the second floor to land in the courtyard.

He turned around to look at the old house that had not been renovated in a long time.

Perhaps when he came back after this trip, this place would not exist anymore.

As David was about to leave after relieving the sadness in his heart, the metal gate in the courtyard opened.

After David turned around, he saw a young man in his twenties at the food.

It was his cousin Quin.

Quin opened the door to look for something initially. This was his family's storeroom. When he saw someone in the courtyard, he was also stunned.

Then, he felt that the person looked familiar.

His heart shook.

'Isn't that David?

'He's back?'

"D-D-David?" Quin stammered.

David smiled. This should be the first time Quin called his name.

Back then, Quin would always call him nicknames.

Moreover, Quin was also the reason David was always getting beat up.

"Long time no see, Quin," David said.

'It is David!'

Quin came back to his senses and yelled, "Dad, Mom, Feli, come quick! David is back! Come quick!"

When the three people in the courtyard heard Quin's voice, they quickly ran over.

A middle-aged couple and a woman who looked about 27 or 28 years old.

They were David's Uncle Bobby, Aunt Karen, and cousin Felicia.

The three quickly came to the entrance of the courtyard in David's house.

When they saw David, the trio looked excited. However, they did not know what to say.

David did not say anything as well.

He just stood there in the courtyard.

The two sides stood in silence for more than ten seconds.

Karen tugged on Bobby's shirt secretly to tell him to speak.

Finally, Bobby mustered the courage to say one sentence.

"D-David, y-you're back!"

"I'm back to look at my old home. You can go on with your thing. I should go now."

After David said that, he took a step forward to leave.

He did not want anything to do with this family.

The hurt they caused him was too deep.

If not, David would not be so cold to them.

At least, he would close one eye as he did with Uncle Leslie and his family, and ask Aunt Diana to give them a job at Golden Leaf Hotel.

Karen started to panic when she saw that David was about to leave.

She finally got a chance to see David, so how could she let him leave so easily?

David's identity right now was completely different than before.

A single word from him could change her entire family's life.

Diana was the example.

Diana and her family of four had luxury cars worth millions each, and the house they lived in was worth hundreds of million.

It was said that in the past two years, Diana had purchased several properties ranging from millions to tens of millions, and her family was so prosperous in River City.

David's Aunt Sally was in a similar situation.

The two families managed an eight-star hotel worth tens of billions.

Their profit annually would reach billions.

Whenever Diana and Sally returned to Shu City, the big shots of the city would welcome them with the highest standard.

Diana and Sally were making their ancestors proud.

They were so well-off.

Karen was so envious and jealous.

She was so jealous that it hurt.

She dreamed of living a life like this one day.

Even the youngest Leslie was secretly arranged to work as a manager at the hotel.

Their family was the only one without anything and were still living in this horrible place.

Bobby and Karen always fought because of David.

Even their son and daughter resented them.

If they treat David a little better, they would be the ones making their ancestors proud and living a well-off life.

Unfortunately, they could not turn back time.

If not, they would do anything to make that happen even if they were to go bankrupt.

Their family went to look for Diana multiple times in hopes that she would let them work in the hotel like Leslie.

However, Diana would reject them sternly.

She said David owned the hotel so she could not make decisions.

When the family saw David this time, they were determined to get his forgiveness no matter what.

Even if they were mean to David back then, blood was thicker than water after all. Plus, it had been so long. Perhaps a big shot like David had forgotten everything.

Karen did not want to live in poverty anymore. She wanted to drive luxury cars, live in a mansion, eat abalone and lobsters for every meal, and have big shots welcoming her whenever she went back to her hometown.

Not only Karen was panicking, but Felicia and Quin were also nervous.

The siblings saw Aunt Diana's new life.

Who would not want a life like that?

Especially Quin.

How bad*ss would it be to drive a sports car worth tens of millions?
