

The Three Little Guardian Angels Chapter 2421

Chapter 2421

“What’s wrong? Can’t I talk about this? There’s no reason to bring up something from so long ago.”

The father and son started bickering.

Waylon hugged Cameron by her shoulders and brought her away from the living room.

Cameron laughed when they got to the garden. “The two old men are so adorable. They’re so different from you.”

Waylon squinted and looked at her while tilting his head. “So different from us?”

Cameron turned to face him while walking backward, “Do you bicker with your brother? No. The rowdy ones in your family are your sister and the two old men.

“If they weren’t around, I think your home would be so quiet, unlike the Southern Clan.”

Colton and Waylon would never be rowdy, and neither would Nolan and Maisie. Other than Daisy and the two elders, the rest of the Goldmanns were just like them.

Waylon stopped in his tracks and smiled. “That’s true. It really is livelier when Great-grandpa and Grandpa are around, but...” He paused for a few seconds and raised his brows. “If you want to add to that, we can have a few kids.”

Cameron turned away. “You can have them yourself.”

Seeing how her ears had turned red, he smiled and walked closer. “Can I request it?”

“Shut up.

She turned around and saw Nollace and Daisy getting out of the car. Daisy smiled and waved at them. Brother! Sister-in-law!”

Cameron wasn’t used to hearing Daisy call her sister-in-law.

Waylon watched them walk over and gave Nollace a quick glance. “Your good news spread fast.”

Nollace put his hand around Daisy’s waist. “You should catch up.”

Cameron frowned. “Are you having a competition on who gets a baby sooner?”

They had just gotten married, and now they were being asked about having a baby.

Waylon smiled. "That's not what I meant."

Cameron smirked and crossed her arms. "But that's what's on your mind."

Daisie couldn't help but smile, then held her arm. "Alright, let's ignore them. How is your father? Haven't seen him in a while, and I'm starting to miss him."

Cameron smiled and answered, "He's good, so don't worry, you'll see him one day."

Waylon patted Nollace's shoulder. "I guess this conversation doesn't involve us. Do you want to take a walk?"

Nollace nodded, so they left.

After Daisie saw them walk away, she smiled and asked, "I heard that you had your wedding on the East Islands?"

Cameron pressed her lips together. "My father wanted it. We wouldn't have had it so soon if it weren't because he was pushing us..." She looked down at Daisie's belly. "But you're pregnant so quickly."

Daisie paused and smiled. "It was a surprise. I didn't expect it to happen so soon either."

They were unprepared.

"Will you stop acting after this?"

Daisie was stumped.

Cameron looked at her. "A lot of artists leave the spotlight for a few years after getting pregnant during their prime. When they return, they are a lot less popular. Do you think you're ready for that?"

After a long pause and contemplation, Daisie said, "Don't worry. As long as I can still get roles, there's nothing to worry about."

She didn't care about her popularity. All she needed was her acting skills.

Only celebrities who had to rely on their popularity would worry about that, but actors would still be actors after they came out of retirement.

Chapter 2422

Cameron suddenly chuckled. "That's not bad. I thought you would give up your dreams after getting pregnant."

Daisie smiled. "We don't live for our children, and neither should they. We're all individuals. Life is too short, so if I give up on a career I love because of my child, my life will be meaningless."

Cameron smirked. "But Nollace and the Goldmanns have money. It would be able to cover your expenses for a few lifetimes."

Even if she gave up on her career and stayed home doing nothing, she wouldn't have to worry about anything.

That was a life that most people wanted. Why else would people want to marry into rich families? They were all eyeing that comfort.

Daisie beamed. "No way. I can't just use my family's money. I would feel bad for Nolly."

Cameron smirked. Did she just get a slap on her face?

But she finally understood why Nollace would care so much about Daisie. It was because Daisie's heart was full of him.

How could a woman who would take risks with him without caring about her own safety not be the person he cared for the most?

Meanwhile, at a restaurant...

Leah went on a blind date with someone her family had introduced her to. She only went because she didn't have a choice.

She slowly picked up her water cup when she heard the requirements and conditions. "I will not give up my career to marry you. I'm sorry."

The man paused and frowned. "You are an interpreter and have to travel most of the time. I have to stay here and take care of my mother. It would be no different from living separately. Since when do marriages where the couple doesn't see each other a lot last?"

The man continued. "I make $90,000 a year, more than enough to take care of you. Even if you're a Younge, you have to marry sooner or later, no?"

After she heard what he said, she raised her brows and said with a poker face, "I'm the only child in the Younge family. Even if I don't get married, my family will still take care of me. My parents wish for me to marry an outstanding man, but not a man who thinks he's outstanding."

The man's face dropped.

"You say that I think I'm outstanding. You're a woman in her late 20s. If it weren't for your family, do you think any man would be interested in you? You'll be lucky to even get married."

Leah smiled. "I'm sorry then. Even if I have to get married, it won't be with you."

The man slammed the table and yelled, "Do you think I want to marry you? You arrogant woman. I'm sure you've been used by many men!"

Leah splashed the cup of water on his face.

Everyone who heard the commotion looked around.

Before the man could react, she slammed the cup down. "You can't even respect women. Only the blind would marry you."

"You threw water in my face!"

The man lost his temper and was going to hit her, but he was stopped before his hand went down. He angrily looked back. "Mind your own-"

Zephir grabbed his wrist so he couldn't move.

"Are you sure you want to hit a woman in public?"

The man realized everyone was staring at him, so he clenched his jaw, clicked his tongue, and left. Leah looked at Zephir. "Why are you here?"

He calmly replied. "I was having a meal with some business partners and saw you."

Leah picked up her bag. "Thanks."

“Don’t mention it.”

Zephir left the restaurant with Leah while he left Zoey drinking with two men by herself. Zoey couldn’t drink anymore, but seeing Zephir wasn’t coming back, she wanted to find an excuse to leave.

The men didn’t want to let her go. One of them held her shoulder. “Mr. Gosling said you would stay and spend time with us, but you’re leaving?”

Zoey froze. “What do you mean?”

“Don’t you want to be the female lead? As long as…” The man leaned in and whispered something into her ear while holding her waist.

Zoey stood up reflexively. “I’m his woman! He wouldn’t do that!”

The man scoffed. “Do you think he is interested in you? Given his background, he will have a marriage of convenience with someone from an affluent family. You’re just an entertainer. What value can you bring to the Gosling family?”

Zoey shook in anger while her face turned pale.

The man pulled her into his arms. “He is very interested in working with us, so you better obey if you want to be the female lead.”

Zoey bit her lip because she knew how pragmatic the industry was. She had to rise to the top because she knew that, by hook or by crook.

Soon, she smiled and poured out some wine.
“I’m sorry. Let me take a drink as an apology.”

She picked up the glass and drank it all.

Zephir drove Leah home and parked outside her house. As she was getting out, he suddenly spoke. “I’m sorry about what happened the other day.”

He was talking about getting dragged to the police station for the brawl.

Leah smiled. “There’s no need to apologize. I really said some things that weren’t nice to hear. I understand if you were unhappy about it.”

She remembered something and asked, “By the way, did Daisy speak to you?”

Zephir paused. "No, why?"

She was curious because she thought Daisy would speak to him, but she hadn't.

She couldn't blame Daisy, though. She had her own family now, and even if she didn't contact Zephir, it was probably to avoid misunderstandings.

"Thanks for sending me home. I'm going to go inside now."

She got out and walked into her home compound.

After she walked away, Zephir picked up his phone and searched for Daisy's number but realized it was in his blocked list. His eyes grew dark. It was obvious that Zoey had touched his phone.

At that moment, he received a text, and the person said that they were at the hotel. Zoey had gone willingly.

Zephir smirked. 'This woman will do anything to get to where she wants.'

After a week, Zoey received resources to become an A-lister and attended events and parties with big names. She signed endorsement contracts with a few big brands and would get into the trending list every few days.

There were rumors that she had obtained female lead roles that were backlogged until the middle of the next year. When an artist who started from a girl group received so many resources, people started to suspect if she had a financial supporter.

Chapter 2424

It was soon the annual charity ball. The event was filled with celebrities. Zoey wore an haute couture dress and walked the red carpet with the big names. She quickly became the focus of the event.

Daisy, who wasn't wearing haute couture, was compared to her.

After walking into the event hall, Zoey walked over to Daisy. "No way! The princess of the Goldmann family isn't wearing haute couture? Oh well, I guess you won't be able to fit into haute couture if you're pregnant"

Daisy wore a loose dress with a fur coat that could cover her belly. Even though it wasn't haute couture, that fur coat cost five figures.

Daisie turned to look at her and calmly replied, "This is a charity ball, not a beauty pageant."

"Alright, just say you can't fit into the dresses. There's no need for excuses."

Zoey stopped in front of her and crossed her arms. "You're going to leave the industry after giving birth anyway. I'm looking forward to not having you around."

Zoey happily walked away after saying that because she was imagining the scene of Daisie being angry and defeated. None of that mattered, however, because she now had a bright future in the industry. Even if Daisie returned postpartum, she would only end up with supporting roles.

When she saw the media pointing their cameras at her, Zoey immediately smiled sweetly and showed off her voluptuous body.

She turned around to look at Daisie and see how disappointed she was. Unexpectedly, Daisie wasn't even looking at her and was having a chat with the event organizers.

Zoey's phone that was in her bag rang. She saw that Zephir's assistant was calling, so she picked up with a smile. "Yes?"

"Zoey, are you crazy? How could you wear haute couture to a charity event? You need to know when to draw the line!" that person yelled right after she picked up.

Among all the celebrities who attended the ball, only Zoey was in haute couture. People thought she was just there for the red carpet. She was drawing too much attention to herself compared to the other celebrities.

Zoey ignored the yelling.

"Didn't Zeph say that I need to do what I have to to become famous? So what if I'm trying to get more attention? The worst I can get is some mocking, but if I can become famous, I'm famous."

The person called her dumb and hung up.

After that, he called Zephir to report to him. "Zoey has no brains. We're going to be in trouble if we're behind her fame."

Zephir watched the event on his couch as he swirled the wine in his glass. "I'm just giving her a chance to climb the ladder. What she does is her business."

The assistant was surprised. "You're... not trying to make her famous?"

Zephir slowly sipped his wine. "Do you know what a target is?"

Helping her to fame wasn't his main focus. She would start acting up when she had the illusion she was famous. Given her actions, she would soon become the industry's target and be shot down when she did something wrong.

That was the price for threatening him.

Meanwhile...

When the event organizers asked everyone for a group picture, Zoey walked to the middle and wanted to get the best spot while ignoring everyone else.

Daisie saw her doing that and was going to remind her, but she remembered something and didn't speak. She then walked aside.

The Three Little Guardian Angels Chapter 2425

Chapter 2425

Daisie didn't remind her, but the others around her wouldn't have it. "Zoey, it's a charity event, not a fashion show. I don't think you're the best person to be in the center."

Not anyone could stand in the center. This was a charity event. The big names weren't even standing there, yet she did. No one would be fine with that.

Zoey refuted, "No one said anything, so who are you to talk about it? Come stand here too if you're not happy about it."

That made the artist's face drop.

The organizer's higher-ups frowned and said something to the assistant. The assistant immediately sent someone over to check.

Soon after that, the organizer suddenly requested them to be arranged based on the funds they raised. Those who did not raise any funds would have to stand in the back row.

After that happened, everyone started talking about Zoey.

Her face turned pale because it was an awkward situation.

They whispered to each other, "She didn't raise any funds? The audacity to stand in the middle."

"Not only did she attend a charity event without raising funds, but she also dared to stand in the center. That's such a shameless thing to do."

Zoey's shoulders shook while she grabbed the sides of her dress.

The screen showed the amount raised by each celebrity, and most of them donated funds under their labels. Daisy had donated $9,500,000 in her own name and was the highest fundraiser.

Zoey, who had not donated a cent, not only borrowed an haute couture dress to attend the event but even wanted to stand in the center. Everyone immediately started laughing at her.

After the event, Daisy fixed her dress in the washroom when Zoey suddenly rushed in. "Daisy Vanderbilt, you did that intentionally!"

Daisy paused, then turned to look at her. "What was intentional?"

Zoey slammed her bag on the sink, and it made a loud noise. "You knew what it meant to be standing in the middle but didn't remind me. You wanted me to be the joke, didn't you?"

Daisy had been quiet when she walked to the center. She had been waiting for her to make a joke out of herself!

Daisy laughed. "Didn't someone remind you? Did you forget what you said to them?"

Zoey's face turned dark because even though it was the truth, she still wanted to pin all the blame on Daisy. "It's all your fault!"

Daisy rolled her eyes and didn't want to waste time arguing with her. She was walking away when Zoey grabbed her. "You're feeling guilty, right? Do you feel happy now that I'm being laughed at?"

Daisy pushed her hand away. "You need to see a psychiatrist. What did I do to you? Why do you have to keep showing up? I don't have time for this."

Daisy left the washroom while Zoey glared at her from behind. She thought that Daisy just wanted to laugh at her. She was also her kryptonite in the industry because nothing good came out of being around her.

The longer Zoey thought about it, the angrier she got. She rushed toward Daisy because she was not happy about any of that.

Suddenly, someone yelled, "Daisy!"

Daisie turned around, but Zoey tried to push her. She wasn't able to evade it, and the sudden force made her fall backward.

As Daisie was going to hit the floor, someone rushed out, pushed Zoey away, grabbed Daisie, and pulled her into his arms.

They both fell to the ground.

When Zoey saw Zephir show up, she was stunned.
