Chapter 2233 The Mysterious Experiment

Sebastian smiled and walked over quickly.

‘This isn't open to visitors. I'm afraid it'll cause discomfort to everyone, so it's best not to go in.’

"What's so mysterious that we can't see? How will it cause US discomfort? Mr. Shaw, are you hiding something amazing from US?"

Sebastian smiled subtly.

"It's a laboratory inside, but it's different from what you see out here. To be precise, it's a dissecting room. You're all decent people, and the process is a bit bloody, so it's best not to see it. Why don't you just look at the results?"

When he said this, his secretive behavior made them even more curious.

Nicole was also curious.

Bloody?

Before she could object, Zuthi could not wait to take a look and said, "Mr. Shaw, what's the point of just looking at the results?"

We want to see your project in all aspects, so let US in!"

The people next to him echoed.

‘That’s right. Let’s take a look!’

"Yeah, we're already here anyway. Mr. Shaw, there's no need to hide it from us!"

Sebastian looked like he was in a tangle. Then, he looked at Nicole hesitantly and said, "Okay. Ms. Stanton, if you're squeamish, you shouldn't go in. It's really not suitable for ladies..."

Nicole smiled and nodded.

"Okay. I'll see how I feel. Don't worry about me."

As soon as Sebastian said that, Nicole became even more curious and insisted to see what was inside.

Sebastian walked to the door, took a deep breath, and pushed the door open.

Those people walked in smiling, but in the next second, they all covered their mouths and ran out as if they were about to vomit.

Their complexions were pale.

They did not remain calm.

Moreover, everyone had the same expressions.

Zuthi vomited more, and he looked so pale like he was dying.

Nicole was stunned for a moment. Eric frowned and subconsciously looked at her.

He pursed his lips and said, "Don't go in. I'll take a look first."

Then, he walked over.

Eric walked in and came out within a minute.

Although he did not vomit like everyone else, his face was gray and gloomy.

His face was tense as if he was holding back.

"Eric?"

Nicole stood there and looked at him. What was going on inside that made everyone react like this?

It took a long time for Eric to regain his senses. He glanced at Sebastian meaningfully without any compassion in his eyes.

Sebastian smiled and called the butler to bring over water and towels.

"I already warned you that it's better not to look inside..."

Zuthi downed a bottle of water before he could suppress his nausea.

"I've seen corpses before, but whatever you're doing is definitely more disgusting. Wow, Mr. Shaw! You're really something!"

Nicole paused, let go of the wheelchair, and walked towards the door.

"Ms. Stanton, I think you shouldn't go..."

Sebastian advised her.

‘That's right, Ms. Stanton. Don't look. I don't think I can eat for a few days after seeing that scene.’

"Yeah, it's really gory! I regret coming here!"

Zuthi said bluntly.

He thought he spent his money in vain.

Nicole could not restrain her curiosity and still wanted to go in.

Eric did not stop her because he knew that it was useless.

However, he glanced at Jeff casually and saw that Jeff was looking at Nicole with concern.

That kind of concern was not faked.

It was his heartfelt worry for Nicole.

Eric's face darkened instantly.

Why was Jeff concerned for Nicole?

Why would he feel so worried for a stranger he just met?

This was clearly a reaction that only the closest people should have. How could Jeff have such a strong reaction toward Nicole?

Even Zuthi, who talked to Nicole the most, did not look at her like that.

Eric's heart sank instantly, and he had a bad feeling about it.

After Nicole went in, she saw the countless test benches inside.

There were countless sea creatures of various sizes on the cold and hard bench, but all of them had been dissected.

The blood flowed along the side of the bench onto the sewage pipe on the ground. Nicole did not know what they used to collect the blood.

It was not discharged into the sea because the blood did not attract more organisms.

Whale sharks were among the most insignificant of the fish here.

However, the other creatures lay on the bench with their stomachs cut open in a gory way.

Nicole glanced around and saw many people in white protective clothing dissecting these sea creatures with their scalpels. They were swift, ruthless, and indifferent to what was happening as if these sea creatures were not living things.

Some of them were not even completely dead. Their eyes gradually blurred in silence...

The researchers put some of the parts that had been dissected into airtight jars, and the blood inside horrified Nicole.

If Nicole did not know what was going on, she would have thought it was a film site, and those were just fake props on set.

However, when Nicole stood there, she felt cold all over as if someone had punched her hard on her chest. She felt extremely uncomfortable.

The smell of blood rushed into her nostrils along with a fishy smell. This caught her off guard, and her eyes turned red.

This was too cruel.

At that moment, her stomach suddenly choked violently and made her feel uncomfortable.

Someone came in and dragged her out without saying a word.

Eric's expression was glum as he glanced inside.

Then, he turned to Nicole.

"Are you okay?"

Nicole covered her mouth. Like the rest, Nicole could not help but vomit.

She ran to the other side and wished that she could leave this place.

What kind of advanced technology would require harming marine life in such a gruesome manner?

The others were silent with ashen faces because they had not recovered from the shock just now.

Only Sebastian closed the door quietly and walked over with a smile.

"Is everyone okay? I told you all not to look. There's really not much to see inside. Ms. Stanton, are you okay?"

Nicole's face was ashen and cold.

"Mr. Shaw, what exactly is the achievement you want to show US?

Shouldn't you tell US now?"

The people on the side agreed.

'That's right! Everyone here is very busy. If I'd known it was something like this, I wouldn't have wasted my time here.'

Sebastian smiled faintly.

"It's my fault. We stayed here for too long. Let's move on. I want to show you what's in front."

Everyone looked dispirited like they were no longer in the mood to continue the visit.

However, since they were already there, they could only bite the bullet and follow along.

Eric handed Nicole a handkerchief. At the same time, Jeff, who was sitting in a wheelchair, also handed her a bottle of water.

Nicole took a deep breath and glanced at Eric's handkerchief. This was the handkerchief he used often, so it was not suitable for her to take it.

On the contrary, Jeff handed over an Evian bottle that was on the shelf nearby. It was sealed and safe to drink.

It looked like it was specially prepared for them.
