Chapter 1511

After Grandma May explained, Serenity felt slightly better.

Otherwise, Serenity would think that she did not fulfill her duty as Mrs. York.

“Seren, Jas, you can carry on with your work. I’ll bring along River to hand out the invitation cards to a few families.”

After sitting for a while, Grandma May rose to her feet and was about to leave.

Serenity and Jasmine got up as well.

“Nana, do you want to come over for lunch at noon?”

“No. I’m treating Mr. Queen to a meal at noon. He’s now in our hotel, and I had Kevin keep him company,” said Grandma May as she looked at Serenity with a playful gaze.

Serenity got the point and answered with a smile, “Alright. Do pay us a visit whenever you’re free, Nana. It’s best that you come over and stay with Zachary and I. It’s convenient.”

When she uttered the word “convenient“, she shot a look at Old Mrs. York.

Grandma May understood tacitly and replied, “After River’s birthday, I’ll move to your place. If Zack doesn’t agree, you need to speak up for me. Well, it’s been a long while since I last mocked Zack. I miss. mocking him.”

Everyone burst into laughter.

“Serenity, Ms. Sox, Nana and I will take our leave.”

While smiling, River wanted to hold Nana, yet she pushed his hand away.

“I’m not so old to the extent that I need you to hold me. When that happens, I’ll soon be reunited with your grandpa.”

At the mention of her partner who passed away years ago, Grandma May could not help but sigh and say, “It feels as though I watched sunrise and sunset with your grandpa yesterday. With the blink of an eye, he has left us for nearly a decade.”

“Nana.”

What feared the Yorks most was when Grandma May thought about her late spouse.

Grandma May was soon pulled back from her drifting thoughts and said, “This was in the past. I can now face it openly. Humans have to die one day. It’s a matter of time. Your grandpa went to heaven earlier than me. By the time I reach there, he’ll have familiarized himself with the environment. Having him guide me, I won’t panic.”

“Nana, you’ll live a long life. Grandpa would hope that you treasure your life.”

River comforted Nana. “Nana, you have us.”

Grandma May laughed. “Live a long life? Yes, I need to live a long life. I need to help my grandsons to look for wives.”

River said, “Nana... I’m still young. I’m only twenty–three.”

“You’re not young anymore. When your grandpa was your age, he had given birth to your eldest uncle.”

“Nana, people of your generation got married early. This era is different. Now, we advocate late marriage and childbirth.”

Serenity said, “Nana, River is not in a rush.”

River darted an appreciative glance at Serenity who stood up for him.

Jasmine grinned and said, “Grandma May, you have quite a number of grandsons. Those who are older than River are still single. I think it’s better for you to pressure them into getting married in the order of their age. It’s not easy, and it takes at least two years for them to actually get married after being pressured.”

Except for Zachary, the rest were unmarried. It would take at least two years for Grandma May to actually make each of them get married after pressuring them.

This meant that she would need to pressure them for sixteen years before her grandsons could all get married. She would be almost a centenarian by then.

“I’m not saying River is in a rush. He’s not. He still needs training. My grandson who’s twenty–five is still single, that’s why I briefly mentioned it. If any of them are still single at the age of twenty–eight, I’ll pressure them.”

River heaved a sigh of relief.

Thankfully, he was only twenty-three.

Anyway, he had a few older brothers acting as his shield. One of them was twenty-six and still single. If Grandma May were to pressure someone into getting married, that said brother would be the one first.

“Serenity, Ms. Sox, you don’t have to send me. I’ll bring Nana to visit the Stones.”

River opened the car door. After Grandma May got into the car, he turned around and bade goodbye to Serenity and Jasmine.

Serenity and Jasmine stood at the entrance of the bookstore and watched River and Grandma May leave.

After River’s car was some distance away, Jasmine said, “River keeps such a low profile.”

River’s car brand was ordinary. He bought the car for $101,000 to $102,000. Compared to the cars that Zachary and the rest had, River’s vehicle was just like a bicycle.

Serenity responded, “River is about to start working, but he hasn’t proven himself. He can’t overindulge in his life, so he keeps a low profile. When he’s successful in his career and holds a high position in York Corporation one day as his older brothers did, he can change his car.”

Jasmine sighed and said, “Seren, you’re really lucky. You found such good in-laws. Your in-laws’ family values are wonderful.”

Serenity recalled how Grandma May had wanted to introduce her eldest grandson to Serenity so they could get into a relationship. When Serenity and Zachary got married, the old lady said that she introduced her best grandson to Serenity and would not ill-treat Serenity.

Nana did as she promised.

Sure enough, the man Serenity married was the most outstanding man among the Yorks.

“Yes, my in-laws are good too. But I don’t have so many brothers-in-law.”

Jasmine was satisfied with her future in-laws.

Jasmine returned to the bookstore with Serenity. She laughed and said, “Your brothers-in-law are all good-looking. I was thinking when all nine young masters of the Yorks show up at your wedding, it’s going to look like a male beauty pageant.”

Serenity grinned and said, “The Yorks have good genes. The men have good looks and marry good-looking wives. Considering that the couples look good, how bad can their children get?”

After some thought, Jasmine felt that it made sense.

“When Zachary and you have a child, it must be either a handsome boy or a pretty girl.”

“The son should look like him, whereas the daughter should look like me.”

Jasmine said, “I heard it’s better for the son to look like the mother and the daughter to look like the father.”

At the thought of the Yorks’ family values, Jasmine added, “Regardless of who the child looks like, he or she will be extraordinary.”

“I’m not ambitious. If I have a child, all I want is for him or her to be safe and healthy. Other matters are secondary.”

Being safe and healthy mattered most.

With that, Serenity said with a self-deprecating laugh, “I don’t even have a child. It’s too early to talk about these things.”

Knowing her concern, Jasmine quickly comforted her. “Your wedding hasn’t been held yet, so there’s no need to rush into having a child. What Zachary said to the public is that you both will enjoy your moments as husband and wife first. I think so too. Josh and I aren’t planning to have a child in the first two years of our marriage.”

“We should enjoy being pampered by our beloved husbands. If we give birth to a child too early, the love will be divided. I won’t be able to enjoy undivided love from Josh all by myself.

Jasmine chuckled. “I really enjoy Josh’s entire love for me.”

Once Jasmine had a child, Josh would still prioritize her. Even so, he would definitely love the child as well. Jasmine would feel that she could not have undivided love from him.

Serenity was amused by Jasmine's statement.

"You'll actually feel jealous of your child."

Jasmine said in a self-righteous manner, "Josh is my man. How can I not feel jealous when other people grab his attention, even if they're my children? My children will be pampered by their other halves in the future, so they can't share Josh's love with me."

"Perhaps Mr. Bucham is worried that he'll be jealous of his children."

Serenity laughed and said, "My husband is definitely going to be jealous of my child. He's an overbearing person. On the outside, he looks magnanimous, but he's actually narrow-minded and overbearing."

"Seren, I feel that you're now publicly displaying your affection with Zachary."

"I don't have to publicly display our affection. You and Mr. Bucham are lovey-dovey. Jas, you'll be staying at the store today, won't you?"

"Mhm."

Jasmine then asked, "Do you have anything to take care of? You can carry on with your work. I can watch over the store."

"I'll head to Spring Blossoms and rush back before half past eleven"

"Go ahead. Look around and see if you can buy two houseplants that are pleasing to the eye to be put in our store."

Serenity instinctively said, "The plants in our store are growing well. You don't need to buy any more houseplants."

"Buy some succulent plants."

"Okay, I'll help you buy some."

Serenity took her car key and walked out of the bookstore. She said to Harry, who was strolling around outside, "I'm heading to Spring Blossoms. You don't have to come along."

“Alright, Missus.”

Harry knew that his colleague would be protecting Serenity in secret.

Even if he did not follow Serenity, her safety would be assured.

What was more, Serenity was nimble.

Currently, no one had the audacity to harm Serenity. Harming Serenity would mean turning against many wealthy families.

Serenity went to Spring Blossoms but did not see Camryn there.

“Haven’t your boss returned?” Serenity asked a shop assistant who was pruning a rose.

“Ms. Camryn came back to stock products. After that, she received a call from a regular customer who wanted a bouquet of flowers, so she personally sent the bouquet over.”

“When will she be back?”

“I’m not sure. Mrs. York, why don’t you go home first? Once Ms. Camryn is back, I’ll get her to call you.”

Serenity said, “Camryn usually doesn’t call me back after she returns. Her phone has always been turned off recently.”

The shop assistant responded, “Mrs. York, please leave your contact details. Once Ms. Camryn is back, I’ll call you. Ms. Camryn has changed her phone number, so she might not remember your number.”

“Camryn has changed her number, huh?”

Deep down, Serenity was moaning. No wonder Callum said Camryn was always unreachable. The outcome was still the same after Serenity tried to call Camryn twice.

It turned out that Camryn had changed her number.

In fact, Camryn was trying to escape from Callum. She did not want to be involved with him.

Callum’s journey to winning back his wife’s heart was going to be a long one.

“Yes. Ms. Camryn has recently changed her number.”

Serenity uttered an “oh” as she gave some thought before leaving her contact details with the shop assistant. She then left Spring Blossoms.

Serenity called Callum. When Callum picked up the call, she said, "Callum, Camryn has changed her number. I went to her flower shop twice this morning but didn't see her. Have you seen her?"

Callum answered, "I'm waiting for her at Beans and Cream to send me flowers."

He had no idea what Camryn's new number was as the shop assistant refused to tell him. He had no choice but to recall the number for Spring Blossoms. Then, he got the store manager of Beans and Cream to phone Spring Blossoms to have Camryn send the flowers over.

He would only be able to see her by doing so..

"Is Camryn going there alone?"

"Another worker is sending her over by an electric scooter. Thank you, Serenity."

Although Serenity had not been able to see Camryn and speak up for Callum in front of her, she had visited Spring Blossoms twice in the morning. This touched Callum and made him feel that Serenity was concerned about his matter.

"Don't mention it. We're family. When you see her, don't frighten her again."

"Serenity, I deeply regretted it. I won't repeat that mistake anymore."

He kissed Camryn without having captured her heart. That offended and frightened her.

Callum kept blaming himself for not being able to hold back his urge.

Serenity became at ease. She ended the call and drove directly to the bookstore.

Meanwhile, Grandma May visited the Marshalls with River. After delivering them an invitation card, she visited the Stones since both their houses were not far away from each other.

When Grandma May visited the Stones, Remy was at the Stones' place since he was their new neighbor. It seemed that he was planning to sponge food off them.

Upon hearing that Grandma May and River were here, Mr. and Mrs. Stone came out to welcome them. personally.

“Why didn’t you inform me before coming? Let me pick you up.” After Grandma May got out of the car. Mrs. Stone went forward to hold her. With a smile, she complained that Grandma May did not let her know about her visit beforehand.

Grandma May grinned and replied, “I got River to send me here, and it was convenient. I didn’t need to trouble you

“What trouble? Being able to pick you up is our honor. This must be your seventh grandson. He’s really good-looking. Old Mrs. York, you’re blessed. Look at your grandsons. All of them are good-looking and capable. This is admirable.”

Mrs. Stone had two sons and one daughter. Only her eldest son was responsible and outstanding, so he took over Stone Group.

Her second son had no interest in doing business. As for her daughter, she had been pampered since she was young and only started a business recently.

Mrs. Stone really admired Grandma May for her grandsons.

Besides Mrs. Stone, other old ladies admired Grandma May greatly too.

“They’re just good-looking but not as brilliant as Clive. Clive alone is better than all my grandsons.”

Mrs. Stone laughed before she responded, “Don’t always compliment Clive that way. If he hears it, he’ll be complacent.”

“I’m just telling the truth. Clive and Zack are the most promising young talents in Wiltspoon. Everyone praises them.”

“Grandma May,” Elisa greeted her smilingly.

Remy, who came out with Elisa, greeted Grandma May politely as well.

The moment Grandma May caught sight of Remy, she said with a grin, “Remy, you’re here too.”

Remy replied gently, “I came over to see the renovation progress of my house. I knew Mrs. Stone and Elisa were at home, so I came to drink some coffee.”

Grandma May laughed like a fox. “You’ll be neighbors in the future. You should get along with each other more often. They say a near friend is better than a far-dwelling kinsman. It’s important that neighbors get along well.”

“You’re right. This is what I thought. Whenever I come over to see the renovation progress of my house, I’ll pay Mrs. Stone a visit.”

As Mrs. Stone listened to the conversation between Grandma May and Remy, she was secretly moaning that Remy was trying to approach her darling daughter on the pretext of wanting to develop strong neighbor relationships.

Then, he planned to capture her daughter’s heart little by little.

Chapter 1515

It so happened that Elisa and Remy could get along well. This made Mrs. Stone feel ambivalent about it.

The message that Mrs. Stone had Zachary convey to Remy did not seem to work.

Remy still often came over as a neighbor to visit the Stones. He even purposely came during mealtimes. Obviously, he wanted to sponge food off the Stones.

After everyone entered the house, Elisa poured a glass of water for Grandma May.

Remy helped to bring some fruit and dessert over.

Grandma May noticed that Remy had become familiar with the surroundings of the Stones’ house.

What a cunning kid.

He even left Mrs. Stone feeling helpless.

After all, he had not confessed his love to Elisa and it was normal for him to have familiarized himself with the surroundings of the Stones’ house considering that he came over frequently.

What was more, Remy was very shameless. He would turn a blind eye to Mrs. Stone’s grim expression and Mr. Stone’s glower. Anyhow, he would brazenly come over as long as Elisa was willing to interact with him.

Among the Stones, Alice was the only one who supported Remy’s idea of getting together with Elisa.

Alice found Remy suitable to be Elisa's partner.

It was mainly because Remy and Elisa were compatible and had many common topics to talk about.

Elisa used to be depressed when she was infatuated with Zachary. There was no response from him, and she was unable to get over him. She mustered her courage to confess her love to him and pursue him bravely. In the end, it was to no avail.

When Elisa got along with Remy, Alice could always hear her laugh, and Elisa's smile was always bright..

Alice had advised her husband not to stop Remy from pursuing Elisa.

It was because Elisa was genuinely happy when she was together with Remy.

As Elisa's sister-in-law, Alice did not want Elisa to get married to someone who lived far away either but all she thought about was Elisa's happiness, so why stop Elisa from marrying Remy if she was happy?

Remy deliberately bought the villa beside the Stones house. He had his villa renovated based on Elisa's preference.

Remy asked Elisa for advice and opinion on the layout of his garden. In fact, he wanted to design it based on her preference.

"Old Mrs. York, are you here today for Seren's wedding matters?"

Mrs. Stone waited for Grandma May to finish drinking her water before asking her. She wanted to know Grandma May's objective for coming over.

She thought that the Yorks planned to bring forward the wedding.

Now, Liberty was still in the hospital. Mrs. Stone was Serenity's aunt, so she was considered an elder. If the Yorks planned to bring forward the wedding, Grandma May could discuss it with Mrs. Stone.

"It's too early for Seren to prepare for her wedding now. Anyway, I don't need to worry about it. Zack will make preparations for it on his own. He's not even ready for family support."

Grandma May glanced at River and smiled tenderly, "It's River's birthday next Saturday. I planned to hold a birthday party for him. I'd like you to join us."

While speaking, Grandma May took out an invitation card and handed it to Mrs. Stone.

“Drey, this is the invitation card. Come with your family to gather with us that day. Our families hardly get together. We’ll be relatives in the future. We need to interact more so we can be close.”

Mrs. Stone took the card and said with a smile, “Old Mrs. York, you’re right. We need to interact more so we can be close. None of the relatives can develop close relationships if they don’t interact with each. other.”

Grandma May then gave Remy an invitation card too.

Mrs. Stone opened the invitation and took a look at it. After that, she said to Grandma May, “Alice is probably the only one in our family who won’t be joining the party. She’s experiencing serious reactions to pregnancy, and she feels sleepy easily. Except for Alice, all of us will attend.”

She turned her eyes to River and said gently, “Congratulations, River.”

River grasped the significance of her message. Similarly, he smiled gently at her. “Thank you, Mrs. Stone.”
