

Read Novel Married At First Sight Chapter 1757

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1757 -Camryn struggled for several days, until her aunt Azalea was about to leave Wiltspoon to go home. After sending aunt Azalea to the airport, she and Dalton together returned to the city center.

“Sister, should we go back to the store or go home?” After getting off the expressway, Dalton asked Camryn.

After thinking for a while, Camryn said, “Let’s go back to the store first.”

“Okay.” Dalton sent her back to the store directly.

Back in Spring Blossoms, one assistance was guarding the store, and another assistance was delivering the flowers to the customers who had ordered bouquets.

Dalton: “Sister, I have to go back too. Melissa calls and sends messages every day to ask me when I will go back.”

Camryn said with a smile, “Then go back quickly. As long as you don’t have meetings, you can spend more time with her.”

During high-level meetings, Dalton had to fly to Wiltspoon to sit beside her and help her operate the video conference.

“By the way, bring a bouquet of flowers back home.” Camryn said that she was going to help Dalton wrap a bunch of flowers for him to take home and give it to Melissa.

Dalton said with a smile: “I still have to take the plane, take the plane with a bouquet of flowers? Forget it, I will go to the flower shop to buy a bouquet of flowers after I go back, and go to the jewelry store to get the set I ordered for her earlier. New jewelry, buy her two sets of skin care products, she will be very happy.”

“Brother, my sister-in-law is so easy to satisfy, unlike other women who want this and that, she never takes the initiative to ask for that.”

After being moved by his girlfriend Melissa, Dalton accepted Camryn as his lifelong sister. He was with his girlfriend wholeheartedly and prepared to start a new family. It was as a result of his girlfriend’s sterling character. He was generally very tolerant, despite the fact that he had moments of jealousy. His assistance with and pampering of Camryn.

In his words, without Camryn, there would be no Dalton today.

Now Melissa was just as thankful to Camryn as he was, and their relationship just kept getting better.

This made Dalton very moved and satisfied.

Camryn said: "My sister-in-law is more interested in you than she is in your money. Purchase new skirts for my sister-in-law. Skirts are more comfortable to wear in the summer."

Dalton: "However, your sister-in-law dislikes wearing skirts. I'm going to get her a Hermès bag."

Camryn smiled, thinking that Dalton's gift for Melissa was enough, so she didn't say anything more.

After Dalton sat in the flower shop for a while, he left.

Camryn still wanted to keep him for dinner before leaving, but he wanted to go home and return, Camryn didn't want to keep him for dinner and asked him to fly back to meet Melissa for dinner.

The afternoon heat wave was still going strong at five o'clock in the evening.

The summer was extremely hot in Wilspeen. Typically, the heat wave begins to subside late at night, but it returned at dawn.

In this kind of weather, the air conditioner was inseparable, and turning on the fan couldn't solve the problem.

After Camryn asked about the situation in the store these days, she wrapped up a bouquet of roses by herself. She hugged the bouquet and said to the assistant: "I'm leaving for a while. I probably won't be here at night. When you leave work, you will close the store."

After a pause, she continued, "This month, I'm going to double your bonuses."

The earnings had increased rapidly, and she was no longer in debt. She thanked the two store assistants for their assistance. She couldn't treat the two store assistants who had been with her for several years while caring for the flowers and plants in the store.

They were not only bosses and employees, but also a friendship.

"Thank you boss."

Hearing that there would be double bonus, the assistant grinned.

They remained at Spring Blossoms. They were, in fact, people who treasured flowers because they liked them, so they stayed for a long time. And the boss never treated them badly.

They were all aware that the boss had kept the store open until now because she did not want them to lose their jobs. Finding work in such hot weather was exhausting.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-