Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1776 -Liberty couldn't say words of comfort either.

All she could do was help Mrs. Brown to sit down on a chair, then took out a small pack of tissues that she carried with her, and handed Mrs. Brown to wipe away her tears.

Mr. Brown's eyes were also red, and he turned his back from time to time to wipe his eyes.

The couple had only one son, Hank. If something happened to the son, what would they do?

It took a long time for Mrs. Brown to stop crying.

But she was still unable to speak because she was too emotional.

Liberty looked at Mr. Brown, and asked with concern: "Uncle, how is Hank?"

Mr. Brown choked up and said, "The doctor hasn't yet emerged, and I've just seen other doctors entering with blood bags while he's still being saved. He lost a lot of blood as they were also delivered in bags one by one..."

Thinking of his son's tragic situation, Mr. Brown burst into tears again.

He never dreamed that Jessica would actually stab his son, the kind that stabbed him to death.

If they hadn't heard the movement and quickly used the spare key to open the door and go in, the son might have died on the spot.

His daughter was also stabbed by Jessica in order to save her son.

That woman was too ruthless, too ruthless!

It's in vain that his son treated her so well.

Jessica squatted in the bathroom for a long time. When she came out, her legs were numb. She accidentally fell and lost the child. Hank never blamed her. No matter what people said about her, Hank always defended her, refused to divorce her, how could she do it!

Mr. Brown was puzzled.

His thoughts were the same as Liberty's. He felt that if Jessica wanted to kill someone, shouldn't they be the ones she wanted to kill the most?

Why did Jessica kill Hank?

How could Hank, a big man, be killed by Jessica?

When the tragedy happened, the young couple was resting in the room, and no one knew how they got into a fight to the point of going to the knife.

Mr. Brown was glad that his wife couldn't change his sh!t, so he stole the key to his son's room, saying it was a spare, but in fact, he wanted to be able to enter his son's room at any time, and see how many houses his daughter-in-law had lost.

When Liberty was the daughter-in-law of the Brown family, Mrs. Brown did this all the time.

"Liberty..." Mrs. Brown was finally able to continue talking. She took Liberty's hand and cried: "What if Hank... I will talk to your Uncle, what should we do?"

Liberty could only comfort and say, "Auntie, the doctor hasn't given up on Hank, which means he can still be saved, so don't worry too much."

"Liberty, bring Sonny here, just in case ...Maybe let Sonny give his father a ride."

The person who said this was Mr. Brown.

When the sound fell, he was poohed by his wife and slapped a few times by his wife.

Mrs. Brown also scolded him: "What unlucky words do you use, Hank won't pass away, Liberty is correct, the doctors are still hopeful that they can save him, Hank won't pass away, he won't pass away! He won't pass away because he's still young and only in his early 30s."

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1777 -After scolding Mr. Brown, Mrs. Brown said to Liberty with tears in her eyes: "Liberty, Please bring Sonny here; Hank still cares deeply for his only child, and he believes his son desperately misses him."

Liberty comforted her a few more words.

“Serenity and Elisa went to the vegetable market today, Sonny should have followed her back to my hometown, I called Serenity to ask when they will come back.” Liberty did not refuse the request of the former in-laws.

Regardless of whether Hank could get over it or not, Sonny was his son, and it was right for Sonny to visit Hank in the hospital.

Divorce is a divorce. Liberty never spoke ill of Hank in front of his son, let alone taught his son to resent Hank. Anyway, Hank paid Sonny’s child support.

Mrs. Brown cried and nodded.

She had a sense of foreboding, thinking that her son would not be able to survive.

But she kept praying in her heart that her son would survive.

Liberty walked aside to call Serenity.

Serenity quickly answered her sister’s call, and she asked on the phone: “Sister, what’s the matter?”

At this time, Liberty was in the hospital taking care of the hard-spoken and soft-hearted Mr. Lewis, and when she suddenly called, Serenity was always worried. what’s the matter.

Liberty: “Sonny with you?”

Serenity: “Elisa and I went back to our hometown, the road is too far, so we didn’t take Sonny with us, and Sonny followed Zachary in his company. Sister, is it Mr. Lewis who wants to see Sonny?”

Serenity thought it was Duncan who missed Sonny.

Sonny would follow his mother to the hospital to visit Duncan every few days. Duncan could harden his heart to adults, but he couldn’t harden his heart to Sonny. If Sonny cried twice, he would soften his heart and agree to everything immediately Sonny.

After Liberty was silent, she said: “Serenity, something happened to Hank and Chelsea. I don’t know why. Jessica stabbed Hank and Chelsea. Chelsea was not seriously injured and her life was not in danger. Hank has been in the emergency room for several hours.

The situation may not be very good. His parents are worried that he will not survive, so they begged me to take Sonny to the hospital. If Hank fails, ask Sonny to send him for his Dad’s last ride.”

Serenity was stunned for a moment, and then asked: "Sister, is this true? Chelsea was stabbed by Jessica, wasn't Chelsea who was seriously injured? Hank treated her very well, could it be Hank? Hank's fatal nature is hard to change, and domestic violence again?"

"I don't know the reason. Chelsea was cut by Jessica to save Hank. It means that Jessica's target is Hank. He wanted to kill Hank. Hank, a big man, was counter-killed. Either he was slow to react, or He just fell asleep, and Jessica did it suddenly."

Before the divorce, Liberty once said harsh words to Hank's domestic violence, she said that if Hank dared to domestic violence her, as long as Hank Asleep, she could chop Hank up, unless Hank stayed up all the time, or never came home.

Hank was stunned, and the husband and wife were so embarrassed that they didn't dare to do it again.

Hank's current fate, Serenity felt very happy, but for the sake of her nephew, she didn't show it, but said to her sister: "Then I will call Zachary and ask Zachary to send Sonny to the hospital."

Liberty hummed.

Knowing that her sister was busy now, Liberty quickly ended the call.

When Liberty returned to her former in-laws, the door of the emergency room finally opened.

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1778 -Doctor: "Hank's Family."

"Doctor, we are his parents. Doctor, how is my son doing?"

Mr. Brown helped his wife with weak legs to meet her, and asked anxiously.

The doctor said: "He has too severe of an injury. We completed every operation that was possible. He's still in danger. He needs to spend some time in the intensive care unit. It is up to him whether he can wake up."

Mrs. Brown's body limped.

Mr. Brown couldn't hold his wife steady, but Liberty gave her a hand to stabilize her, and Mr. Brown didn't let her fall to the ground.

“Doctor, save my son, please save my son, I’m just a son, he’s still so young...” Mrs. Brown grabbed the doctor’s white coat and begged.

“Auntie.” Liberty pulled her hand back, apologized and thanked the doctor.

The doctor understood the feelings of the family members. He said: “We have done everything we can. We are not sure whether the injured will survive. You should be mentally prepared.”

In the words of the doctor, Hank was seriously injured. After so many doctors’ efforts to rescue him, Hank was still not out of danger. He had been transferred to the ICU to live. Whether he could wake up and come out of the ICU alive depended on Hank himself.

In a word, the doctor had done his best.

“Thank you doctor.” Liberty thanked the doctor again.

Mr. Brown persuaded his wife: “Don’t cry, Hank is still alive, don’t cry.”

Mrs. Brown was helped to sit back on the chair, took a tissue from Liberty and wiped her tears, then she remembered something, and said to Liberty: “Hank is still alive, has been moved to the intensive care unit, and cannot allow his family to stay with him. Liberty, you call Serenity so that she doesn’t have to send Sonny here. Don’t let Sonny visit the hospital because he won’t be able to see his father, even when he comes. Sonny is so little, and it’s not a good place. “

Mrs. Brown had no idea if Hank would live or not. If the son had died, Sonny was the only grandchild who could provide for the two elderly people’s needs, and Mrs. Brown’s focus on Sonny had suddenly increased significantly.

Mr. Brown also said: “Liberty, your aunt is right, Sonny can’t see Hank when he comes here now, so he should not come here.”

Liberty thought that her ex-husband had already been transferred to the ICU, even if sonny was sent here, he really couldn’t see his father. So, she agreed to the two elders and called Zachary, so that Zachary would not have to send Sonny over.

Hank was still in danger, but at least Sonny knew he was still alive.

Under Liberty’s comfort, Mr. Brown and Mrs. Brown became more emotionally stable.

Mr. Brown said to Liberty: “Liberty, thank you for coming to see us and comfort us. Now Hank doesn’t need to take care of you. You can go about your business. Your aunt and I can just stay here.”

Liberty comforted them again. After saying a few words to them, she left.

After Liberty left, Mrs. Brown beat her heart, and regretfully said: "It's wrong, it's wrong, it's all wrong!"

Mr. Brown took her hand, "What are you talking about now, let's pray Hank can get through it is the real thing, why is that Jessica doing it to death!"

Only when she lost, she would regret it, what's the use?

At the beginning, Mrs. Brown yelled the loudest, and the son could marry a better one after divorce.

Now, where was it going?

Jessica was not half as good as Liberty.

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1779 -Jessica had been apprehended by the police, she was going to jail, but she was only able to serve outside prison because she was pregnant; now the child was dead, and she had stabbed Hank, which would have added to the crime if Hank hadn't survived.

She just fatally stabbed someone with a knife. If there were a new trial, the death penalty would likely not be acquitted.

Liberty wanted to go to the inpatient department to find Mrs. Lewis and Duncan, but received a call from Mrs. Lewis telling her that the mother and son had returned to the ward.

Liberty went directly to Duncan's ward.

"Miss Liberty, you are finally back. The fourth young master is losing his temper again and smashed things. He smashed everything he could touch." As soon as Liberty appeared, the bodyguards of the Lewis family told her.

"Why is Mr. Lewis losing his temper again?" Liberty asked as she pushed the door open to go in.

The bodyguard replied: "We don't know either. After Madam Lewis pushed the Fourth Young Master back, within two minutes, the Fourth Young Master started arguing loudly, saying that he was going to be discharged from the hospital and go home. Madam Lewis comforted him, but he couldn't listen and started smashing things. "

Liberty had already walked into the ward.

Duncan: "I want to be discharged from the hospital, I want to go home, I don't want to stay here anymore, I don't want to stay here for a minute!"

Duncan didn't lie back on the hospital bed, he was still sitting in a wheelchair, so he could slide the wheelchair by himself, They smashed whatever they caught, and the ward was already in a mess.

Doctors and nurses were telling him to calm down.

Mrs. Lewis was anxious, angry and distressed about this.

Mr. Lewis, on the other hand, acted like he was used to it, and silently began to clean up the mess all over the floor.

The doctor: "Mr. Lewis, you can't be discharged from the hospital yet. If you persist for a while, you will be discharged. You can see that you are much better now, and you can no longer..."

"How am I? How am I? Tell me What's wrong with me? I can't even walk by myself, so sitting in a wheelchair is fine? I'm lying down here, and I'm lying down when I'm discharged from the hospital. I'm going to be discharged from the hospital, and I'll lie down at home!" Duncan was actually in a bad mood.

Liberty went to visit her ex-husband, knowing that Hank's life and death were at stake, since he was Sonny's father, it was normal for Liberty to visit her, but Duncan was just in a bad mood.

After the car accident, Duncan didn't feel better.

A well-behaved person spent the entire day in a hospital bed, unable to walk. Regardless of a person's disposition, he would eventually experience an emotional breakdown after a lengthy period.

"Duncan, listen to the doctor. The doctor said that you will have to stay in the hospital for a while before you can be discharged. Let's listen to the doctor, shall we?" Mrs. Lewis coaxed Duncan like a child.

"I don't want to. I want to be discharged. I'm going to be discharged now. If you don't let me go, I won't stay anymore. I'll go by myself." Duncan refused willfully, insisting on leaving the hospital now.

He slid the wheelchair by himself again, trying to get out.

Liberty came in just in time, and the two almost ran into each other.

"Mr. Lewis, where are you going?" Liberty asked him.

With a sullen face, Duncan said in a vicious voice: "I'm going to be discharged from the hospital, I'm going to be discharged now! Liberty, you go and help me with the discharge procedures, I'm going to be discharged from the hospital, I'm lying down everywhere, it's not the same when I go home?"

Liberty looked at the mess all over the floor, then looked at the doctor, and asked the doctor: "Doctor, can Mr. Lewis be discharged early?"

The doctor said: "Mr. Lewis's other injuries have healed very well. He only has a leg injury. It is reasonable to say that he can be discharged from the hospital. If Mr. Lewis insists on being discharged from the hospital, we can also discharge him, but don't let Mr. Lewis go too soon. For rehabilitation, let him recuperate for a while before he can start rehabilitation."

Duncan: "You heard me, the doctor said that I can be discharged from the hospital, go, go and help me with the discharge procedures."
