Novel Chapter 1726 -Sonny blinked, but he couldn't describe his discomfort.

Zachary: "He must be uncomfortable. Serenity, you go get the thermometer and help him measure the temperature."

As one might expect, Serenity had already gone and gotten the thermometer so she could help Sonny take his temperature.

After a few minutes.

Zachary took out the thermometer from Sonny's armpit and handed it to Serenity.

Serenity raised the thermometer and looked at it, and said, "At 38.3 degrees, he really does have a fever. I put my hand on his forehead and felt that it wasn't too hot. When I took a test, it was so high. I'll go upstairs to change clothes and take him to the hospital right away. Also I'll call the teacher and ask for leave for him."

Serenity took out her mobile phone and called the teacher to ask for leave for Sonny.

Zachary said: "Don't worry. Let's see what physical cooling does, and then we'll call the family doctor to come look."

"It's also possible." Serenity turned around and poured a glass of warm water for her nephew, "Sonny, come here, Drink a glass of water, if you have a fever, drink more warm water."

Sonny nestled in Zachary's arms, looking bored.

Serenity sat down and held a water glass for Sonny to drink.

Sonny didn't want to drink after drinking half a glass.

Serenity: "Sonny, would you like some porridge?"

Sonny nodded.

Serenity got up, first went to get some antipyretic stickers for Sonny to put on, and then filled a bowl of porridge for Sonny to eat.

Because of the discomfort, Sonny ate half a bowl and said no.

No matter how much Serenity coaxed him, he refused to eat any more.

Sonny had a fever. Although Serenity was not a mother, the little guy grew up under her care after birth. The relationship between aunt and nephew was not inferior to that between mother and child. She was anxious and asked Sonny to drink warm water for a while. After a while, she carried him upstairs to take a warm bath.

She took Sonny's temperature every half an hour, and when she saw that the temperature hadn't dropped much, she became even more anxious, then went to the family medicine cabinet to search for antipyretics, brought thermometer, and took Sonny's temperature again. When the temperature dropped to thirty-eight degrees, she put down thermometer again and stopped taking medicine for Sonny for the time being.

Seeing her anxious look, Zachary ordered Sam to call the family doctor.

During this period, Jasmine didn't see Serenity going to the bookstore, so she sent a message to ask her. When Jasmine learned that Sonny had a fever, she replied to Serenity: "Take good care of Sonny, I'm in the store."

Serenity hadn't told Liberty yet, so as not to worry her, she was also very busy and tired now.

Liberty had to take care of the business of All You Can Eat, and she had to go to the hospital to take care of Duncan.

Serenity planned to inform Liberty if Sonny's fever subsided.

"Serenity, you go eat something first." Zachary said, "You haven't had breakfast yet."

Serenity: "Okay, I'll go eat something first, and then I will replace you."

Sonny felt uncomfortable and clingy, refused to play on the ground, let him sit on the sofa, he had his mouth flattened.

Zachary had to hold Sonny all the time.

Serenity filled her stomach as fast as she could, then replaced Zachary and asked Zachary to have breakfast.

Soon, the family doctor came.

The doctor stated after examining Sonny, "He has caught a cold, and the temperature of the air conditioner should not be adjusted too low. Young lady, what is the baby's temperature now?"

"After taking a warm bath just now, I wanted to feed him porridge. I took his body temperature and it dropped to 38 degrees. I touched his forehead and felt that his temperature dropped again a little bit."

Serenity answered the doctor, and she picked up the thermometer again to help Sonny take the temperature.

Novel Chapter 1727 -The family doctor said: "The oldest young mistress, I'll give the child some medicine, and his body temperature will drop completely. Don't give him medicine for the time being; if it doesn't go away completely, if he has recurring fevers, and his body temperature exceeds 38 degrees 5 degrees, then give him medicine. I'll return tomorrow to take a look."

"Don't I need to give him medicine now?" Serenity asked.

Zachary answered, "Try not to take medicine if he can. All medicines are 30% poisonous."

Just got a shot and some medicine for some minor issues. It would be very problematic in the future if people developed drug resistance.

Serenity also knew that she could try not to take medicine if she could, but every time Sonny was sick, she and her sister were very nervous and anxious, hoping that the child would get better soon, so the first thing they did was take the child to the doctor, get an infusion, or take medicine.

A few minutes later, Serenity took out the thermometer. After reading it, she breathed a sigh of relief and said, "It's thirty-seven degrees eight."

Sonny Left his aunt's arms, and asked to eat dumplings.

"Okay, let's eat dumplings."

Serenity asked the family doctor again: "Doctor, Sonny can be lowered by physical cooling, so he don't need to take medicine for the time being, right?"

It was estimated that the air conditioner was turned on at night, kicking the quilt and catching a cold would cause a cold and fever.

Serenity felt relieved.

The Doctor prescribed medicine for Sonny for a day, explained a few more words, and then left.

Serenity only called Liberty when she and Sonny were eating dumplings.

At this time, Liberty was already in the hospital.

Duncan still ordered the bodyguards to keep Liberty out of the door.

With the help of Mrs. Lewis like yesterday, Liberty swaggered into Duncan's ward like a rascal.

Duncan picked up the bouquet Liberty had just bought and threw it on the ground while saying something cold: "Throw it out!"

Liberty put down the insulated lunch box, which contained the bone soup she made for Duncan today.

Seeing that Duncan was about to reach out and overturn the insulated lunch box again, Liberty quickly pushed the lunch box to the edge, so that Duncan would not be able to reach it.

She just bent down to pick up the bunch of flowers, sat down on the chair in front of the bed, and said, "Don't you like this bunch of flowers? It's very beautiful. I bought them at Spring Blossoms. The flowers there are all beautiful."

Duncan: "I don't like it, throw it away, don't bring it into my room. I can't smell the scent of flowers, it stinks!"

Liberty: "I think it smells so good, I'll go out and buy a vase later, put the flowers in the vase, If you don't want to be stink to death, just recuperate honestly and don't bother the people around you. The fragrance of flowers doesn't stink at all, why don't I buy a few durians and smell the fragrance of flowers?"

Duncan stared at her.

Liberty deliberately said: "If you don't take good care of your injuries and get well soon, I will put a few durians and a few bunches of flowers in your ward every day to suffocate you to death."

Duncan remained silent with a dark face.

Durian was his least favorite food because It smelled bad.
