

Wu Shutong had no choice but to say respectfully, "Good Lord, I understand, don't worry, this subordinate must take care of it!"

The Lord of England warned, "Before the ship sinks, you must not let any of them see through your purpose. Once they know that we are going to kill people to silence them, they may try their best to expose our secrets. I want them to be willing." boarded the boat, set off full of longing, and then died quietly!"

Wu Shutong immediately said, "Don't worry, the Lord, the subordinates will do it!" The Lord said, "Hurry up and go to Cyprus. I will report!" "My subordinates obey!"

Half an hour later, a private plane took off from Naples Airport.

Wu Shutong set off for Cyprus with a few confidants, aerial drones and other equipment.

After the plane landed, they repeated Nakul Bo Ou Bojun's route, yes. Ah, after leaving the airport, I rented a car and drove to the location where the copper mine is located.

At this time, the entire copper mine was surrounded by official Cyprus investigators, who blocked the news while urgently excavating the site.

The purpose of the excavation is to know how many casualties there are.

However, what surprised the Cyprus officials was that they excavated soil and building ruins at multiple points in the subsidence area, and then invited relevant testing experts to quickly test the samples excavated from multiple points. It was found that these samples did not contain any human tissue, or human blood or even DNA.

In other words, there may be no one here at all, or there may be no people here at all. Victims.

This confuses the official investigators in Cyprus.

The entire copper mine collapsed into a deep ruin, but there seemed to be no one in it, so where did the people in the same frame go? Did they withdraw early?

But such a catastrophic accident must have happened very suddenly. How could these people have time to evacuate?

The only possibility is that these people had completely evacuated before the disaster struck.

If this is the case, then this is not an accident or a natural disaster, but a premeditated man-made destruction.

But this is even more inexplicable, because after all, this is a copper mine that has been built and put into operation for decades, and the entire investment is at least several hundred million dollars. Why does the owner of the copper mine destroy this place into ruins?

Just when they were puzzled, an excited voice suddenly came from the on-site intercom, "We found a metal object like a warhead here, and there seems to be blood on it!" The on-site commander immediately blurted out "Quick! Bring the things up, and make sure not to contaminate the traces and blood on them!"

Soon, the staff put the unearthed metal bullets in sealed bags and sent them over.

Although the commander is not a weapon expert, he can recognize at a glance that this thing must be a bullet, and the bullet has a very thick caliber, so it is not an ordinary bullet at first glance. So, he immediately sent a photo of the warhead to the weapons expert, who quickly responded that it looked like a 30mm close-in anti-aircraft warhead.

The biologists at the scene also successfully detected the components of human blood and DNA from the warhead.

For a moment, the entire on-site headquarters was in an uproar!
