

It is not surprising to the command center to find human DNA in such a large ruin.

But finding the warhead of the near-defense gun in such a place is really a bit too weird.

The discovery of the warhead of the near-anti-aircraft means that it has been attacked by a near-anti-aircraft.

Combined with the range of the near-anti-aircraft gun of less than four kilometers, even if the near-anti-aircraft gun is not inside the copper mine, at least it is not far from the copper mine when it fires.

Whether it is people in the copper mine attacking other people with close-in defense guns, or people outside attacking copper mines with close-in defense guns, it is incomprehensible.

At this time, an adjutant raised the idea, "Could the copper mine have suffered a terrorist attack?!"

As soon as this idea came out, it immediately won the approval of most people.

Over the years, terrorist attacks in the Middle East have never stopped, and those extremists will make some big noises every now and then. Could it be that they are targeting Cyprus this time?

However, the field commander had a different idea.

He couldn't help but said, "I consulted experts. This type of close-in defense gun made in the former Soviet Union weighs nearly two tons empty. If it is equipped with ammunition and a complete fire control system, it will cost at least three to four tons. Who of you has seen such a large gun?"

Terrorists who have spent a lot of time? Besides, although the close-in anti-aircraft guns are very powerful, they only have a caliber of 30 millimeters. If they are used to hit buildings, hundreds or even thousands of shells may not be able to blow up a building, but here It has been blown up like this, it must have been blasted with a lot of explosives inside, since the terrorists have already blown up the entire copper mine into ruins, why bother to get a close-in defense gun?" "This...

" Everyone at the scene fell into deep thought immediately.

What the commander said makes sense. Although the close-in anti-aircraft guns are very powerful, compared with such a big movement like blowing up a copper mine, it is just a few bites from mosquitoes. There is no need for terrorists to carry two or three tons or even Three or four tons of big guys come here to do things.

Everyone suddenly entered a dead end.

However, excavation of multiple points at the site is still ongoing.

The excavation site of the anti-aircraft warhead was discovered just now, and more warheads were soon excavated, and soil containing human DNA was also found.

However, nothing similar has been found at other excavation sites.

The samples excavated from other excavation sites are almost all the wreckage of copper mines, without any existence related to the human body, and there are no clues related to the close-in artillery.

At this time, the sky had begun to gradually brighten, and Wu Shutong led several confidantes on their way to the copper mine.

Along the way, they found that there were continuous convoys of heavy machinery and military convoys heading towards the copper mine at high speed, which made Wu Shutong even more uneasy, so when the group of them was three kilometers away from the copper mine, they left. He found a hidden place and stopped.

Not knowing the current actual situation of the copper mine, Wu Shutong didn't dare to drive any further, so the group ran along the coastline at a very high speed.

Wu Shutong himself is a master of transformation. Although his actual combat ability is not as good as that of Ou Bojun, his body moves very fast, and it is difficult for ordinary people to find him.

The few people who accompanied him were also masters in the late stage of the Dark Realm, so the distance of three kilometers was not a problem for them.

The reason why they chose to advance on foot was that they were worried that the area around the copper mine had been surrounded and blocked by the Cypriot government. If that was the case, the cars they were riding in would have no chance to approach.

However, when the group of them sneaked all the way to the vicinity of the copper mine, they easily sneaked into the scene of the incident by virtue of their strength and skill far beyond ordinary people.
