

"Me?" The adjutant thought for a while, and said, "It's not surprising that I said there are ak47s here... .."

The commander waved his hand, "No, let me add another sentence."

The adjutant thought for a moment, and said, "I said this is just a copper mine, not a military base..."

Yes!" The commander suddenly widened his eyes and blurted out Said, "That's the problem! If it's really just a copper mine, then it doesn't need to be equipped with close-in defense guns at all!" Then, the commander continued with some excitement, "But now that it is equipped with close-in defense guns, That in turn proves that this is not an ordinary copper mine! It is very likely that it is a military base that we don't know about!"

"Military base?!" The crowd was even more shocked and speechless.

In my own country, I found a military base that does not belong to my own country, which really makes people feel incredible.

However, the commander's judgment logic is very reasonable. The opponent's ability to master the weapon of close-in defense guns proves that the opponent must not be an ordinary person, but definitely a militant with strong actual combat experience.

It is very likely that this copper mine is indeed a military base as a place where militants use close-in defense guns to defend.

Even if it is not a real military base, at least there are huge and unknown secrets here!

The commander said nervously, "No... this matter is of great importance, and I must report it to the president immediately!"

Soon, the commander directly called the president. After reporting the situation in detail, he respectfully Hanging up the phone, he told the few people around him, "Everyone, the president has orders. The collapse of the copper mine is very likely to cause turmoil. It must be strictly kept secret from the outside world. Do not disclose any information to foreign media, especially near-anti-aircraft guns." You can't even mention a single word about it!"

Everyone looked at each other, and the adjutant couldn't help but said, "Boss, it's not a big problem to block the news from the outside world, but it's hard for us to hide such a big commotion here.

What if there are voices of doubt in the country? What to do?"

The commander said, "I will immediately notify the people in charge of the surrounding cities and let them announce to the people in their jurisdiction that this copper mine has been exhausted and has reached the design lifespan, and due to excessive internal mining, there are already Therefore, in order to prevent losses caused by uncontrollable collapse, this time it is a planned man-made abandonment, and all personnel in the copper mine have been evacuated, so that everyone does not need to panic." This argument is reasonable, and everyone thinks it is nothing Big problem, after all, only one person's DNA was found here, which proves that before the explosion and collapse, the others had already evacuated, and no casualties were caused.

Since there were no casualties, thisThings can naturally be suppressed.

So, everyone was relieved.

