

Read Novel When His Eyes Opened Chapter 3025

Novel Chapter 3025 -“You think too much. Appendicitis is just a very common disease.” When Hayden said this, the phone rang.

The call was from Avery.

When Hayden saw his mother’s call, he already guessed what his mother was going to say.

Hayden answered the phone, chatted with his mother for a few words, and then hung up.

“Do you have something to do? If you have something to do, you can go and do your work.” Joanna only heard him hum a few times, thinking that he was on something.

“It’s my mother. She said she wanted to see your mother. She said that it’s a little late tonight, so I won’t bother you. She said she would come back when your mother has surgery.” Hayden said.

Joanna’s eyes were hot: “Hayden, thank you.”

Hayden: “There’s nothing to be thankful for.”

The two passed through the long corridor and came to the special care ward area.

Mrs. Picard was already lying on a clean and spacious hospital bed, and she was flattered.

This ward was too comfortable.

It was clean and had no peculiar smell, and the space was also large. The accompanying bed was also a Simmons of 1.5 meters! And there were various instruments in the ward.

She was embarrassed to be living here without a serious illness.

After Hayden and Joanna came in, Mrs. Picard immediately said excitedly: “Hayden! Will transferring me to such a nice ward be a waste of medical resources? I just cut my appendix; why should I live in such a nice ward?”

“

Hayden: “Auntie, no matter what the illness is, you need to rest well. Since I can arrange for you to live in, it means there is no problem. You don’t have to think too much, rest well tonight, and wait for the operation with peace of mind.”

Mrs. Picard: "Okay! Thank you so much! I'm sorry to bother you to come to see me so late. Go back and rest!"

Hayden: "Alright."

Joanna: "Mom, I'll go back with Hayden first, and come back after I get the daily necessities."

Mrs. Picard: "Okay. You guys go!"

The two came out of the hospital, and the car drove towards the villa area.

"If your mother has any problems in the hospital, you can tell me anytime." Hayden drove the car and confessed to Joanna.

Joanna: "Okay. But it shouldn't be a problem. You've had a hard week to live here. Will your parents say anything?"

Hayden: "No. Now that they know your mother is in the hospital, they will understand."

"But my mother is in the hospital, why don't you come home at night?" Joanna said, "But it's okay even if your parents know that Gia exists. I believe your whole family is a good person."

Hayden: "..."

Hayden really couldn't tell his father's reaction after knowing the existence of Gia.

"My mother may understand you, but my father may not." Hayden told her the worst possibility, "My father likes girls very much."

"That can't be helped. If your father insists on taking Gia away, I can only accept it." Joanna was already mentally prepared, "They let me go to your house to look after the child, and I am satisfied. "

Hayden: "You obviously didn't say that before."

"That's because I was facing you before." Joanna looked at Hayden's handsome side face, "Your father can arrange such a good ward for my mother, but I can't. In the same way, Gia is in your parents' room. Living alongside me is a thousand times better than following me."

This topic made the atmosphere even more serious.

"Joanna, don't be so pessimistic." After a moment of silence, Hayden said, "I will spend more time with you. If being with you is not so bad, I want to give you a chance."

Recommended Novels