

When His Eyes Opened Read Novel Chapter 3028

Novel Chapter 3028 -Joanna's face turned red and hot as she listened to what Avery said while standing next to her.

"We're all embarrassed when you say that." Mrs. Picard sighed that Avery was just like what her daughter said, she had no airs at all, and she was full of enthusiasm and vitality, not like a wealthy lady at all.

"What's there to be embarrassed about! Joanna is really a very nice girl! Our whole family likes her very much." Avery said.

Joanna brought a chair over for Avery to sit on.

Avery sat down and looked at Joanna: "Joanna, Hayden didn't go home to sleep yesterday, was he accompanying you in the hospital?"

Avery asked this because she wanted to determine where her son and Joanna had progressed.

Joanna immediately shook her head: "No. He said there is a house near the hospital, and he should live there."

Joanna couldn't lie.

If she did not tell Avery where Hayden slept last night, Avery would speculate wildly and possibly return to Hayden to inquire.

So Joanna simply told Avery to make Avery feel at ease.

"He does seem to have a house near this hospital. I almost forgot if you didn't tell me!" Avery laughed loudly, "Joanna, you see, he even told you this, which means he didn't take you seriously as an outsider."

Joanna blushed even more.

If Avery knew that Joanna and her mother were living in that villa now, she didn't know how she would react.

"My son has been boring since he was a child, especially when it comes to dealing with outsiders. He is not very flexible. But he is still very clever in doing things, but he doesn't like to deal with interpersonal relationships. Joanna, I can see that he still likes you a little. If you can take the initiative, maybe the two of you can succeed!" Avery took Joanna's hand and pinned her hopes on her.

Outside the ward door.

Hayden came to see Mrs. Picard with Gia in his arms.

Because when Hayden was talking to his mother on the phone last night, his mother said that she would come to see Mrs. Picard on the day of Mrs. Picard's operation, and Mrs. Picard's operation was scheduled for tomorrow, so Hayden didn't think that his mother would come today.

Hayden got out of the elevator with Gia in his arms and strode to the intensive care unit area.

His attention was all on Gia, so he didn't notice the bodyguard standing outside the door of the ward.

It was the bodyguard who saw him and called out, "Boss Tate."

Hayden heard the familiar voice, and immediately looked at the bodyguard.

Hayden: "Why are you here?!"

The bodyguard was his mom's.

Normally, wherever the mother was, there was her bodyguard.

Could it be...

The bodyguard confirmed Hayden's guess: "Your mother is inside."

After a pause, the bodyguard looked at Gia in Hayden's arms and asked, "Who is this?"

Hayden was speechless.

Hayden hugged his daughter in one hand, and walked aside with the bodyguard with the other.

"Don't tell my mother that you've seen me." Hayden told the bodyguard, "This child is also mine, but they are unaware of it. I haven't decided how to tell them. Did you understand that you are not allowed to tell them before I tell them?"

Seeing Hayden's serious face, the bodyguard nodded sharply.

The bodyguard's task was to protect Avery's safety. The bodyguard dared not talk casually about their family's affairs.

After explaining to the bodyguard, Hayden immediately left with Gia in his arms.

Avery stayed in the ward for about an hour before leaving.

Recommended Novels

When His Eyes Opened Read Novel Chapter 3029

Novel Chapter 3029 -As soon as Avery left, Joanna immediately called Hayden.

Hayden was currently holding Gia in the park near the hospital to breathe.

Seeing the incoming call, he answered it immediately: "Is my mother gone?"

"Just left. How do you know your mother is here?" Joanna asked.

"I carried my daughter to the door of the ward an hour ago." Hayden breathed a sigh of relief, "What is she doing here?"

"She came to see my mother. Your mother is so warm and polite! Tell me to bring your father to visit my mother tomorrow." Joanna's eyes were sore from being moved.

Because her mother didn't let her tell her family, Joanna originally thought that she had to take care of her mother this time.

Unexpectedly, Hayden and his family took such good care of their mother and daughter.

"I'll take my daughter there now." Hayden said.

"Why don't you bring your daughter here? This is a hospital after all, if my daughter gets sick." Joanna thought about it, and said, "In our hometown, we don't bring children to visit or Go to someone else's funeral."

Hayden had never heard of such a custom because he had always been very independent and Avery had never placed any restrictions on him.

However, what Joanna said made sense because children have weaker immune systems and visiting the hospital and becoming ill is not good for them.

"Then I'll take my daughter home." Hayden said.

"Well. If you feel bored, you can take the child to the nanny. If you have other things, you can go to your own." Joanna was afraid that he would be too tired to take care of Gia, or feel bored.

Parenting was a tedious and exhausting task in itself.

The novelty at the beginning would wear off slowly.

"I don't have anything to do this weekend. It's a bit windy outside, and I'm afraid my daughter will catch cold." Hayden carried Gia into the car and planned to go home, "I'll send someone to bring you food at noon later."

Joanna's heart warmed up: "Thank you! Just give me a meal, my mother can't eat today."

"Alright."

After talking on the phone, Hayden received a call from his mother.

When Avery came out of the hospital, she thought that her son had a house nearby, so she wanted to drop by to have a look.

After Hayden heard his mother's words, the calmness on his face no longer existed.

"Mom, let me tell you the truth!" Hayden took a deep breath and confessed, "I will live in that house for Joanna and her mother."

Avery was startled, and quickly came back to her senses: "So that's it! It's good! Why are you two hiding it from me? Do you think I won't agree? Is your mother that kind of person? I have no objection to giving the house to her!"

Hearing his mother's excited tone, Hayden said calmly, "Mom, Joanna is a girl after all, she has a thin skin."

"That's right! But you can't keep it from me? I will always know." Avery still complained a little, "You and Joanna have both progressed as well rapidly recently! What are your thoughts? Why are you suddenly treating her so well? You didn't praise her before, when you were so cold, but I didn't pay attention to you for a few days, and now you two are a family?!"

Hayden was speechless.

"Yesterday I made a video call for you, and it was Joanna who picked it up. Was it in your villa at the time?" Avery continued to ask.

Hayden: "Mom, I need space with her."

"When did I stop you from being with her? You need space with her, so you two should just live together! Would you like me to pack your luggage for you and send it to you?" Avery pushed the boat along, "Also you don't need to pack too many things, just bring two sets of clothes. Anyway, you should have everything in your villa."

Hayden was speechless again.

