I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1721—The beautiful woman went to the stage with a wooden tray and stood there silently.

After that, Alba started introducing the first item.

As the host of the auction, she needed to state the item's details, directions, and functions so that everyone would know what they were bidding on.

They would only bid with everything they had if they needed it or if that thing was suitable for them.

The host played an important role in this.

They needed to use flowery words to pique the bidder's interest so that they would do everything to buy the treasure.

“First, let me introduce the first item to you all.”

After Alba said that, she lifted the red cloth on the wooden tray to reveal the thing underneath.

It was a stone the size of a fist.

Everyone knew what that was.

It was a memory stone!

As long as the user crushed it, the content in the stone would enter the user's brain.

Nova gave one to David when she left the Iridescent Sect.

The map of the entire Star Kingdom was recorded inside.

Therefore, he used this map to accurately locate the Central Sacred Continent.

If not, it would have been difficult for a newcomer to find the Central Sacred Continent in the vast Star Kingdom without any guidance.

He would also have wasted a lot of time.

The memory stone was not very precious, but the content recorded within might be important.

Similarly, it might be something trivial and cost nothing.

Or it could contain some maps or combat skills, or even the entrance of certain treasures.

It would not be easy to estimate the value.

The stone was just a carrier while the thing recorded inside was the truly valuable item.

If Treasure Trove was auctioning the memory stone, then it must have something important recorded inside

“I think everyone can see that this is a memory stone. Even though it looks normal, its content is not

“It records a powerful combat skill called the Ninth Rank Undulating Palm, but only the first three are recorded here, which can also be called the Third Rank Undulating Palm. As for the latter two it is said that they have long been lost, and Treasure Trove doesn’t have them. Even if you only have the first of three, it is still quite powerful. Every time you progress one level, its power will double, and it can also be superimposed. After you learn all three levels, the superimposed power will be equivalent to a middle-grade combat skill.”

When everyone heard that it was equivalent to a middle-grade combat skill, a lot of them showed excited expressions.

Combat skills were just like Soulbound Weapons. They were a rare resource in Star Kingdom.

However, combat skills would not increase one’s combat power as much as a Soulbound Weapon.

Therefore, the value of a combat skill was also slightly lower than a Soulbound Weapon.

When one could not increase their realm, combat skills and Soulbound Weapons would be used to increase combat power.

Alba had not finished her introduction.

She continued, “Plus, the Ninth-Rank Undulating Palm was instilled in this stone by a Saint. At the same time, it also came with the realization of the Saint. I believe that as long as you’re not a fool, you’ll master the Ninth-Rank Undulating Palm very quickly and master its essence to draw out its formidable power.

“Now, let’s start the bidding for the first three levels of the Ninth-Rank Undulating Palm. The base price is 5 billion Star Dollars. Each price increase should not be less than 100 million.”

After Alba said that, someone yelled out immediately.

“Five and a half billion!”

“Six billion!”

“Six and a half billion!”

“Seven billion!”

“Twenty three billion!”

After multiple rounds of bidding, the price of the first three levels of the Ninth-Rank Undulating Palm reached a high price of 23 billion.

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1722–This was not the end.

“25 billion!”

A loud and clear voice said.

Archimedes was the one who called out this price.

Splendor, one of the top five trading companies controlled by the Lightfoot family, had almost as much wealth as the Fellowes family.

As the first-in-line heir of the Lightfoot family and the future head of the family, Archimedest could spend as much money as he wanted as long as he said the word.

When he said 25 billion, no one continued to bid.

Firstly, they recognized him as the future head of the Lightfoot family, so they were reluctant to offend him.

Secondly, this price was high enough that if they continued to bid, they would be paying a premium on top of the value of the good.

In the end, the first three levels of the Ninth Rank Undulating Palm was sold for 25 billion. Star Dollars.

However, the person who got it was Archimedes, and this made Alba, who was on the stage, feel uncomfortable.

This was just the first item, and it was the first three levels of the Ninth Rank Undulating Palm that had a middle-grade combat skill.

If that were the case, how precious would the next items be?

Everyone showed excited looks and were staring straight at the stage.

David did not bid. Instead, he frowned.

He was not too happy with the final price.

25 billion was too low.

His goal today was 1.2 trillion Star Dollars.

If one item was about 25 billion, wouldn't he need to bid on 50 of them to reach that amount/

There might not be so many treasures in this auction, right?

Even if he bid on everything, it would still not be enough

'Is this the large auction that Treasure Trove has prepared for a long time?'

David shook his head in disappointment

The higher his expectations, the greater his disappointment

What he did not know was that the first item was just an appetizer

The truly valuable items would be offered at the end

After the first item was sold, the second item was brought on stage.

Alba started to introduce the item again.

Two hours passed very quickly, and more than ten treasures were sold.

David had not even bid once.

This was because the prices were too low and there was not one thing that exceeded 50 billion, so it would not be worth his bid.

80% of the items that were sold now belonged to Archimedes.

As Archimedes accumulated more and more treasures, Alba's face under the veil became more and more off-colored.

Two more hours went by.

The first phase of the auction was over, so Alba found a reason to get offstage to rest.

Of course, it was not that she was tired and wanted to rest. Instead, she went to find Valerio to ask what she should do.

Archimedes was clearly here to cause trouble.

Treasure Trove sacrificed so much to attract their old clients so that they would come back to work with Treasure Trove, not to benefit that rascal Archimedes.

Even though he needed to pay for those items, would Treasure Trove care about his money?

The moment Alba left, the scene was in an uproar.

"Master Archi, don't you think it's inappropriate for us to do this?" Bernard asked.

"What's wrong with this? It's an auction, and it's not like I'm not paying," Archimedes said indifferently.

"Treasure Trove is doing this to rope in some old and new clients. If we do this, we'll disrupt their plan. The Fellowes family will not be happy."

"Hmph, so what? They are just barely holding on. Anders is living in seclusion to break through to partial Saint, and after he succeeds and comes out, there will surely be some big event to accumulate more prestige for him to become the future head of his family. What would be a better gift than Treasure Trove?"

"Anders might be one of the rare geniuses in Star Kingdom, but even if he breaks through, he'll just be a partial Saint I don't think it'll be easy for him to take down Treasure Trove either. After all, the Fellowes family has three True Saints," Bernard asked curiously

"It's indeed not easy for him to take over Treasure Trove, but what if he makes the Sacred Saint of his family ask for it? How could the Fellowes family say no?" Archimedes said with a cold smirk

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1723—"Is that possible? A Sacred Saint is the strongest person in Star Kingdom, why would they care about something so trivial?" Bernard asked in shock

"How is it not? You have to know that Anders is the number one genius in the history of the Palmore family. Even the Sacred Saint grandmaster praises him to high heavens. It's said that Anders used to trained with that grandmaster since he was small. If not, how would he have the strength he has now? Plus, the Fellowes family is not as powerful as you said Two of the three True Saint grandmasters got hurt in the previous battle. They haven't recovered until now."

Archimedes exposed another shocking secret.

Luckily Bernard blocked out the people surrounding them when they were speaking, so no one heard what they said.

If word got out, the entire Central Sacred Continent would tremble.

It would also deal a huge blow to the Fellowes family

Of course, a few of the major forces in the Central Sacred Continent also knew about what Archimedes mentioned.

However, they all shared a tacit understanding, so no one said anything

Everyone had secrets.

If you exposed other people's secrets, they could also expose yours.

In the end, both sides would suffer.

Therefore, even if Archimedes was the first in-line heir of the Lightfoot family, he did not dare to spread this.

He also knew the people around him could not hear him, so that was why he dared to say it out loud to vent the anger in his heart.

Archimedes initially did not plan to buy so many things during this auction to offend the Fellowes family.

However, that accident happened while waiting, and now, he could not vent the anger in his heart

Archimedes felt remorseful.

If he did not go up to see what was happening out of curiosity when he passed by the tavern and heard the argument, would the subsequent outcome have happened?

He was scared to the point of wetting himself by a strange brat in front of so many people. This would be the biggest humiliation of his life.

How would Archimedes feel better if he did not vent

He would not allow the Fellowes family to have a good time if he could not

“Who asked you to host this auction?”

‘That incident wouldn’t have happened if you didn’t host the auction.’”

Archimedes was blaming Treasure Trove venomously for everything that happened since he could not find the culprit.

This was what the direct descendants of major forces would usually do.

Whenever they suffered a disadvantage, they would need to find someone to vent on.

Bernard was shocked after he heard that.

Even though he was a late Sovereign Ranker, he was only a collateral relative of the Lightfoot family so he could not become a senior core of the family. That was why his knowledge was limited.

What Archimedes told him today was a shocking secret.

The Fellowes family only looked powerful from the outside.

Two of their True Saints were injured and still had not recovered.

‘However, this is between the Fellowes and Palmore family.

‘It’s not smart for Master Archi to get involved in this.

'The Lightfoot family will also suffer if the Fellowes family goes mad and decides to counterattack at the last second.

'I have to talk to Master Archi.'

As Archimedes' protector, even though it was said their fates were intertwined, this was only one-sided.

To put it bluntly, Bernard would not be spared if something happened to Archimedes.

On the contrary, if something happened to Bernard or if he died, nothing would happen to Archimedes.
