I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1755–Valerio’s thinking was simple.

If David had a Sacred Saint master and he was willing to help the Fellowes family escape from the Palmore family’s control, the Fellowes family would say yes no matter what price they had to pay.

According to what David said, he and his master would stay in seclusion.

Even if they suddenly wanted to come out of hiding to promote their sect, it would take a very long time until that happened.

The Fellowes family would have a lot of time to try to fix things during that period.

This was unlike with the Palmore family, a family that had already developed. The latter did not give the Fellowes family enough time.

If they relied on David’s master, it would at least help prolong the Fellowes family’s lifespan.

On the other hand, if they continued letting the Palmore family control them, they would soon lose control of Treasure Trove.

The most important thing was that even if the Fellowes family was willing to part with Treasure Trove, the Palmore family still might not spare them.

Everyone knew that one had to eliminate the problem completely

Even if the Palmore family spared the Fellowes family on the surface, they would still hinder their development from the dark.

Especially the Saints in the Fellowes family. If the Palmore family decided to attack, they surely would not let them survive.

Therefore, it was very important right now to make sure that David’s master was a Sacred Saint.

The two came to David’s door soon.

Knock knock knock!

Alba knocked on David’s door.

“Miss Fellowes, Mr. Valerio, please come in.”

David's voice said from the inside.

Alba pushed open the door and stood on one side. She then gestured to Valerio and said, "Grandpa Val, after you."

Valerio did not waste any time walking into the room.

At this moment, David was sitting next to the table. He had already brewed some tea for the two.

"Please sit," David said.

After Alba and Valerio entered the room, they were surprised when they saw David.

They just parted ways with him, but right now, the David they saw by the table and the David who left just now seemed like two different people.

However, they could not put a finger on what was different.

It was just a feeling.

The two did not overthink and walked straight to the table to sit down.

Valerio was wondering how he should confirm David's identity. He wanted to see if he was a Sacred Saint's disciple, so he did not have time to check the changes in David.

On the other hand, Alba was too weak so she could only rely on her intuition. She simply felt that David was a little different.

"Mr. Valerio, Miss Fellowes, please have some tea. I don't know much about tea brewing, so please put up with me."

David said with a smile. After that, he got up and poured some tea for the two.

David was in a good mood after breaking through to Saint Realm.

Moreover, Alba played a huge role in helping him reach Saint Realm so quickly.

Therefore, he was very grateful to Alba.

"Thank you, Master David."

"You're too modest, David."

Alba and Valerio said at the same time.

Then, the two took a sip of the tea.

'Hmm, this is indeed pretty bad.

"It's not that he doesn't know much about tea, it's more like he doesn't know anything about tea!"

However, this was not the point. They were not here for tea.

David took a sip, but he figured he did a good job.

"May I know why you're here?" David asked after putting down his teacup.

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1756—"David, I've told Grandpa Val about your cooperation. He needs to understand something about you. Don't worry though, Grandpa Val is the person I trust the most in the family. He'd never hurt me," Alba promised carefully.

She was worried that she would enrage David.

After all, this was between the two of them. Now, she had let a third party know about their secret without David's consent.

Of course, David would not be mad.

He was a Saint now, so he was more confident.

Just now, David was at a disadvantage when facing Valerio. Now, he was the one in charge.

It would be good for the head of Treasure Trove to know this.

With his help, David believed East League Trading Company's development would be even faster.

If they were developing faster, he would be spending money faster too.

David looked at Valerio and said, "What do you want to know, Mr. Valerio? You can ask me. I'll tell you everything I know."

“David, I heard your master gave you a Soulbound Weapon when you came out.” Valerio contemplated before asking.

He decided to start with the first-rate Soulbound Weapon Alba mentioned.

“Can I see it? Don’t misunderstand me. I heard Alba say that your weapon is very unique and I am very interested in Soulbound Weapons, so that’s why I’m curious and want to see it. I don’t mean anything else.”

“That’s fine.”

David got up after he said that. Then, he placed the wooden sheath on the table.

“Feel free to look at it. However, I have to tell you that you can only look and not have any ideas about this. My master gave this to me, so it’s not for sale. My master will not spare me if I sell it,” David added.

“Don’t worry. A nobleman will not steal. I just want to look at it and I will never have any other ideas about it,” Valerio said.

“Go ahead then.” David gestured to Valerio.

Valerio carefully opened the sheath.

Crack!

A long sword with a red light appeared before his eyes.

At the same time, there was also a bone-piercing chill as an infinite amount of piercing energy rushed before him.

‘What is this?’

Valerio was stunned when he saw the Evil-Splitting Sword.

As the head of Treasure Trove, he had seen a lot of treasures over the years. Normal people could not compare to Valerio in terms of knowledge and experiences.

Even Alba, who loved researching weapons since she was young, was miles away from Valerio.

‘This must be it!’

'This long red sword in front of me is definitely a first-rate Soulbound Weapon!

'It's even the best among first-rate Soulbound Weapons!'

Valerio had seen the two first-rate Soulbound Weapons the Fellowes family owned. They were nothing. compared to this sword.

This was surely a weapon qualified for a Sacred Saint.

Unexpectedly, David's master gave it to him.

Since he could give such a precious weapon to his disciple, Valerio could see how close they were.

It was no exaggeration to say that not even fathers and sons would have such a good relationship.

"David, may I know what this sword is called?"

"My master said it's called the Evil-Splitting Sword. It can slash through all things evil and everything in the universe."

"The Evil-Splitting Sword? What a good name! Since your master can give you such a precious treasure, you must have a good relationship with him," Valerio lamented.

"Of course! I was relying on that old man ever since I was young, and I am his only disciple. How can we not be close?" David said as if it was a matter of course.

Valerio smiled bitterly on the inside.

'This kid is simple-minded, so he might not know what this means.

"Even fathers might not be so good to their biological sons.

'Not only did he give David trillions of Star Dollars before he came out, he even gave David a first-rate Soulbound Weapon that can represent his identity.

"Anyone with a discerning eye would not attack David once they saw this sword. 'It's because they won't be able to handle the rage of the sword's true owner."

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1757—After the wooden sheath was closed, the chill from the Evil-Splitting Sword disappeared and the room went back to normal.

Valerio lamented in his heart.

He had been the head of Treasure Trove for so many years and he had seen so many treasures, but this word shocked him the most.

This was undoubtedly a sword that was hard to come by.

Even the Fellowes family's first-rate Soulbound Weapons could not compare to it.

Perhaps only a Sacred Saint would have the qualifications to wield it.

Of course, Valerio would not exclude the fact that David might have found this in a ruin somewhere in the universe.

However, the possibility of this was so low that he could just ignore it.

It was not that easy to go into ruins.

A ruin with first-rate Soulbound Weapons would surely have a high civilization. Even calling it a narrow escape would be underestimating it.

If anyone below Saint Realm went there, they would surely die. It would be hard to stay alive, let alone come out with a treasure.

“Thank

you for letting me see such a rare weapon, David. It opened my eyes. I've been the head of Treasure Trove for so long, but this is the first time I've seen such a precious treasure. It's so shocking. I would like to meet your master if I have the chance,” Valerio praised magnanimously.

“You're too kind, Mr. Valerio. You should have a chance to meet my master in the future. I came out this time with a mission from him. When I left, he said that our sect had been hiding for so long and it was time for us to come out. If not, Star Kingdom might soon forget about us,” David said casually.

“May I know the name of the sect you’re in? Is it in any historical records?”

“I’m sorry, Mr. Valerio. I can’t tell you for now. After all, I just came out and I haven’t completed my mission, so he won’t let me reveal too much about our sect. If not, I will be punished once he comes out.”

“I’m sorry, I shouldn’t have asked a question like that. Please forgive me,” Valerio said apologetically.

He was making himself look very humble.

One could even say that Valerio was treating David with a completely different attitude this time.

Just now, he viewed David as a junior.

Now, he viewed David like he was Anders, the heir of one of the top six forces in Star Kingdom.

Even though David was still younger than Valerio, his status and identity were completely different now Valerio did not dare to treat Anders like a junior nor criticize him.

Since David could spend 11 trillion Star Dollars on the auction just to beat Archimedes, Valerio knew this kid was not simple. That was why he summoned David.

However, money did not mean anything.

The Fellowes family was loaded, but they still ended up in this state.

If they did not find a way to save themselves, everything the Fellowes family had would go to someone else, and their family’s glory would also become history.

The David Valerio saw right now was not just rich, he had a first-rate Soulbound Weapon. It was something money could not buy nor measure.

There were a lot of high-level Soulbound Weapons being auctioned off in Star Kingdom.

However, no one had auctioned off a first-rate Soulbound Weapons before.

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1758—If a first-rate Soulbound Weapon was being auctioned, it would surely cause an uproar in all the forces in Star Kingdom, including the six top forces.

In the end, the only ones who would be qualified to buy it would be one of the six forces with a Sacred Saint.

The others should not even think about it.

Because of David's identity, Valerio humbled himself as best as he could to get on David's good side.

He believed 80 to 90% of what Alba said now.

"You don't have to blame yourself, Mr. Valerio. I got Miss Alba Fellowes' help the moment I came to the Central Sacred Continent, so I am very grateful. If you need me in the future, please tell me. I will not say no as long as it doesn't go against my principles. Plus, my master said I should make more friends now that I'm out here. Miss Fellowes is my second friend and I treat all of my friends sincerely."

David lied without even batting an eyelid.

He kept trying to create a special identity for himself in front of Alba, which was that of the disciple of a Sacred Saint.

Only by doing that could he get Alba's support in building and developing a new trading company.

Now, Alba had almost completely believed him.

Even so, this was not enough.

It would be best if she could help him develop the new trading company and spend trillions of Star Dollars.

However, he did not know how long this would take.

This meant she could only help David get millions of lavish points to upgrade from Pre-Saint to True Saint at most.

Meanwhile, it would take tens of millions of lavish points to get to Sacred Saint. It would be almost impossible for him to achieve this in a short time if he tried using ordinary methods.

Therefore, David soon formed a crazy and courageous plan in his head.

He believed that East League Trading Company would reach a certain scale by the time he reached True

Saint Rank

When that happened, he would discuss a merger and acquisition with the grandmasters of the Fellowes family.

Didn't they want to escape their current predicament?

Once it was successful, David would be a Sacred Saint and become one of the strongest people in Star Kingdom.

In addition to his mind power and the God of Thunder Hammer, he would excel among the Sacred Saints.

When that happened, it would not matter if he had a Sacred Saint master as support.

This was because David would be his biggest support.

If he wanted to make that plan a reality, he would need to do this step by step.

First, he needed to make Alba and Valerio believe him 100% and dispel all of their concerns.

"Thank you, Master David. I'm honored to be your friend," Alba thanked David from one side.

"Don't say that, Miss Fellowes. Since we're friends, we should treat each other as equals. It will make us sound like strangers if you say things like how honored you are," David interrupted.

"I got it, Master David," Alba said in a small voice.

"David, may I know when your master will come here? I want to meet him on behalf of the family. If you don't think I'm qualified enough, I'll ask the grandmasters to do it," Valerio said suddenly.

“What are you saying, Mr. Valerio? There’s no such thing as being qualified or not. My master is very easygoing, so he doesn’t have a lot of rules. You can see him anytime you want if he’s around, but I’m afraid now is not the time. I have to complete his mission before I can contact him,” David said after some contemplation.

After he heard that, Valerio thought to himself, ‘I think he’s only easy-going with you! How will he be so easygoing with others? If Sacred Saints don’t have a temper, would they still be Sacred Saints?’
