I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1788—Now the increase of David's lavish points was in the tens of thousands every day, especially after his purchase in a large bustling area for the headquarters of the East League Trading Company.

It cost David trillions of Star Dollars and allowed him to get tens of thousands of lavish points.

After the next few days accumulation, David's lavish points had reached 100 thousand.

He then spent the 100 thousand lavish points on his mind power without hesitation.

He allowed his mind power to also upgrade from the Sovereign level 10 to Pre-Saint level 1.

Although his strength had not changed, every time he got 10 thousand lavish points after this, he could improve his Body by one level.

David could become a peak Pre-Saint with just 90 thousand lavish points.

When David was looking forward to when he could break through to True Saint, Valerio, head of Treasure Trove, was receiving two guests in the reception room at the headquarters of Treasure Trove in West End.

The identities of these two people were naturally not simple since they were able to receive Valerio's personal reception.

They were Dax, the head of the Lightfoot family, and Koen, the Saint Realm grandmaster of the Lightfoot family.

These two were the top representative of the Lightfoot family.

One was the head of the Lightfoot family, and the other was the Saint Realm grandmaster who was active in Star Kingdom.

He would deal with anything that the Lightfoot family could not solve.

Since the two of them were looking into this matter, it was clear how much importance the Lightfoot family attached to this matter.

"Grandmaster Koen, Lord Dax, may I know why you have come to Treasure Trove?" Valerio asked, neither humble nor overbearing.

Since the Lightfoot and Fellowes family were among the top five trading companies in the Central Sacred Continent, they were like enemies.

Furthermore, the support behind the two families was also at odds with each other.

This caused Valerio to not entirely respect the Lightfoot family's Saint Realm grandmaster.

Koen would not dare to do anything to him anyway.

"Mr. Valerio, the reason we're here is because of the death of our heirs, Cornelius and Archimedes. Please tell us everything you know," Dax said.

"Lord Dax, the Fellowes family is deeply sorry for the death of your heirs. However, I'm sorry, we have no clues for you to follow," Valerio shook his head and answered apologetically.

Valerio already found out from Alba that David was the one who killed Cornelius and Archimedes.

However, David was the family's hope to get out of this predicament, so how would he rat David out?

Valerio had even helped wiped away some of the traces.

Therefore, it would be even harder for the Lightfoot family to find the killer now.

After all, West End was the Fellowes family's territory, hence it would be easy for them to do something.

"Mr. Valerio, according to what we know, Archi fought with a kid named David at Treasure Trove's auction because of a treasure. Soon after, he died along with the powerhouses of the Lightfoot family. I want to know more about this David person," Dax said straightforwardly.

"I'm sorry, Lord Dax, Splendor is also one of the top five trading companies here so you should know that our client's confidentiality is of the utmost importance for us forces that run trading companies. I can't give you David's information. If I do that, how will our clients continue to trust us? If word gets out, we will lose our clients. I can't bear this consequence."

Valerio did not even think before rejecting Dax.
