I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1819–The Palmore Continent in Star Kingdom.

This was where one of the six top forces of Star Kingdom, the Palmore family, lived.

The entire Palmore Continent honored the Palmore family.

At this moment, the family was having a meeting among the core seniors.

There were two main topics at the meeting.

First, this gathering of all the younger generation of Star Kingdom in the name of Anders had to be done properly to demonstrate the strength and grandeur of the Palmore family and help Anders intimidate the rest of the Star Kingdom Five to become the number one among the Six.

The second was to discuss the Fellowes family's Treasure Trove, which had been suspected of transferring assets recently. A newly established firm was frequently receiving properties from Treasure Trove, and the person who presided over this matter was the future daughter-in-law of the Palmore family and Anders's fiancée, Alba.

These two things were very important to the Palmore family.

The first matter concerned whether the Palmore family could become a step ahead of other families.

The second matter concerned the vital interests of the Palmore family.

The Fellowes family transferred the assets of Treasure Trove, so wouldn't it mean when the Palmore family took over Treasure Trove, they would lose a lot of their original interests?

The party was easy to handle. As long as Anders showed his strength as a partial Saint at that time and used his first-rate Soulbound Weapon given by the Lightfoot family, he would definitely be able to overwhelm the other five.

This would push Anders' prestige to the top.

The transfer of assets by Treasure Trove was not as easy to deal with.

The Palmore family was not ready to take action yet.

However, if they continued delaying, they would not know how much of Treasure Trove's assets will be transferred away.

Those were money and resources, and they all belonged to the Palmore family. 1 Treasure Trove had long been considered the Palmore family's property.

"Everyone, please express your opinion so we can discuss it. How should we handle the matter surrounding the Fellowes family?" Soren Palmore, the head of the Palmore family, sat on the main seat and asked casually.

The core seniors of the Palmore family below looked at each other but no one spoke.

It was not that they did not want to say anything.

However, as far as the current situation was concerned, there was really no good solution.

Even the other major forces in the Star Kingdom knew what the Palmore family wanted, let alone the Fellowes family.

The Fellowes family had been trying to save themselves all these years, but the Palmore family was too powerful, so they failed every time.

Now they wanted to transfer some assets to continue the Fellowes family in the future, which was also very understandable.

However, the Palmore family did not want to end up with a half-crippled Treasure Trove.

Since they wanted to take it anyway, they would it fully intact.

However, now was not the best time to take action against the Fellowes family.

The proposal from The Saints Association had not yet passed.

A party initiated in the name of Anders would also be held soon and this required most of the Palmore family's energy.

Since no one was speaking, Soren continued, "If no one takes the initiative to speak, then I will directly call up someone. Anders, tell me about the Fellowes family and what we should do to maximize the benefits."

The one being called was Anders, a man in his thirties and the first-in-line heir of the Palmore family who just broke through to partial Saint Realm.
