I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1936-At this moment, in Star Kingdom, 99% of the forces would not be able to reach this level even if they gave everything they had.

“David, your sect is really admirable. There are only a handful of forces in Star Kingdom that can produce so much wealth, not to mention that you have been hiding for many years. I’m sure you must have been very popular back then,” Cedar said in shock.

‘That’s right! I’ve heard from Master that the sect was once brilliant, and it was not inferior to any forces at that time. Our wealth was also accumulated during that time. As for why we went into hiding and got reduced to only me and my master, my master didn’t say anything and I dare not ask,” David said proudly.

“Since you’ve said that, Vai, let’s see how many shares these 4 hundred trillion Star Dollars can get me! Hurry up and sign the agreement, so that David can report to his master. I have to return to the Fellowes family and get ready for the Palmore family’s assault as well,” Cedar urged.

“Grandmaster, you’re letting me decide?” Valerio pointed at himself and asked with a confused face.

This was such a big deal, yet the grandmaster was letting him decide.

Valerio felt a little apprehensive.

He would be fine if he had more time just like when David bought the 300 branches of Treasure Trove.

Given enough time, Valerio was confident he could come up with an accurate calculation so that both parties would not suffer losses.

It was a little difficult to ask him to estimate a number on the spot.

Treasure Trove still had tens of thousands of branches and all kinds of treasures accumulated over the years, so how could they be estimated immediately?

Giving out a random price would be irresponsible to both buyers and sellers.

“You are the head of Treasure Trove, so no one is more familiar with Treasure Trove than you. Who else could decide this if you’re not sure? Do you want me to decide?” Cedar said with a glare.

“Um... Well... Let me think,” Valerio stammered.

“Hurry up! Stop dilly-dallying. Since David asked us to estimate the value, he doesn’t care about the gains and losses. Therefore, we can’t let David suffer a loss, so you can just overestimate. It’s okay for us to suffer a little,” Cedar added.

The scene began to quiet down.

Valerio was carefully calculating what kind of number to give.

David did not rush him either.

Although he was flustered, he was okay with wasting a little more time.

Cedar could not hold back anymore after about a minute or so.

Zenon was now the head of the Saints Association, so time was running out for the Fellowes family.

Every minute and every second was precious to them.

“Valerio, can’t you do even this? You’re having so much difficulty giving an estimate. Have you been the head of the company for so many years in vain?” Cedar asked angrily.

“Grandmaster, s-should we give 40% to Master David? What do you think?” Valerio asked cautiously.

If four hundred trillion Star Dollars accounted for 40% of the shares, then upon calculation, the total value of Treasure Trove would be a quadrillion.

This was actually a huge underestimation of the value of Treasure Trove.

As one of the five largest trading companies in the Central Sacred Continent, just the tens of thousands of branches and the resources stored were worth far more than this.

Furthermore, there were all kinds of rare treasures accumulated over the years.

Therefore, the value was even more inestimable.

It was clear that Valerio understood the stakes when he stated a 40% shareholding ratio.

People could not beat the circumstance.

Currently, the Fellowes family had already reached the point of life and death.

What would they do if David's master was dissatisfied that they were only giving so little?

Once the Fellowes family was annihilated, everything would go to the Palmore family.

Therefore, Valerio stated 40%.
