Chapter 1191 She Trusts Me the Least

As Davian was consoling Gilbert, the middle-aged lady suddenly appeared next to them and continued her speech. Gilbert's face darkened instantly.

Davian had had enough and started yelling at her.

"Go away! Stop making assumptions about Mr. and Mrs. Kooper. The reason your daughter isn't married is that she's ugly. That's why you're so twisted and want to get in between other people's relationships, right? Ugh, I'm so done with you. Are you f*cking crazy?!"

The lady's face flushed with anger when she heard him call her crazy. "I'm just reminding him to watch out. Forget it. Don't come blaming me when your wife cheats on you."

Gilbert's expression became utterly gloomy, and his hands were clenched into a fist. Although the middle-aged lady was obsessed with him, she muttered a few words and ran away after seeing his face because she was scared.

Davian let out a sigh of relief. 'Finally...' he thought.

Gilbert stood there with a depressed look; he did not know whether it was because he was mad or sad at what the lady had said. "Don't listen to her, Mr. Kooper. I'm sure Mrs. Kooper cares about you. Maybe she's just busy."

"She's not!"

Chapter 1192 Looking for His Wife

Gilbert stayed quiet. He then turned around and walked toward the airport exit. Davian sighed and followed him out hurriedly.

After Felicity and Kisa had dinner, they ran to the wooden bench in the yard to chat. The plants and warm light surrounding the bench made the atmosphere romantic. Felicity asked the servants to bring them tons of snacks and fruits, as well as some fruit wine.

Holding the glass in her hand, she continued to complain about Gilbert to Kisa. "Don't you think that he's narcissistic? He thinks that every woman likes him just because he's handsome. Well, I don't."

"Yeah," Kisa agreed and took a sip of the fruit wine. 'Yum,' she thought. Felicity instantly felt happy hearing her agree.

She sipped the wine and continued, "You're the only one who gets it. The guy is handsome, don't get me wrong, but that temper and gloomy face of his is simply unbearable."

wasn't sure whether it was because of Felicity's complaints or something else, but Kisa followed her and family background, no woman would ever fall for

When Felicity saw how Gilbert was acting, she hurriedly said, "What do you think you're doing? This is my territory. Don't bring your temper here! Get out of here if you want to act like that. Kisa is MY guest. Don't you dare scare her."

"She's MY wife!" Gilbert roared, mad at Felicity for "kidnapping" his wife. Kisa clenched her hands tightly, unable to figure out what the man was thinking. He had been treating her indifferently, like a stranger, during that period of time. 'Why would he even bother coming to Athadale when I could be out of his sight and out of his mind? Why bother emphasizing to someone that I'm his wife? Didn't his cold attitude mean he doesn't want to stay in this relationship anymore?'

While Kisa was overthinking everything, Felicity suddenly said contemptuously, "You can't just lose your temper like this, even if she's your wife. It can be considered domestic violence. Be careful lest she leaves you. I mean, no one can bear that bad temper except for her!"

Gilbert narrowed his eyes dangerously and said, "Try saying that again."

"What are you drinking?" The man's voice was tense and gloomy as if he was anxious. "It's wine. What's wrong?" Kisa said in a daze.

As soon as he heard that, Gilbert stood up immediately. He grabbed the glass from her and yelled, "Who gave you this?"

Kisa was baffled by the yelling and subconsciously looked at Felicity. Felicity frowned and stared at Gilbert before saying, "Why are you shouting? It's just some fruit wine. I let her have it."

"Who allowed you to do so? Do you want her to die?" Gilbert yelled. Felicity was dumbstruck. "It's just some wine. How would Kisa die because of it?" She snorted coldly.

Gilbert ignored her. He quickly grabbed Kisa's hand and asked, "How much have you drunk? Do you feel any discomfort?"

Chapter 1195 She Wants You to Be Her Son-In-Law

Seeing that Felicity was finally willing to talk to him, Davian tried his best to tell her everything that happened.

"When we were on the plane today, Mr. Kooper was harassed by a middle-aged lady," he said.

When she heard that, Felicity could not hold back her laugh, and the wine she had just sipped spurted out of her mouth. The servant hurriedly wiped the table while Gilbert glared fiercely at Davian with a disgusted face and a gloomy gaze.

'Is that even something worth talking about?! Why did he have to tell her that?!' Gilbert thought.

Felicity wiped the wine stains from the corner of her mouth and asked amusedly, "Tell me, what do you mean 'harassed by a middle-aged lady'? What happened on the plane? What did she do?"

Kisa was also intrigued by the incident. She stared at Davian with a piercing gaze, waiting for him to continue. On the other hand, Gilbert's face darkened. However, Davian was busy looking at Felicity; he did not notice how gloomy Gilbert's face was. It was a rare occurrence that Felicity wanted to talk to him, so he tried to put up a good impression.

"When we were in the air, a 200lbs middle-aged lady sat next to us. She was attracted to Mr. Kooper and kept staring at him. She even went to the bathroom as an excuse to pass in front of him back and forth, and every time she walked past him, she would stare down into his shirt."

Felicity could not help but laugh. Kisa also wanted to laugh, but she held back, her shoulders shaking up and Kisa was confused. “W–What are you doing? Go get some rest.”

“Don’t you feel tired from ‘walking the whole day’?” Gilbert scoffed.

“Not really.” Kisa shook her head.

Kisa frowned and looked at the man annoyedly after that.

Then, Kisa quickly added, “Just go ahead and sleep. I won’t disturb you. There are plenty of guest rooms in Felicity’s place, and I can sleep in any of them.

Gilbert clenched his fists secretly as he shifted his gaze to Felicity.

Felicity immediately understood what he was trying to do. Then, she said to Kisa apologetically, “I’m so sorry. I’ve been living alone, so the guest rooms would only be cleaned up occasionally. The maid only managed to get one of the rooms ready when she knew that I had a guest coming, but two of you showed up instead.

“So...”

Felicity smiled. “It’s best for you to share the room with Mr. Kooper. I’m so sorry.”

Kisa waved her hand. “Don’t worry about it. We’re the ones asking for your help.”

“All right. You should go upstairs with Mr. Kooper to get some rest now.”

Gilbert lowered his gaze and looked at her without saying anything.

Kisa hated the silence and being in that position, so she reached out and shoved him softly.

"I've already apologized to you. I wouldn't have done that if you didn't limit my freedom. Ultimately, it's you and your mom's fault."

"I asked you if you want to come to Athadale that night. What did you tell me? Hm?"

Kisa looked away embarrassingly. "It's true that I didn't want to come, but I don't have a choice."

"Stop finding excuses!" he grunted.

Gilbert was so mad that it looked like he was about to swing his fist at her.

Kisa leaned back and said softly, "Stop it. Even though I lied to you, you didn't lose anything. I figured that since you didn't want to see me, I should just come to Athadale and stay out of your sight. In that way, everybody can be happy."

Gilbert was relieved after hearing what she said.

"The baby should be fine if she's not bleeding anymore."

He could not help but furrow his brows after realizing that she had drunk alcohol earlier.

"You need to stop drinking, for a while at least."

"Why?"

Gilbert got mad after seeing the defiant look on Kisa's face. "Didn't I just tell you that your body is recovering? How could you still drink? Alcohol is bad for your health anyway."

Kisa knew that if she showed any resistance, Gilbert was going to lose his temper again. So, she quickly nodded. "O-Okay then."

Gilbert's facial expression softened after hearing her agree.

Then, Kisa looked at him and said after noticing that he was not that mad anymore, "Okay, I'm going to take a shower now. I'm really tired."

"You just told me that you weren't tired!" Gilbert said angrily.

Kisa walked toward the bathroom as she turned her head back and said, "I'm tired now after getting lectured by you."

The man asked, his voice deep in the pitch-dark room.

Kisa pursed her lips and suddenly stopped talking.

Actually, she did not know what she was trying to say either.

She only brought that up because she wanted to know how he felt toward her back then.

Gilbert suddenly got closer to her in the bed and wrapped his long arm around her waist.

Kisa froze, but her heart felt somewhat warm.

“I’ve told you before that I started caring for you and liking you ever since we were kids, but you wouldn’t believe me. You’ve never trusted the feelings I have for you until now, so why are you bringing this up now?”

Just when she reached the bedside, he suddenly pulled her down onto the bed. He then took off her dressing gown.

Lea panicked. She hurriedly pressed against his chest.

"No!"

Anthony coldly squinted, "You rejected me several times. What's wrong? Are you really seeing someone else?"

"No." Lea quickly shook her head. She felt that it was difficult to tell him what was happening.

"Why'd you reject me if you're not cheating on me? Don't forget that you climbed into my bed yourself back then!"

Anthony shouted. Lea turned him off.
