Chapter 1201 Indirectly Praising Himself as a Faithful Man

“Ah!”

Kisa was woken up by a scream in the morning.

She dazedly opened her eyes. She noticed it had woken Gilbert up too.

“Ah, what happened to you? Miss, Miss... Someone passed out!”

Kisa confusedly looked at Gilbert.

Gilbert stroked her on the head as he said in his raspy voice, “The sound came from the yard downstairs. You go back to sleep. I’ll go to the window and take a look.”

Kisa nodded. She then saw him yawn as he walked toward the window.

He was not wearing any shirt. His slim upper body was very sexy and charming in the morning light.

Just when Kisa started admiring his body, she then saw him hurriedly take the robe from the chair and put it on as he ran outside.

Kisa panicked. She anxiously asked, “What’s wrong?”

Gilbert laughed as he said, "If you really don't like him, I'll persuade him to forget about you and ask him to stop troubling you when he's sober."

"I..." Felicity looked unnatural as she said, "I didn't say I don't like him. It's just that he always makes me angry."

Felicity furiously glanced at the man on her leg as she said.

Gilbert shook his head as he said with a smile, "Actually, you can't blame him. After all, he's never dated any woman in the past. So, there are many things that he still doesn't understand. Nor does he know anything about romance and how to impress a girl."

"You weren't born to date a girl too. How did you know how to impress a girl and how to take care of a woman's emotions from the very beginning?" Felicity angrily said.

Gilbert subconsciously looked at Kisa.

Kisa expressionlessly said, "I'm not the first woman that you dated. Why are you looking at me?"

'I think the first girl he dated was Sara back then. From what I remember, the only girlfriend that he ever admitted he had was Sara. So, I guess only she knows if he knew about romance and how to impress a girl from the start.'

Gilbert subconsciously extinguished the cigarette as he saw her walking toward him.

But he did not stare directly at her. He looked out the window instead.

Kisa picked up the tie at the end of the bed before she went up to him.

“What’s wrong with you? Why are you so angry?”

‘Everyone said women are hard to understand, but I feel like his mind is even harder to read.

Gilbert turned his eyes to look at her. His voice was dull, “You’re the first woman I dated. And you’re the only one too.”

Kisa was stunned for a moment.

‘So that’s why he’s upset. But what he said wasn’t true at all. Back then, he admitted that Sara was his girlfriend. And other than her, there were always other women around him. At that time, I was just a nobody who secretly had a crush on him. There’s no way I’m the first woman he dated.’

Kisa did not want to argue with him on this.

‘Whatever. It’ll only make him even angrier if I quarrel with him when he’s mad. Everyone around him will have a hard time when he’s furious.’

She tried very hard to push him away. She then looked into his dark, gloomy eyes as she angrily shouted, "What are you doing?"

Gilbert sullenly stared at her for a long time.

Kisa leaned against the window and flinched. 'He looks scary.'

Just when she was pondering whether or not to cheer him up, he suddenly walked outside without saying anything.

Kisa couldn't help but heave a sigh of relief when she saw him walk out of the room.

She sat on the couch and touched her burning lips. She was upset and confused.

'These days, Gilbert had been paying very little attention to me. He's been colder than a stranger to me, but just now he forcefully kissed me for no reason. I have no idea what he's thinking. If he doesn't like me anymore and wants to break up with me, why does he keep showing me concern every now and then?

'But if he really loves me, why is it that some of his actions always make me doubt him?' Kisa took a nap after Gilbert left.

She slept quite deeply. It was already one o'clock in the afternoon when she woke up.

She was very hungry.

‘She’s pregnant. If she falls down, the consequences would be unthinkable,’ thought Gilbert. Kisa was terrified as she laid in his arms.

She could clearly feel he was nervous and frightened. She could not help but freeze for a moment.

‘I was the one who almost fell. Why do I feel like he’s even more nervous and frightened than I am?’

“Walk properly in the future. Why were you so panicked? No one was chasing after you!”

Just as she was having an inner thought, she could suddenly hear Gilbert’s scolding voices from above her head.

Kisa raised her eyes to look at him. She sincerely thanked him, “Thank you.”

Gilbert did not speak. He just helped her to walk downstairs.

“Mr. Kooper, Ms. Becker, you guys came down.”

As soon as they came downstairs, Cora Packer greeted them.

Gilbert nodded as he asked, “Is lunch ready?”

“It’s ready. Ms. Jennings specifically ordered us not to go upstairs and disturb the two of you. She asked us to get the food ready as well so that you two can eat right away after coming downstairs.”

Kisa tugged at her collar. "Yeah, it's a little hot."

"It can't be. It's late autumn. The wind is really cool, and I even feel like I'm a little underdressed," Felicity said matter-of-factly.

Then, Gilbert looked up and said to her expressionlessly, "Be more subtle next time. Don't be so loud because people might misunderstand you if they heard you."

Felicity was flabbergasted and frozen for a full five seconds before coming to her senses. She smacked the table and said, "Do you have nothing better to do apart from eavesdropping on our conversation?" She was normally frank and outspoken like a man, but at that moment, she was blushing upon hearing what Gilbert said.

Gilbert leaned back in his chair, sipped his soup, and said, "I didn't even need to eavesdrop because you were talking so loud."

"You!" Felicity's face was so red that it looked like a cherry.

Chapter 1207 Like She Had Never Seen The World

"Okay... Okay..." Lea was so excited that she was about to cry. She carefully carried the gown and then headed for the restroom.

Anthony snickered, as he thought to himself, 'It's just a gown, and yet it made her so happy. She is so easily satisfied.'"

Afraid of ruining the evening gown, Lea was extremely careful when she changed into it. She had never worn such an expensive dress in her life. The point was, it was the man she loved most who gave it to her. She suddenly had a glimmer of hope in her heart, wondering if Anthony had already started to accept her, and if it was time to tell him about her pregnancy. She thought perhaps she would mention it to him after the party was over.

"Are you done yet? Is it that difficult to change into a gown?" Anthony was rushing her outside.

Lea quickly cut the thoughts from her mind and said from behind the dressing room door, "Alright, almost done." The gown, which was silver, was heavy and splendiferously stunning. Lea put it on and looked at it in the mirror, feeling that the person in the mirror did not look like herself anymore. She had never worn such a dress before, and she did not know if it looked good. She was just not used to it.

Lea nodded, feeling nervous.

Anthony exhaled a ring of smoke and said, "If anyone asks what's your relationship with me, just say that you are my dance partner."

Lea was disheartened, but she still nodded obediently. "Okay."

"One more thing, if anyone asks you what you do for a living, you must not mention that you work as a bar girl."

It saddened Lea to hear that. 'He still mind my previous occupation.' She pursed her lips. Actually, I know little about many of these etiquettes. You can always find someone better to be your dance partner, and you won't need to-

Felicity laughed and teased him, “Hey, wake up. Don’t look like you have never seen a beautiful woman before,” She said, resting one hand on Kisa’s shoulder and smiling, “It’s true that Kisa is naturally beautiful, but you shouldn’t be staring at her like that. Look, you’re embarrassing her.”

Feeling embarrassed, Kisa lowered her head. Because Gilbert was too absorbed and his gaze was so intense, she felt as though he was seeing through her clothes. She pursed her lips and then whispered to Felicity, “I won’t try any more dresses. I’ll just choose this one.”

“This one doesn’t suit you,” Gilbert suddenly said.

Kisa looked at him in puzzlement. He had just stared at her with fascination, making her think that it was because she looked good in the dress. But now, he said that the dress did not suit her.

Felicity, too, wondered why. “It doesn’t suit her? Then, why did you stare at her with such fascination? What is wrong with you?”

“It’s her as a person that fascinates me, not the outfit,” he said coldly.

Just then, Kisa came out of the restroom. The dark purple dress on her looked even more gorgeous than the black one earlier.

Felicity was depressed when she saw the stark contrast between the fashion sense of Gilbert and of Davian. Then, she started wondering why she fell in love with Davian in the first place.

Kisa's fair skin contrasted nicely with the purple dress, and she looked elegant. If the black color dress was sensual, then the purple one was elegant and classy.
