The Divorced Billionaire Heiress chapter 2468-Perhaps due to their professions, everyone had a straight posture and great build, which was pleasing to the eye.

The boys were interested in the truck and excitedly wanted to climb up to take a closer look.

The girls only surrounded the good-looking firefighters and asked for hugs.

Seeing this, Selena felt that having a thing for good-looking men was a bad habit that developed since young.

Zachary's colleagues saw the woman behind Zachary and looked at him with a playful smile. Then, they greeted her as if they already knew who she was.

One of the youngest smiled naively and asked, 'Zach, is this the owner of the bar that you helped to buy fire-fighting equipment for?'

Everyone else pricked up their ears and listened.

Only Selena was a little shocked and thought, 'So many people knew about this?'

Zachary lightly reprimanded him with a carefree smile.

"Fortunately, she is. If not, you would've ruined my chances!"

The others chuckled.

Selena also stood up and said with a smile, "You're all welcome to my place! I'll give you guys 50% off drinks..."

She saw so many innocent and ignorant children, so she did not dare to speak too clearly.

She did not want to be a bad influence on the children.

Everyone talked and laughed.

Zachary tilted his head and said with a smile, "Selena, do you want to walk around the campus? We still have two more hours before we're done. I'll send you back later."

Selena did not expect to stay here for such a long time.

Thus, she had a big reaction. Her smile disappeared instantly. After the shock, she looked up at him blankly.

Zachary was amused by her change in expression and laughed out loud.

He looked at her with tender eyes and explained, "We don't just have this one class. There are other classes too. We stagger them because there are too many kids. If you want to leave, you'll have to climb over the fence. But you'll probably end up having tea at the police station. Selena, have you thought about it clearly?"

Zachary's words successfully dispelled Selena's idea of leaving first.

Selena did not want to embarrass herself and end up in the police station again.

She had been there twice and was a little traumatized.

Selena pursed her lips, choked for a moment, and said casually, "It's just two hours, so I'll stay. I like the atmosphere of this campus. It makes me think of the time when I was seven or eight years old!"

Zachary smiled knowingly, as if he could read her mind, but he did not expose her.

"Sure. I hope you keep your word."

Selena lifted her chin and pretended to be reserved.

Then, Zachary was called away by his colleagues.

Selena had a bitter face. She found a swing out of boredom, sat on it, and sighed.

She would much rather sleep at home.

It would be so boring to hang around in the school playground for two hours!

Soon, she simply forgot about that thought.

That was because the handsome firefighters were playing with the children. Each of the firefighters carried two children and did push-ups. It looked like they were in a competition.

Some had two boys on their backs, while some only had one boy. Everyone shouted enthusiastically.

The children also enjoyed it.

The air was filled with sweat and male pheromones.

Everyone was more interested in this competition than in firefighting procedures.

It turned out that children were also superficial.

Selena could not help but look to enjoy the sight.

They were so youthful, exciting, vigorous, strong, and righteous...

Suddenly, a shadow appeared in front of her and blocked her view.

Selena raised her head stiffly and saw Zachary, who had a playful but somewhat cold look on his face.

She suddenly felt extremely embarrassed and clutched the chain of the swing with both hands. She looked to be in a dilemma.

“Um... You’re blocking me.”

Zachary smiled faintly and said, “I didn’t expect you to be interested in these things since you’re used to seeing so many handsome guys dancing and stripping in your bar.”

Selena coughed and said, “Everyone has a love for beauty. Not to mention, the customers in my bar drink often, and their muscles are all deliberately trained in the gym. Very few have real muscles like you guys. Why didn’t you join in the fun?”

She had no other thoughts about Zachary and only viewed him as her junior.

Otherwise, she would not have asked this question.

Zachary’s face remained unchanged. He raised his eyebrows, smiled, and lowered his head. He could see his reflection in her eyes. Then, he said in a husky voice, “You want to see me like that?”

His voice was melodious. It sounded playful and inquisitive, which stunned Selena.

Was her question suggestive?

Selena hurriedly waved her hands nervously.

“No, no... I didn’t mean that...”

Zachary came closer, grabbed the slightly swaying chains of her swing, and looked down at her with dark eyes.

“I don’t like to compare. You definitely have preferential treatment if you’d like to see it, but I only show it off to my girlfriend. Do you want to be my girlfriend, Selena?”

His voice was deep and coaxing. It made her subconsciously feel like falling into his trap.

Selena was a determined person, but she still blushed.

Zachary's eyes were like deep whirlpools that could suck her in. That radiant and bold young man seemed to be her impression of Zachary a few years ago.

Now, Zachary gave her a completely different and fresh feeling. He was a mature man with sexual appeal.

No woman would be willing to let him go.

Selena almost fell for it too.

Zachary was subtle before, so Selena felt that he was only a little bit interested in her.

However, he was a lot more polite and enthusiastic about her, much more than a former college classmate should have been.

Zachary took the initiative to step over the barrier and tore down the veil to stand directly in front of her.

He made it very clear that he still could not forget her.

So, would she be his girlfriend?

Selena's heart clenched for a moment. Her heart felt warm like it was soaked in a warm bath. The unexpected warmth and shock made her tremble slightly.

She could vaguely hear the voices of children cheering from afar.

However, she could also hear Zachary's steady breathing.

She seemed to be tugged by a thin thread, wanting to approach him.

After having been through a failed marriage and having a vile husband, Selena had a deep understanding of human nature. However, it did not affect her pursuit of happiness.

be a loner.

Selena also wanted to go on dates with young hunks and spend the rest of her life happily and lavishly.

At this moment, Zachary's appearance reminded her of a better choice.

It was a pleasant surprise.

Being liked by such a brilliant guy, Selena felt that her boring life would become better.
