

Married at First Sight Chapter 2023 - 2027

Chapter 2023

Serenity said to him: "Even if your younger brother comes to you for help, as long as it is related to love, don't help indiscriminately, lest the more you help, the more helpful you become. If you are a veteran in love, I don't bother to care about you. You can do whatever you want."

Zachary: "I don't care, and I'm not a veteran in love. My EQ is extremely low, and Josh often complains that I have a negative EQ. In the future, when they encounter difficulties in chasing their wives, I'll let them ask you for advice."

Zachary gave his wife the opportunity to help his younger brothers, so that his wife would have more authority and a more stable position in front of his younger brothers.

Serenity: "Julian's pursuit of Elisa..."

Zachary: "You must not let Elisa know about it."

Serenity: "I can help you keep it a secret for a while, but it's very easy for Julian to keep doing this. It's a headache."

Zachary said: "I'll talk to Julian and ask him to reduce the frequency of appearances?"

Serenity immediately wanted to nod, and after thinking about it, she said: "Let's just watch it first. When Remy and Elisa are engaged and stable, you can find Julian again, but at that time, Julian probably won't act anymore."

"Julian didn't do this to push Remy and Elisa settle down quickly, if the two of them don't settle down, those young talents in our Wiltspoon will tremble."

"Isn't it?" Zachary saw his cousin being tormented by Mrs. Stone giving him a headache, empathy.

"With Julian as a comparison, my aunt is more inclined to Remy, and I can't deny the credit of Julian."

Julian was not even as good as Remy.

Everyone told that Julian was sick!

Whoever would marry him would end up being a widow.

Mrs. Stone was naturally reluctant to let her daughter be a widow, so she thought that Remy was better than Julian.

Zachary: "Honey, let's not talk about them, let's go eat."

"Okay." Serenity got up.

In the afternoon, Serenity would go back to the bookstore to help, as well as the handicrafts she made before. She had already transferred the online store to her old classmate, and there were still a lot of raw materials in the bookstore. Raw materials were transferred to old classmates.

She was so busy that she didn't have time to run an online store anymore. She didn't hospital.

After receiving a call from her ex-in-law, knowing that her ex-husband Hank had woken up and transferred from the ICU to the general ward, Liberty bought some fruits and nutritional supplements to visit the hospital.

Hank woke up, but his mental state was still very poor.

He slept a little longer.

Fortunately, the doctor said that his life was out of danger, and he was still mainly lethargic so there was no need to worry too much.

The doctor said that Hank had a strong desire to survive.

Liberty found Hank's ward and knocked on the door.

Mrs. Brown: "Maybe it's the delivery man."

Liberty heard the voice of her former mother-in-law.

Soon, the door of the ward opened.

"Auntie." Liberty called her ex-mother-in-law.

"Liberty, please come in." Mrs. Brown was very happy when she saw that it was Liberty, she hurriedly shifted her body to let Liberty in, and said that Liberty had bought so many things.

“A little fruit and a little nutrition, to nourish Sonny’s Dad’s body.”

Liberty no longer called her ex-husband’s name, but changed her name to Sonny’s Dad, implying that she would come to see it because Hank was Sonny’s own father.

Without this relationship, Liberty didn’t even want to step into Hank’s ward.

Mr. Brown and Mrs. Brown also knew that Liberty was looking for their grandson’s sake.

At this moment, they felt that it was right to give Liberty the custody of their grandson.

Sonny had always been with his mother and aunt, and the custody was given to Liberty, which had no impact on Sonny’s life, and Liberty could give Sonny the best education.

The main reason was that there were not so many quarrels and conflicts in Liberty’s small family, which would not affect Sonny’s young heart.

“Sister Chelsea.”

Seeing that Chelsea was also there, Liberty greeted the former eldest sister politely.

After the divorce, she, her ex-in-laws and eldest sister became more polite.

“Sister Chelsea, are you alright?” Liberty asked.

“I’m fine, and I’ve been discharged from the hospital. I heard that Hank woke up, so I hurried over with my brother-in-law to have a look. God bless, Hank is out of danger.”

Chelsea thanked God.

She asked Liberty to sit down.

Liberty glanced at Hank on the hospital bed, and Chelsea said: “Hank is out of danger, but his spirit is still very poor, and most of them are still lethargic. The doctor said that in a few days, Hank’s mental state will be better. After all, we went to the ghost gate and came back. We are thankful that he can wake up.”

After Chelsea finished speaking, she asked Liberty again: “Where is Sonny?”

Liberty: “He has gone to kindergarten.”

Chelsea said, “Yeah, I forgot. Today, when kindergarten starts on September 1st, Sonny is in kindergarten. How time flies.”

When her younger brother and Liberty divorced, Sonny couldn’t speak neat yet.

Sonny was in kindergarten.

“Can Sonny adapt?” Mr. Brown and Mrs. Brown asked in unison.

If they are allowed to take care of their grandchildren, they are reluctant to let their grandson go to kindergarten at the age of three. Sonny was too young, and they worried about him.

Liberty: “The teacher posted a video of him in the kindergarten in the class group. I saw him having fun with the children, eating by himself, and sleeping soundly during the lunch break. The teacher said that there are so many children, but Sonny didn’t cry. The other children would cry for their mother.”

Sonny was probably stimulated by Titus, so he didn’t dare to cry in kindergarten and watched others cry.

It might also be the first day of kindergarten, and he felt very fresh.

In addition, he was usually played with this one for half a day, and that one for a whole day. If he was separated from his mother daily, he adapted more quickly than other children.

Mrs. Brown: "On Saturday, I'll take Sonny to see his father."

Seeing that her former in-laws' hair had turned gray and they were much older, Liberty silently took out some money, then handed the money to her ex-mother-in-law, and said, "Auntie, this money is for Sonny'Dad to buy some nutritious food. You and Uncle should also take care of your health and buy some nutritional supplements."

Hank was seriously injured by Jessica, and he might not be able to work again for a year or so.

He was originally the breadwinner of the family, but he would not be able to work for a year or so, and his life would be much more difficult.

Originally, Hank still had some savings, but when he married Jessica, he spent a lot of money, and also he had spent a lot of money in hospital.

Jessica was still inside, so she couldn't force her to pay Hank's medical expenses in advance.

Hank's catastrophe could be said to have emptied his Brown family's wealth.

Mrs. Brown: "Liberty, no need, we still have some capital. You take Sonny to live by yourself, and Sonny has to pay tuition fees for kindergarten. You can keep it and don't worry about us."

Mr. Brown also said: "Liberty, you keep it and cultivate Sonny well, we will be very pleased."

His son's reputation was rotten, and he probably won't remarry in the future.

Then their Brown family only had one grandson, Sonny.

Now in the eyes of Mr. Brown and Mrs. Brown, the grandson was the most important.

As long as the grandson was doing well.

"The business in my store is very good and I can make money. It's not much money.

You can buy something to eat. I still have something to do in the store and go back first.

When Sonny has a holiday on Saturday, I will bring Sonny to see his Dad."

Liberty forced the little money into Mrs. Brown's hands.

The money was not too much, just $2000.

Mrs. Brown reluctantly accepted $2000, picked up the bag of fruit bought by Liberty and chased it out, insisting that Liberty take the fruit away, but Liberty refused, and the two of them pushed each other again. It was Mrs. Brown who brought her back to the ward.

Chelsea opened the bag and looked at the nutritional products Liberty sent, and said:

"They are all nutritional supplements for nourishing blood. Liberty is really caring. Our family used to treat her badly. She looked at it for Sonny's sake and still willing to come over and have a look."

She took out another box of nutritional supplements from her bag, and said to her mother, "Mom, I've been injured too, and I've been hospitalized. After being discharged from the hospital, Liberty bought two boxes of supplements, and I will take one box back to supplement."

Mrs. Brown: "What kind of fruit did Liberty buy?"

Chelsea took the bag from her mother and opened it to see that it was a bag of grapes.

She picked a grape and ate it. It was crisp, sweet and seedless, and she didn't need to peel it. She immediately said, "Mom, Hank can't eat these now. The fruit won't last long and the weather will be hot, so it will go bad."

Mrs. Brown: "You and my dad take out some, and bring the rest back to the small refrigerator for me to eat."

Liberty was generous; she had tasted the grapes she purchased, and she estimated that each catty cost more than $30.

When she bought it by herself, she was reluctant to buy more, so she bought one or two cattles to try something new, unlike Liberty who bought a big bag at once.

"Well, if Liberty and Hank don't divorce, nothing will happen, and our family's life will get better and better." Chelsea sighed.

If her younger brother and Liberty hadn't divorced, her parents would still be taking care of her children, the couple wouldn't be unemployed, and their parents' money would subsidize her small family, so the money given to her by the couple would be saved.

Although her husband was opening a shop to start a business, the expenses were high, and the money he earned a month was not as much as Liberty's breakfast shop.

When it came to this matter, Mr. Brown and Mrs. Brown were all disheveled.

After a long time, Mr. Brown sighed and said: "Our Brown family is unlucky, and Hank is unlucky."

A good daughter-in-law was divorced, and the remarried daughter-in-law was not a good one, which made the family turbulent, and almost killed his son.

"I heard that Liberty is going to open a new restaurant again, and her business will get better and better, and she will grow bigger and bigger. I really envy her." Chelsea was really envious.

Knowing that his daughter couldn't get rid of sh!t, Mr. Brown immediately warned his daughter: "Chelsea, you can't go to Liberty. She has a good business, that's because of her ability, no matter how much money she makes, it's her ability, it's her blessing. You can't go to her to borrow money or something."

Chelsea: "Dad, I know. In the past, seeing Liberty's life is so good, I must be jealous, and I will find a way to destroy it. But now, after Serenity gets someone to rescue me, Lucas, I won't target her and her sister again."

Married at First Sight Chapter 2026

Chelsea's personality was just like that, but she also knew how to be grateful.

Chelsea said: "Besides, who did Liberty earn so much money for? It was all for my nephew. Sonny's surname is Brown, and he will always be a member of our Brown family. How could I destroy it? I-I wish Liberty's business would grow bigger and bigger, and Sonny will take over in the future, and if I asks him to arrange a job for his cousins, he will not refuse."

Mr. Brown and Mrs. Brown stared at their daughter.

Stared at by her parents, Chelsea curled her lips, "I just said that, who knows what will happen in the future? Maybe my Repton family's business will get better and better, and my children will become rich second generations in the future."

Saying that, Chelsea got up, took out a bunch of grapes from the fruit bag and put them on the bedside counter, then she picked up the rest of the grapes and a box of nutritional supplements, and said to her parents, "Dad, Mom, I need to rest, so I'll go back first, and you can call me when Hank can eat. I'll make some soup for Hank, so that he can take good care of his body. You two don't have to worry too much. I'm worried about Hank, he survived the catastrophe, he will have a future blessing, maybe after he recovers from his injuries and goes through the divorce procedures with the poisonous woman, he can remarry Liberty.

If Hank is correct, Liberty is now inlaid with gold. If we wish to effectively support him, we must do so. If he marries again, we will claim Liberty as an ancestor. Since the individual with the surname Lewis is disabled, Liberty cannot marry him." Chelsea was still dreaming.

"The door is there!" Mr. Brown pointed to the door of the ward, telling his daughter to get out of here.

"It's really a dog who can't change eating sh!t, and still loves to take advantage of it."

Mr. Brown scolded his daughter.

Mrs. Brown said: "It's also because we used to get used to her like this. In the past, whatever she wanted to eat and what she wanted, she asked Liberty to prepare for her. She was so used to taking advantage of it."

"Hank's two marriages were killed by Chelsea." Mr. Brown regretted that he had spoiled his daughter like this.

"It's no wonder that Chelsea, Hank and Liberty divorced, the main responsibility is still on Hank, Hank cheated, and we bear the secondary responsibility. I don't even like that poisonous woman, let alone Chelsea. Besides, Lucas was almost snatched away, it was the handiwork of that poisonous woman, Chelsea's temperament, how could it be possible for poisonous woman Jessica to feel better? No virtue, he can't be worthy of a

Even if Serenity didn't marry into a wealthy family, as long as Liberty returned to the workplace and gave her a little time to adapt, she could get back on her feet and earn a lot of money.

After Liberty married into a wealthy family, Liberty did not rely on her younger sister. It is said that Zachary wanted to give a villa to Liberty, his eldest sister, so that Liberty, mother and son, would have a stable home, but Liberty declined both of them.

She said that she would rely on her own ability to buy a house and give her son a home. The capital for Liberty's business was half of the property that their son gave her when they divorced.

Excellent people might have a period of trough, and after getting out of the trough, they could still stand up again.

Liberty was like this.

She was bound by marriage and family before, and out of touch with society.

After the divorce, she was reborn from Nirvana.

When Liberty walked out of the inpatient department, she saw Duncan. She stopped and looked at Duncan. Soon, she walked over. Liberty: "Mr. Lewis, why are you here?" "I just finished my rehabilitation and came out to relax. I wanted to go to your new restaurant to find you, but I saw you driving away, so I followed you." Duncan said honestly. He just saw Liberty going to the hospital and guessed that Liberty was visiting her exhusband, so he followed her to have a look. Knowing that Liberty would not get back together with Hank, Duncan was still afraid and guarded. As long as Liberty came to the hospital, he would either follow her, or be unhappy at home, or lose his temper. The good-tempered Duncan in the past disappeared after he had a car accident, but now Duncan's temper was capricious. Everyone in the Lewis family treated him cautiously, even doting on him, as long as he was happy, he could do whatever he wanted. "Have you gone to see Sonny's father?" Duncan asked. Liberty nodded, and she said: "Auntie called me and told me that Hank woke up and was transferred from the ICU to the general ward. I came to have a look and bought some fruits and nutritional supplements." After Duncan was silent, he said: "Sure, Sonny, after school, do you want to bring him to see his dad?" "Let's take him to see his dad on the weekend. His dad is still comatose." Liberty walked behind Duncan. The bodyguard silently gave up his position, and Liberty pushed Duncan away. "It's good to wake up." Duncan said softly, "After all, he is Sonny's real father." Liberty hummed, "Mr. Lewis, you haven't eaten yet, so I'll treat you to dinner." Duncan: "Okay, I'm just hungry and waiting for you to invite me to dinner." Liberty said to him: "It can't be like this, if you're hungry, you need to eat something, don't starve your stomach, eat three meals a day on time." Duncan: "Understood." Liberty: "How about doing rehabilitation today?" Duncan didn't answer right away. Liberty comforted him: "Don't worry, take your time, I believe you can stand up." Duncan: "With a cane, I can walk two steps." Liberty: "This is progress, Mr. Lewis, you are awesome!" Duncan smiled, "Liberty, I can now calmly face the fact that I am disabled, and I won't make trouble like before. You don't have to praise me like a child. How is Sonny doing in the kindergarten? Didn't he cry and want to go home?" Liberty: "No, he had a lot of fun. He's usually alone, and there are so many children playing together in the kindergarten. I'm afraid he won't want to go home." Duncan smiled, "Sonny is a bit lonely. What time is Kindergarten in the afternoon? Can I go pick up Sonny with you? I usually see him, but I can't see him today. I really miss him." Liberty smiled and said, "Everyone says that. Serenity, Zachary also said to pick up Sonny in the afternoon and let me do my own thing. Elisa also said that she was going to pick up Sonny, Sonny is very lucky, there are so many people who love him."
