Married at First Sight Chapter 2098-The two older children were growing up, able to eat and drink, and hadn't had a big meal for a long time.

Took the children to eat in restaurants, always let the children eat, all they eat was money.

Chelsea thoughtfully said: "Husband, we are also self-inflicted. Before Hank and Liberty divorced, we had good food and drink at home, and we didn't need to spend our money. Hank would give the living expenses to his parents, the two elders. They all subsidize our family.

I like seafood, and I want to eat beef. As long as I tell Liberty about these expensive ones, she will buy them for me and make sure I get enough to eat. Now, Liberty no longer likes me, and she doesn't even want to hire me."

George wanted to say something, but in the end said nothing.

The couple just went to work, and the children in the family were taken care of by their parents-in-law. A little pension for the two elders and the food expenses given by the brother-in-law were all subsidized to their family. The money earned by the father and the couple at work could be saved.

Now, he had to pay for every penny.

The brother-in-law had been lying in the hospital for so long, and the cost was also high, all of which were the pension funds paid by the parents-in-law.

It was also when his brother-in-law Hank was hospitalized that Brother-in-law George knew that his parents-in-law still had money, and they didn't spend all of it on their family.

It's a pity that his brother-in-law was hospitalized and spent it all.

Thinking of not having to pay for his brother-in-law's hospitalization, he thought about it again.

Anyway, with his brother-in-law around, it's not his turn to be the son-in-law to take care of the parents-in-law's pension.

Besides, his wife Chelsea was a person who loved to take advantage of her natal family and took care of their small family wholeheartedly.

He didn't have to worry about his parents-in-law looking for him to take care of him in the future.

It's not that the whole family did not enter the house.

George: "Chelsea, Chelsea."

Chelsea: "What's wrong?"

George: "Look at that old couple, are they your brother's father-in-law and mother-in-law?"

Following her husband's pointing, Chelsea saw an old couple walking around, looking around, as if they were looking for someone, and seemed worried that others would recognize them.

"A bit like. It's impossible for them to come here, it shouldn't be." Chelsea said.

Jessica's parents were very angry when she stole her household registration book and Hank's marriage certificate, which resulted in them only receiving tens of thousands of dollars in dowry. They seldom came to the city, and even less.

Jessica had a bad time at her husband's house, and she rarely went back to her mother's house to cry.

But after Jessica stabbed Hank a few times, the Yates Family knew that she was not doing well at her husband's house.

Mrs. Yates was crying and scolding, scolding her daughter for not listening to them, and not asking for hundreds of thousands of gifts, so she didn't get the attention of her husband's family and was bullied by her husband's family.

If the Brown family spent more than $600,000 in gifts to welcome Jessica through the door, how dare the Brown family bully and abuse Jessica like that?

Weren't they afraid that their daughter-in-law would run away, and they would lose money and money?
