The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1131

Bringing Halvor with him, James stood twenty meters away from Nott once more.

He looked at Nott and some of the heavily armed mercenaries in front of him, then said in a loud voice, "I've brought you the person, but the helicopter will take some time to arrive.

Besides, it still needs to refuel, and that will take even more time." While he said that, he unlocked Halvor's handcuffs and pushed him slightly.

Feeling relieved, Halvor sprinted forward.

He stumbled several times before he got to Nott's side.

"Where's Marion?" asked Halvor.

"Did he leave the Capital already?" Nott cast a glance at him and did not say a word.

He looked at the time.

Nine minutes had passed.

"There's only one minute left, James.

We'll fight to the death if I don't spot the helicopter within one minute." Nott's voice rang out.

"Bring it over," James commanded.

Soon after, a helicopter approached in the distance.

"It's already here," said James, pointing at the distant sky.

Nott looked up and saw that a helicopter was indeed approaching.

However, his face was solemn.

He knew that even if the helicopter had arrived, and he got on the helicopter, it would still be impossible to leave.

Now he needed a hostage, and it had to be a hostage with great status and authority.

“Handcuff yourself and walk over here, James,” he commanded.

“I need you as a hostage.

As long as I can leave the Capital alive, I'll let you go.” James did not hesitate.

He picked up the handcuffs that were lying on the ground and handcuffed himself.

Moreover, he held up his hands and showed them to Nott who was standing across from him.

At the same time, he said in a low voice, “Henry, I'll go first as a hostage.

Let them take off.

When the brigade arrives, quickly deploy them and wipe out the enemies within ten seconds.

Then, launch a missile at the departing helicopter.

They're not allowed to leave alive.” “Dragon General, what are you trying to do? How can I fire at the helicopter if you're on it?” “Don't worry, I'll do something to make the helicopter lose control,” said James.

“The moment the helicopter loses control, open fire.

Also, make sure that the nearby residents go indoors and don't stay outside.

Try to shatter the helicopter into fragments.

Otherwise, it will hurt the civilians when it falls.” “Is this really okay, Sir? How will you escape?” “Believe me.

It'll be alright,” James said in a low voice.

All this while, Henry was always in the Southern Plains.

He had no idea that James was already a man of great power.

It would not be difficult for him to escape from the helicopter.

“Alright.” Henry nodded.

He somehow believed in James.

James continued, "Before the battle begins, undermine the enemy's morale.

Promise them that if they surrender, they won't die and will even receive some money." Henry nodded and said, "Got it." Ahead of him, Nott yelled, "What are you still yapping about, James? Come over quickly.

Remember, you can't bring any weapons." James finally moved forward after that.

As soon as he got close, several guns were pointed at him, but he still looked calm and relaxed.

The helicopter arrived fairly quickly.

In a matter of minutes, it appeared in the sky over Hope Villa District and landed in a vacant lot outside the district.

"Walk." Nott pointed a gun at James, and James walked towards the helicopter.

When Nott arrived at the helicopter, his men pointed a gun at the pilot and said, "Get out." The pilot quickly got out of the helicopter.

"Get on the helicopter," ordered Nott.

One of his men hurried to the cockpit.

He then followed him into the helicopter while holding a gun to James' head.

Halvor followed closely with a few of his trusted men.

Go." The plane quickly took off on Nott's command.

"Haha..." Halvor guffawed.

"James, I told you you'd compromise.

How about that? I called it, didn't I?" James glanced at him and said indifferently, "Do you really think you can escape?" With a smug face, Halvor said, "We're getting away now, aren't we?" James stopped talking.

Nott had a serious look on his face.

They had not yet left Sol.

He was uneasy.

He took his walkie-talkie and ordered, "Everyone, be on standby.

If the Red Flame Army dares to make a move, attack quickly.

If the Red Flame Army does not make a move, just remain still.

Be assured that the share that belongs to your family won't go missing after I leave here alive.

1, Nott Thorstein, have always kept my word.”

James was sitting in the helicopter, keeping track of the time and surveying his surroundings.

About twenty minutes had passed.

The helicopter had flown out of downtown and appeared in the suburbs.

James believed that the Red Flame Army had already finished deploying within this time.

He was also aware that there were satellites constantly monitoring this helicopter.

After the helicopter had departed, the Red Flame Army's helicopters moved into position and appeared in the sky above Hope Villa District.

There were snipers on every helicopter.

The three thousand mercenaries below were already being aimed at.

The mercenaries had observed the sky becoming densely packed with helicopters.

However, they were not afraid at all.

They were already prepared to die when they dared to come, but they did not take any rash actions either.

As long as Nott could leave safely, their families would receive the money.

At this moment, within the villa district, a horn was sounded.

“People that are outside, listen.

Surrender right now.

Lay down your weapons and you'll be spared from death.

You'll even get a certain amount of money.” The voice kept ringing out.

James, too, sensed that it was almost time at this point.

He looked at Halvor calmly and said, “Halvor, do you really think you can leave?” “Aren't we almost out of the Capital now?” Halvor had a smile on his face.

He had truly believed that as long as the three thousand mercenaries at Hope Villa District did not retreat, the Red Flame Army would not dare to do anything rash and he would be able to leave Sol very soon.

After leaving, he no longer cared about what the Red Flame Army would do next.

“Heh!” James laughed softly.

He stood up, and the handcuffs in his hands fell to the ground.

“What are you doing?” Nott immediately raised his gun.

Bang! A gunshot rang out.

However, James was standing to the side, unscathed.

There was even an extra bullet in his hand.

“You?” Nott turned pale.

James grabbed Halvor before abruptly pushing his True Energy.

The helicopter hatch jolted open in an instant.

Then he dragged Halvor along and leaped.

A strong gust of wind suddenly blew in at this precise moment, making the helicopter instantly sway unsteadily from side to side.

Henry had been using satellite surveillance to keep an eye on the helicopter.

He was watching the satellite feed when he noticed James jump out of the helicopter from a height of several hundred meters, dragging someone with him.

Immediately, he gave the order.

“Take action.

Fire!” At the command, the snipers mounted on the helicopters hovering over Hope Villa District immediately went into action.

Below, three thousand people instantly collapsed to the ground.

At the same time, the missile was launched.

It hit Nott’s helicopter precisely.

Boom! The helicopter instantly disintegrated into pieces and scattered into fragments.

There was nothing left of Nott and a number of his men.

James was falling from the sky while dragging Halvor.

He used True Energy to overcome the resistance and stood firm on the ground.

Then, he casually dropped Halvor to the ground.

Halvor was already scared out of his wits.

His limbs gave way and he collapsed to the ground.

Right now, his face was pale, and he was foaming at the mouth.

His entire body was shaking.

In all of his life, he had never witnessed ισνελεβσσκ.φσm such a scene.

“You, you...” He looked at James as if he had seen the devil.

Even his teeth were chattering.

James gave a faint smile and said, “I told you, you can't escape.”

“Greetings and welcome to the midday news, viewers.

“This afternoon, the Red Flame Army of the Capital had conducted a combat drill.

During this drill, three thousand fully armed Red Flame Army soldiers acted as the enemy and surrounded the Hope Villa District in the Capital.

“It was a live fire drill.

During the drill, the entire Red Flame Army was deployed.

They completed the rescue mission in a very short period of time.

“Please stay tuned to our follow-up report on the details of the drill.” A news story spread throughout the Capital and even the entire country.

Today, the Red Flame Army was dispatched.

Convoys and tanks were everywhere in the streets, and the entire city was also sealed off.

In the sky were countless helicopters.

Even combat aircraft were deployed.

This caused panic, but immediately η,σνελεβσσκ.φσm after, the news came out.

The public then realized that it was a drill.

The Red Flame Army quickly cleaned up the battlefield.

They dragged away the three thousand corpses and cleaned up Hope Villa District.

Meanwhile, James had brought Halvor back to the city and locked him up.

After that, he attended the press conference for the combat drill.

At the conference, he announced, “The Capital is the safest city in Sol.

The Red Flame Army is the strongest of the Sol armies in terms of combat power.

Through this drill, the Red Flame Army has demonstrated its terrifying combat prowess.

I hereby declare that this drill has been successfully completed.” James simply said a few words and left.

The rest would be handled by people from other departments.

In one way or another, the general public must be convinced that it was indeed only a drill.

At Peace Mansion...

Mr. Lee never left.

The news came through.

The King said with a smile, "I must say that James is quite capable.

He wiped out these mercenaries without harming anyone and even brought back the head of the Tuckson family." "Indeed." Mr. Lee sighed.

"The Capital will no longer be peaceful after this.

The year is coming to an end.

I really don't want any mishaps to occur at this time.

However, if these thorny issues can be resolved before the new year, the election next year will be relatively peaceful." At this point, a guard entered and said respectfully, "King, Mr. Lee.

James is here." "I'll be leaving, then." Mr. Lee quickly stood up with the intention of leaving through the back door.

However, James had already entered when he got to his feet.

"Mr. Lee, are you in such a hurry to leave?" Hearing James' voice, Mr. Lee sat back down.

James walked over and looked at the old man opposite the King.

This person looked about sixty years old.

He wore a frock coat as if he was an $\text{ισ.}\nu\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\nu\sigma\kappa.\phi\sigma\mu$ old man who had traveled from a bygone age.

James was aware that this was the person behind the King, Mr. Lee.

"You're here.

Sit." The King pointed to the sofa on the side.

James sat down.

His gaze remained fixed on Mr. Lee.

“This is Mr. Lee,” the King said as he introduced him.

Chapter 1133 novel The Almighty Dragon General

James smiled and said, “I've known about Mr. Lee for quite some time, and I finally got to meet him today.”

The King smiled and asked, “What can I do for you this time?” “It's nothing major.

It's just that I've attacked the Tuckson family this time, and there will undoubtedly be a large number of people involved.

Besides that, mercenaries appeared in the Capital and were even using military weapons.

There's something fishy about that.

I'm afraid there will be a major upheaval in the military region, so I specifically stopped by to give prior notice,” said James.

The King nodded and said, “Well, that's to be expected.

Go ahead.

Abide by the rules regardless of who is involved.

It's time for a clean-up and for a significant replacement of personnel.

In fact, I've been wanting to take action for a while now, but there haven't been any opportunities.

In addition, I was also concerned that if I took action against these people, the Capital would descend into chaos.” Mr. Lee did not say anything.

He just looked at James.

He was also contemplating and speculating.

‘What kind of a person is James, exactly?’ Was he truly a hero for his nation and his people, or was he just a man with ambition?

The King continued, “Do what you have to and I'll take care of the rest.

I'll look for suitable candidates as soon as possible to fill some of the vacant positions so that there won't be a mess.”

James felt relieved after hearing the King's words.

He stood up, looked at Mr. Lee, and said, “Mr. Lee, I'll take my leave now.” “Hmm.” Mr. Lee then nodded gently.

James did not linger and quickly left.

After he left, the King then looked at Mr. Lee and asked, “What are you thinking about, Mr. Lee?” Mr. Lee responded, “I was wondering what James was thinking about.

Sometimes I can't see right through him.

Everything he does is for the nation and its people.

He puts on an admirable front of devotion to righteousness and a lack of fear.

However, you can't judge a book by its cover.

I'm unable to infer what he's really thinking.” “Aren't we going to ascend him to the throne?” asked the King.

“ If we're having doubts about him now, what will happen later?” Mr. Lee gave a small wave of his hand and said, “He'll have no trouble taking the throne.

It's just that someone in a high- ranking position must consider the big picture.

James was too rash in light of the incident today.

He did not take the repercussions into account.

He seems to act independently and make decisions without consulting anyone else.” The King nodded gently and said, “You’re right.

Fortunately, it was successful.

If there had been a slip-up, the upheaval it would have caused would have been enormous.

Even though he had complete faith, it was still a bit of a gamble.

As a high-ranking official, he can’t make such a choice.

He can’t gamble with his decisions.” “Yes.

It appears that we’ll need to train someone else.

If James is really interested in this position, he’ll find a way to get rid of the newly revealed candidate and solidify his position in Sol.

If he has no interest, then he’ll work with the newcomer and sort everything out.” Mr. Lee said nonchalantly.

“James currently controls the military.

It’s not difficult for him to ascend to the throne if he wants to.

If the Black Dragon Army joins forces with the Red Flame Army to surround the Capital, he’ll be able to ascend to the throne,” said the King.

“That’s a bad plan,” said Mr. Lee.

“That’s just him being ambitious.

He’ll only do something like that if he loses the election.

Let’s first wait and see.

James did not make a move against Yaroslav this time, but now the Tucksons have been met with disaster.

Among those involved with the Tuckson family, there must be someone from Gu Sect.

We’ll see what Gu Sect does next.” Mr. Lee stood up as he said that.

“I’ll be going back, then.” Leaning back on the couch, the King lost himself in thought.

Mr. Lee had the idea of putting James on the throne very early on.

He, however, only wanted James to remove the dissidents.

James would be useless to him once he got rid of them.

He wanted to get rid of ancient martial artists, but he was an ancient martial artist himself.

Moreover, behind him was also a group of ancient martial artists.

The King watched the back of Mr. Lee as he left, and his brows began to furrow.

James, on the other hand, was also ruminating and contemplating after he left Peace Mansion.

He was thinking about Mr. Lee's identity and his background.

However, he did not know anything about Mr. Lee at the moment, and could not make any educated guesses yet.

He took a deep breath and put his thoughts aside.

Then he took out his phone and contacted Madelyn Gabriel.

Soon the phone was connected and Madelyn's voice rang out, "Emperor, I've spoken to you about the incident today.

I must say, you have a lot of guts.

The Tucksons have been well-established in the Capital for a century and they're connected in an intricate web of relationships.

When you make a move against the Tucksons, many people and families in the Capital will get involved." "I don't need instructions from you on how to do things.

I just want a list of the Gu Sect members' names." James was about to make his move, but first, he needed to know how many of the individuals connected to the Tuckson family were actually members of Gu Sect.

"The list of the names is ready, so I'll send it to you.

Please remember to check it.

Also, before you take any action, you have to kill Mr. Gabriel first.

Otherwise, when you act, you' ll be affecting the interests of many people, and it's impossible for Mr. Gabriel to not intervene.

Now all he wants to do is fake his death, hide, and stop caring about these things."
"Alright.

I'll work out a detailed plan as soon as possible." After James ended the call, he immediately rushed to the Emperor's Mansion.

He needed to meet with Maxine to discuss and devise a comprehensive plan.

Outside the Emperor's Mansion...

A military vehicle was approaching.

James got out of the vehicle, and the guards at the entrance saluted simultaneously.

He gave them a small wave before walking straight into the mansion.

Maxine and Thea were both sitting in the courtyard.

Their relationship appeared to have improved in the past few days.

They were chatting without being cold to each other.

They were very concerned today.

They were concerned that things would spiral out of control on James' side.

Fortunately, there were no mishaps.

"James." "Honey." When James approached, they both stood up at the same time.

James walked over and sat down on a chair in the gazebo.

"Thea, have you completed all of the preparations for Cansington?" he inquired.

"Yes." Thea nodded and said, "I've already given orders for the God -King Palace's elites to provide their protection covertly." "Good." James let out a sigh of relief.

"What are you planning to do next?" asked Maxine.

"First, put on a show with Mr. Gabriel.

We'll need to come up with a comprehensive plan.

We can't raise the suspicions of the Gu Sect members," said James.

James had agreed with Yaroslav.

It did not matter to him whether Yaroslav lived or died.

What was important to him was that he would get to know the people of Gu Sect as he wanted to take advantage of the opportunity and strike them all at once.

The three of them gathered and started coming up with a detailed plan.

Meanwhile...

In Lily City, the Capital.

At the foot of a mountain...

There was a detached villa in this area.

In the courtyard outside the mansion, a man who appeared to be in his sixties was practicing Tai Chi.

His movements alternated between swift and gentle, and his imposing bearing shifted with the rise and fall of his hands.

"Sir, something has happened in the Capital." Aman was quickly approaching.

He was about forty years old and dressed in a suit and tie.

The elder who was practicing Tai Chi stopped.

Two beautiful young ladies behind him quickly walked over, carrying towels.

The old man took them and wiped his hands and forehead.

He then asked calmly, looking at the middle-aged man standing in front of him, "Is there a problem?" "James has taken over as the Emperor.

He launched an attack on the Tuckson family today.

The entire Red Flame Army was on the move and created quite a commotion.

Currently, the Tucksons have all been arrested.

James is being far too brash.

The Tuckson family has a long history in the Capital and they have a complicated network of connections.

Now that he has made a move against them, he's going to take on quite a few families and prominent figures in the Capital.”

Hearing this, the old man frowned slightly and inquired, “What’s happening on Yaroslav's side?”

“He has yet to make a move,” said the middle-aged man,

“I thought that Yaroslav was the target of the King's plan to have James ascend to the throne, but James chose to attack the Tuckson family directly instead of making a move against Yaroslav.

Sir, now that James has gone straight past Yaroslav to target the Tucksons, he'd definitely attack the people connected to the Tuckson family next.

Then, the forces we have nurtured for so long will undoubtedly be uprooted by James.” The elder remained calm and collected.

“What’s the situation on the Supreme Leader's end?” he asked.

“The Supreme Leader is in closed-door meditation.

Yaroslav tried to meet with him but was unable to do so.

Currently, Thomas Caden is in charge,” said the man.

“Thomas?” Lucjan Owens did not trust Thomas, but the Supreme Leader wanted to collaborate with him.

There was nothing he could do about that.

“We can't trust Thomas, Mr. Owen.

Thomas is James' grandfather.

He must be paving the way for James.

Thomas will undoubtedly turn against us once James succeeds.

He's just trying to exacerbate our internal conflict." Lucjan nodded his head gently and said, "Yes.

I've never trusted Thomas.

The Supreme Leader seems to have lost interest in all of this, though.

Now he just wants to reach the highest rank.

Still, we can't just sit back and accept our fate..." He gave it a thought and commanded, "Frederick, hurry to the Capital.

Capture Quincy, Tiara, and the entire Callahan family.

Distract James so that he's unable to make a move against the Capital.

We can't let this brat destroy the network of connections we have established over the years." Lucjan Owens.

He was a member of the Owen family from Gu Sect's three major families.

Currently, he was the Deputy Leader of the Gu Sect.

Even though he did not reside in the Capital during these years, he was well aware of the situation there.

The Supreme Leader was currently meditating in seclusion, but something was going to happen in the Capital.

He could not just sit around any longer.

"Yes, Mr. Owen.

Where should we bring them?" Lucjan pondered for a while and said, "The Mount Thunder Conference is approaching.

Bring them to Mr. Thunder.

Until the Mount Thunder Conference is over and things have settled down."

"Yes, " The man nodded, then left in a hurry.

Lucjan did not linger either.

He turned around and entered the mansion behind him.

At the Emperor's Mansion, James was going over the plan with Maxine and Thea.

After much deliberation, they eventually arrived at some comprehensive arrangements.

He would kill Yaroslav Gabriel by tomorrow night.

When it was time, he would wield the Blade of Justice and lead the Red Flame Army to where Yaroslav resided.

Rather than bringing him back and imprisoning him, he would simply kill him immediately.

Yaroslav would also get a stand-in ready beforehand.

After they had finished discussing the plan, James told Madelyn about it.

Madelyn sent all of the documents about the Gu Sect to James as well.

These documents contained information about Gu Sect that Yaroslav had obtained.

James opened the documents and read them carefully.

Gu Sect Leader, identity unknown.

The Gu Sect also had a Deputy Leader, named Lucjan Owen.

His strength was unknown, but it was at least at the seventh rank.

Other than that, there was the Gu Devil.

They were Yaroslav's teacher.

They were the right-hand man of the Supreme Leader.

Their identity was unclear.

James read intently.

There were many strong and capable people in the Gu Sect.

According to the understanding of Yaroslav, at least five of them had reached the fifth rank.

Besides that, some of the families in the Capital were under the control of the Gu Sect.

After reading this detailed document, James could not help but take a deep breath and said, "Gu Sect is far too terrifying.

With determination, it has the power to upend Sol in a flash." He carefully tucked the documents away.

Then, he took out a USB drive and plugged it into his computer.

It was previously from Nathaniel and contained evidence of crimes committed by some powerful people.

James read it intently.

In this document, far too many prominent figures were included.

There would undoubtedly be a massive uproar if actions were taken.

It was understandable why Nathaniel was hesitant to part with it.

He would risk losing his life if this ended up in the wrong hands.

After reading it, James put it away.

He printed the documents containing information about Gu Sect and placed them in a safe along with the USB drive.

It was now nighttime.

In the living room of the Emperor's Mansion...

James was sitting on the sofa, smoking a cigarette.

Thea sat beside him and said, "Honey, I've been having a bad feeling.

I think something is about to happen.” Since this afternoon, Thea’s eyelid had been twitching.

James held her hand and said, “It’ll be fine.

What could possibly happen.” “T...I don’t know.

I just have a really bad feeling.” “Trust me, it’s fine.” Maxine gave them both a quick glance, then stood up and said, “ I’m going back to my room.” At this moment, James’ phone started to ring.

He picked it up and noticed the call had come from an unknown number.

He furrowed his brows slightly before answering the phone.

“James...” From the phone, a voice can be heard.

It sounded slightly husky and mature.

“Who?” asked James.

“who I am isn’t important.

I’ll send you a video file later.

Check it out when you receive it.” Beep, beep, beep...

The person on the other end of the phone hung up.

Thea’s phone also rang at this precise moment.

She answered the phone and immediately stood up, dropping her phone to the ground.

“H-Honey, word just came from the God-King Palace.

In C- Cansington, something happened.” Thea looked pale and was even having trouble speaking.

“Quincy, Tiara, and several other members of the Callahan family have been abducted.

Their whereabouts are currently unknown.”

James' face immediately darkened.

He knew something was wrong when he answered the phone.

“Honey, what should we do?” Thea was anxious.

At this moment, James received a video file.

He opened the file and began watching it.

A number of people appeared in the video.

They were Quincy, Tiara and Cynthia, as well as Lex, Benjamin, and David Callahan, all tied up.

The scene shifted.

An unknown man appeared in the video.

He was wearing a black hood and his face was obscured.

“James, if you want them to live, come to Mt.

Thunder.” That was the end of the video.

James clenched his fists.

Veins were bulging on his arms.

With a worried expression, Thea firmly grasped James' hand.

“Honey...” James gave a slight wave of his hand and said, “Thea, don't worry.

It should be fine.” Even though James did not know who had taken them, he had a rough idea of what they were after.

Today, he had made an attack on the Tuckson family.

That was the beginning of a major meltdown.

A number of people were getting anxious.

The purpose of capturing Quincy, the Callahans, and the others was to lure him away so that he could not deal with the issues in the Capital.

Thea's beautiful face was filled with concern.

“Why did they take my grandfather? Why did they take my father and brother? Have they been brought to Mt.

Thunder?” she asked.

“What's the matter?” At this moment, Maxine walked out.

She had just returned to her room and changed her clothes when she felt a rush of powerful energy sweep over her.

She did not even have time to change out of her pajamas.

James sat on the sofa, took a cigarette, and lit it.

“Quincy, Cynthia, Tiara, and the Callahans have been abducted.

The enemy informed me that I need to get to Mount Thunder quickly if I want them to stay alive.” “What?” Maxine also turned pale.

She walked over and sat down.

“Quincy and the others, including the Callahans, were all secretly protected by the elites of the God- King Palace, yet they were still abducted.

This can only mean that the person who made the attack is extremely powerful.

Besides, they even told you to go to Mt.

Thunder.

It's clear that they're trying to lead you away and stop you from interfering in the affairs of the Capital.” “Yes.” James nodded.

Thea was a bit anxious.

“Are Grandfather and the others really not in danger?” she asked.

“In theory, there is no danger.

The reason these people took action was that they could no longer hold back after James had affected some individuals' interests.

There's no way this is being done by the Tucksons, I'm guessing.

The Tuckson family is merely an ordinary family.

Despite having money and connections, they lack ancient martial artists and the ability to command them.

This is most likely done by members of the Gu Sect," said Maxine.

When he heard that, James frowned.

"The Gu Sect. Was it the Gu Sect's Supreme Leader who made the move?" Maxine shook her head slightly and said, "It shouldn't be, based on how things appear right now.

Gu Sect is a faction.

It's far more complicated than we realize.

James, what you can do now is to set aside the issues of the Capital for the time being and go to Mt. Thunder.

It won't be long until the Mount Thunder Conference.

If you get there quickly, you will not only be able to save them, but you'll also be able to attend the Mount Thunder Conference." James had already made up his mind to go to Mt. Thunder.

He could not possibly turn his back on Quincy, Cynthia, and the others.

These people would die if he carried on with his actions.

Maxine gave it a thought and said, "How about this? Tomorrow morning, we'll depart from the Capital together for Mount Thunder." "Okay.

James nodded and said, "Right now, things in the Capital area little chaotic.

People are feeling anxious.

Before I leave, I need to give a few instructions." "Go on, then.

I'm going back to my room to take a shower and sleep." Maxine stood up again and turned to leave.

James looked at Thea whose face was filled with anxiety and consoled her.

“Thea, don’t worry.

It’ll be alright.

They just don’t want me to attack these people in the Capital.

As long as I don’t take action right now and rush to Mt.

Thunder, the Callahans will be alright.”

Only then did Thea's restlessness subside.

“I'm going out for a while.” James got to his feet and left the Emperor's Mansion, making his way through the night to the Red Flame Army's base.

Henry was stationed at the Red Flame Army's base. Office.

“Did you rush over at this hour for something, Sir?” Henry asked, standing in front of James.

“Did something happen?” Henry had known James for many years.

James had a solemn expression on his face from the moment he walked into the office, so he knew something must have happened.

“Yes,” James answered, “Something did occur.

This time, I went after the Tuckson family.

My next actions will also be against some people's interests.

So, they couldn’t take it any longer and abducted Quincy, Tiara, Lex Callahan, and the others from Cansington.

They want me to leave the Capital and head to Mt.

Thunder.” Henry was stunned.

“Mt. Thunder Pass in the Southern Plains?” he asked.

James shook his head and said, “No.

During this time, you were in the Southern Plains.

You’re also unaware of what I’ve been through.” James did not elaborate much, as he was running out of time.

Besides, he could not give a clear explanation either.

He instructed, “There isn’t anyone in the Red Flame Army that I can totally trust.

While I’m away, keep an eye out when you’re in the military region.

Make sure there are no mishaps.

Before I leave, I’ll transfer you from the Southern Plains to the Capital, and your rank will be raised to three stars.” “Mr. Caden, this requires a tripartite review to be approved...” James waved his hand slightly, interrupting Henry.

He said, “I understand that this requires a tripartite review, but I also have the authority to promote you.

I’ll first transfer you over, and you’ll be temporarily in command of the Red Flame Army.

The formalities can be handled later.

Until the new year, all you have to do is to keep the military region out of disarray.” “Alright.” Henry nodded.

“Alright, you may leave.” Henry turned around and left.

Then, James made a call again for Nathaniel.

Soon, Nathaniel appeared in the office.

“Emperor...” Nathaniel had a mischievous grin on his face, but when he saw James’ solemn expression, he too became solemn.

“Sir, is something wrong?” He had to ask.

“I will transfer Henry from the Southern Plains $\mu\sigma\nu\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\nu\sigma\kappa.\phi\sigma\mu$ to the Capital, and promote his rank from one star to three stars.

He'll be in command of the Red Flame Army for the time being." Nathaniel furrowed his brows slightly and said, "I'm afraid that's a bit difficult, sir.

To be approved, it needs to go through a tripartite review.

The military brass will almost certainly not approve or agree to this." "Pay no attention to them.

I'll deal with them once I get back." James' expression darkened.

Those people were, to varying degrees, problematic.

"I'm going to leave the Capital tomorrow morning.

Please assist Henry during my absence.

The Capital must not devolve into chaos.

If you have to make any difficult decisions, remember to inform me.

Also, for the time being, put off dealing with the Tuckson family.

Simply detain Halvor and let the other irrelevant Tuckson family members go for now." "Sir, you're leaving?" Nathaniel was taken aback.

"Yes. There was a bit of a mishap, so I'm going to settle it.

Remember, if anyone puts pressure on you to release Halvor, don't give in.

The Red Flame Army has complete authority over this matter, and no other department is allowed to intervene." "Yes, I understand." Nathaniel nodded.

"That's all.

You may leave." James gave a small wave of his hand.

Nathaniel turned around and left as well.

He had no idea what had happened, but since James had attacked the Tuckson family, he could only assume it was something major.

The Tuckson family was intertwined in a complex web of relationships.

There were too many people involved.

To attack one of them is to attack all.

James was in the military region, making a series of arrangements.

After the arrangements were in order, he traveled through the night to the courthouse.

He looked at the Blade of Justice, and walked over, and picked it up.

With the Blade of Justice in hand, he turned around and left.

“No matter who they are, if they dare to touch them, I'll never let them get away with it.”
James exuded a chilling, murderous intent.

James left with the Blade of Justice.

His destination this time was the Mount Thunder Sect.

It was almost time for the Mount Thunder Conference.

As of yet, he had no idea what would transpire during the conference.

He was only aware that there was already friction between the Great Four.

During the Mount Thunder Conference, the Great Four would use violence to settle their disputes.

James was a Caden, so it was impossible for him to stay above the fray.

He would definitely get caught up in it.

Aside from that, he was the Commander of the Black Dragon Army, the Dragon King, and the Emperor.

He was the country's representative.

Furthermore, members of the Gu Sect were the driving force behind the Mount Thunder Conference.

He would surely be up against the members of Gu Sect.

This time around, the Mount Thunder Conference would undoubtedly be a battleground.

The chances of survival were uncertain.

He did not know if he would be able to make it back alive.

James did not sleep for the entire night.

He sat in the room, meditating.

The next day! "Honey..." A voice could be heard.

James opened his eyes slightly, controlled his True Energy, and got to his feet.

Before him, stood a stunning woman in casual clothing.

She had a cascade of long, black hair.

Her pretty face wore a solemn expression.

"Thea," James called out and took her into his arms, hugging her tightly.

Thea was stunned.

"Honey, what's the matter?" James lay his head against her shoulders, the scent of shampoo and perfume permeating his senses.

He said gravely, "This time, Thea, it will be extremely dangerous at Mt.

Thunder, so you won't be going.

You' ll return to Cansington.

I'm not sure if I'll be able to return alive, but if I do, I'll go find you in Cansington.

I once made a promise to you that we would have a grand wedding together, one that would command the attention of the entire world.

If I can make it through and return, I'll definitely keep my word, but, if I »" Thea abruptly pulled away from James' embrace and gave him a kiss, cutting off his speech.

It took a while for them to separate.

"Honey, I'll go with you.

I'm now a third-rank.

I can help you as well.

I won't be holding you back." Thea looked at James with a determined expression.

"I've been trying my best, Honey.

I'd like to help you.

I really want to help you.

Let me accompany you.

Ill share your burden." "Thea, I know you're trying, and I know you've put in a lot of effort.

But you have no idea how powerful the enemies are this time.

When you are up against powerful individuals at the seventh or eighth rank, the third rank is really nothing.

You won't be able to fight back.

I don't want anything to happen to you." James had thought about it for the whole night.

He would not bring Thea, since he did not have full confidence and was not entirely certain he could bring Thea back safely.

"James, we can leave now." Outside the door, there was knocking.

James went over, opened the door to the room, and walked straight into the living room.

"What's the matter?" Maxine furrowed her brows slightly.

She cast a glance at Thea, who was following behind him, and noticed the mood was a little strange.

She could not help but rub her nose.

James walked to the living room and sat down, then he took out a cigarette and lit it.

"Honey, I have to go." Thea was standing off to the side, a determined expression on her face.

When she heard that, Maxine understood that James did not want to bring Thea.

Thea continued, "God-King Palace is very powerful, too.

I'll immediately direct all God-King Palace elites from across the country to Mount Thunder Sect and congregate there.

No matter how formidable the opponents are, let's face them together." James smoked the cigarette while staring at Thea, who was standing in front of him.

In exchange for saving him, the woman in front of him had endured ten years of suffering.

Even though there had been many setbacks during their time together, Thea was always in his heart.

She had completely changed now.

She was no longer the frail and defenseless Thea who allowed people to bully her.

"Thea, trust me.

I'll bring back the Callahans.

I'll bring them back even if it means risking my life."

After saying that, he looked at η'σνελεβσοκ.φσm Maxine and said, "Maxine, go back to Cansington with Thea.

The situation in the Capital is too complicated and unpredictable, you should stay out of it for the time being."

"IT can't do that," Maxine objected immediately.

"If I go with you, I can offer you advice or strategize with you during a crisis.

Besides, you don't even know much about ancient martial artists.

You also have no idea who are the elites among the ancient martial artists.

I am somewhat knowledgeable about that.

If you take me along, I can assist you.” “Are you aware of what will happen at Mount Thunder this time?” James asked with a grave expression.

“The Great Four already had a falling out.

During the Mount Thunder Conference, the other three families will team up and attack the Cadens.

You’re a member of the Caden family.

If you're there, they won't have any mercy for you.” “As a Caden, that’s all the more reason I should go,” Maxine spoke without hesitation.

Both of them were very determined to go to Mt. Thunder.

They genuinely wanted to help James.

He knew he could not persuade them.

James stood up and swiftly touched their acupuncture points, sealing both of their True Energy.

“You—James, what are you doing? Unseal my acupoints.” “Honey, quickly unseal my acupoints.

I can help you, I really can.

I want to go with you to Mount Thunder Sect.

My grandfather, my father, and my brother were all taken to Mt. Thunder.

How could I not go?” They were both perturbed.

“Come in,” James said loudly.

The door to the room was pushed open and a few guards entered.

“Sir.” “Bring Maxine and Thea safely to the Red Flame Army's base and find Black Shadow General.

Inform Black Shadow to make arrangements for their return to Cansington and to detain them temporarily.

Do not release them until the new year,” James instructed.

“Yes.” The guards gave a loud and uniformed response.

“James, can you not be so rude and impetuous?” shouted Maxine, “Unseal my acupoints.

I’ll go with you.” “what are you doing, Honey? Why do you always shoulder everything on your own? Why don’t you let me share some of your burdens...” Thea began to sob.

James commanded, “Take them away.” “Yes,” The guards forcefully took Maxine and Thea away.

James returned to his room once again.

He looked at the Blade of Justice on the table and picked it up.

He drew the blade...

Then, he contemplated the Blade of Justice with a hint of darkness in his expression.

A bleak, murderous aura was radiating from him.

The Blade of Justice was put away in a sheath.

Holding the Blade of Justice, he put on an overcoat and walked out of the room.

He left the Emperor’s Mansion, then the Capital, and began his journey to the Mount Thunder Sect.

Meanwhile, in the Capital, at the Peace Mansion.

“King, James has already left the Capital.” The person who was talking was Gloom.

He had left for a few days and went to Mount Thunder Sect.

Then he returned after assigning some men to plant explosives in secret.

“Okay. The King nodded his head gently and said, “I didn’t anticipate Lucjan to kidnap people from Cansington when he became agitated.

He even forced James to leave for Mt. Thunder early so he wouldn’t be able to handle the affairs in the Capital.”

“King, what should we do now?” Gloom inquired.

“All we can do is wait until the Mount Thunder Conference.

I never expected everything to be resolved before the Mount Thunder Conference in the first place.

Since James has already left, we'll put it on hold for now.

Once the conference is over and Gu Sect is dealt with, it will be much easier to take care of the others." said the King.

"Gloom..." "Give me your command, King." "Mr. Lee already left for Mount Thunder Sect yesterday.

Go and meet him there." "Alright." Gloom turned and left in a hurry.

The King stood up as well and ι.σ.ν.ελε.βσ.σκ.φσm moved around, releasing the tension in his body.

For a split second, his face darkened.

"The Mount Thunder Conference has finally arrived.

I hope there won't be any mishaps this time.

After this conference, everything will come to an end." 2
