Chapter 208

Read The Ex-Husband's Revenge By Dragonsky Chapter 208 – Ashwin then continued, “I’m going to contact a few senior executives and have them try to cooperate with the R-and-D department to put pressure on Leon. During the meeting, we’ll all work together to stop Leon from getting his way!”

“Gotcha.” Michael nodded and strode out of the office.

On the other side, Leon and Ariel were about to leave for the factory, but when they heard the news that Iris was holding a high-level meeting, they decided to put their plans aside and walk to the meeting room together.

The company executives were already inside the meeting room when Leon and Ariel arrived.

At that point, the clacking of heels was heard and Iris walked into the conference room with her secretary, Gracie.

The originally noisy meeting room immediately fell silent as Iris went to the head seat and sat down.

“Since this is our routine meeting, I’d like all departments to present last month’s progress reports and business reports. You can also raise any issues you might have,” Iris said indifferently. Her expression was as cold and calm as ever.

“Miss Young, perhaps I can represent the finance department to kick things off…” A shrewd 35- to 36-year-old young woman stood up. She was the director of the company’s financial department, and she started the meeting by giving a detailed explanation of the previous month’s financial expenditures.

After the financial department’s report was over, the directors of the other departments stood up one after another and reported their progress to Iris one by one before summarizing everything.

Leon was a layman, and everything that was being presented there had nothing to do with him. Listening to them was like listening to a lecture in a foreign language, and he ended up falling asleep. If Iris did not specifically ask him to attend the meeting out of a desire to train him, the last thing he wanted was to sit through everything.

Sometime later, the meeting finally came to an end.

“Alright, today’s meeting shall end here unless anyone has anything else to add,” Iris announced.

Upon seeing that the time was just right, Ashwin quietly gave the senior executives a little wink.

“There’s something I’d like to bring up, Miss Young! I heard that you’ve entrusted Mister Wolf with full responsibility for the cooperation between our company and the Wick Group. May I ask if that’s true?” One of the executives stood up and asked.

“That’s right.” Iris nodded.

“We hope you can reconsider this decision, Miss Young! The Wick Group is currently our company’s largest client, and Mister Wolf is just a newcomer who has just joined the company. It doesn’t seem entirely appropriate for you to entrust such an important client to a rookie like him, especially since he is wholly responsible for everything,” the executive raised his concerns.

“I agree! In addition to bringing a rookie, he doesn’t have the relevant credentials either! I think it’s a bit rash of you to assign such an important task to him, and we believe that you should retract his authority and reevaluate your decision!”

Many senior executives echoed their sentiments and felt that Iris’s arrangement was inappropriate.

After all, the cooperation was related to the company’s future and development. Leon was just a small secretary—a layman, no less—and that made it near impossible for him to possess the ability to take on such an important task!

“That’s enough. I’m aware that Leon is lacking in his abilities, and it’s rather demanding for him to take on such an important responsibility. However, I’ve arranged for Miss Summers to be his deputy, so I’m confident he’ll be able to handle everything with Miss Summers’s assistance!” Iris said calmly.

“But…” Everyone froze and looked at each other.

Ariel’s position in the company was several levels higher than Leon’s, and none of the executives there would have imagined that Iris would let Ariel become Leon’s subordinate. It was absolutely beyond belief!
