Chapter 215

Read The Ex-Husband's Revenge By Dragonsky Chapter 215 – Leon put all the products from the black bag onto the meeting table. There were exactly sixteen bottles.

“Sixteen?”

“Is he for real?!”

Everyone was stunned as they exchanged looks of uncertainty.

No one dared to believe what Leon said!

“You can see if it's real or not after testing!” Leon had a calm look on his face as he handed all sixteen products to the specialists.

The men from the R-and-D department were incredibly doubtful as they placed all of the products into the machines, undergoing their testing.

Not too long after, the results came out.

The employees rubbed their eyes in disbelief when they saw the numbers displayed on the screen.

“Reed, how are the results, are they high-end quality?” George could not help but ask.

The other executives looked at the employees with concern as well. Even though they did not believe that Leon would be able to develop any cosmetics, their confidence started to sway at the unusual reactions.

“Mister Proctor, there seems to be a problem with the data...” The man gulped as he reported with some difficulty.

“A problem with the data?”

“What? Did not a single one achieve the mark? Just as I expected!” George started to laugh as he felt relieved.

“I thought he did manage to develop new products. I was frightened!”

“So he was just giving empty promises. None of them passed the mark!”

“Mister Wolf, could you have just randomly added in some herbs and claimed that you were developing new products?”

“Haha, what a joke...”

.Everyone started to laugh loudly. Some of them even started to tear up from the laughter.

“Leon, are there some problems with your products?” Ariel looked at Leon doubtfully.

She was with Leon the past few days, so she knew that Leon developed new cosmetics. However, she did not know if any of them met the standards.

“There shouldn't be any problems...” Leon's heart started to thump rapidly.

He focused on trying to develop new products the past few days and did not look into the contents and data in great detail.

Finding out that the data did not reach the benchmarks, his confidence started to deflate.

“Mister Proctor, that's not it. I didn't mean it that way...” Reed hurriedly tried to explain when he noticed that something was wrong. However, he was interrupted before he could say anything.

“It's fine, there's no need to say anything else! Just put all the data on the screen. Let everyone see what kind of shitty cosmetics Mister Wolf developed!” George waved it off snidely.

“That...” Reed was in an awkward position as they forced themselves to display the data on the screen.

“Miss Young, please take a look. These are the rubbish cosmetics that Mister Wolf developed!”

“Just look at the test results there. Compared to the benchmarks for high-end products, these... w-what's wrong with these numbers?” When George took a good look, he was so shocked his eyes almost fell to the ground.

He saw that the test results were all at least three to four times higher than the required benchmarks. Some of them were even over ten times higher!

There was no way the numbers were not enough. They greatly exceeded the requirements!

“H-how is this possible...”
