The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 38

"Mind your conduct!"

Iris rolled her eyes charmingly at Leon and saw the wound on his palm. Concerned, she asked, "How's the wound on your hand, by the way? We have an infirmary here in our company. Let me bring you there."

Leon hesitated for a moment because the injury on his hand was just a skin injury and it was nothing serious.

Then again, getting the wound cleaned up at the infirmary would be beneficial in preventing the wound from getting infected.

"You have a pile of work waiting for you after your absence from the office yesterday. Let me bring him to the infirmary instead!"

Ariel took the initiative to offer her help.

"You?"

Iris glanced strangely at Ariel. If she remembered correctly, Ariel seemed to be quite unhappy with Leon because of what happened earlier that morning.

Furthermore, Ariel was a very proud woman who generally ignored most men, so it was rather unexpected of her to take the initiative and offer to help bring Leon to the infirmary.
