Chapter 41

There was no one outside the door, Evan was already gone.

Wayne was pretty happy about that.

He subconsciously glanced at Rosalynn.

She walked forward with a cold expression, no extra emotions.

“I thought he had more determination,” Wayne mocked.

Rosalynn ignored him.

With one in front and the other in the back, they walked to the elevator.

Wayne’s phone rang.

He looked down at it, and his expression visibly turned colder.

It was from Maddie.

He hung up directly.

The elevator door opened, and two kids were roughhousing and rushed out, heading straight for Rosalynn.

“Watch out!” Wayne wrapped his arms around her and protected her.

“Sorry! Our kids were playing and didn’t see you!” The children’s parent immediately apologized.

Wayne’s face darkened,

Both little boys quickly apologized too.

Rosalynn said gently, “You need to be more careful in the future. If you really hurt someone, your parents will be in big trouble!”

“We know...” The two children pouted in reply.

After the children's parent apologized several times and scolded the kids, they left.

"Alright, let go of me."

Wayne's hand was still holding Rosalynn's waist.

He hadn't noticed until she said something.

When she mentioned it... Wayne held her even tighter. "No."

Rosalynn was speechless. What the heck was going on with him?

In the past, even in front of outsiders, or people like Jacob who knew about their

Then she stood by the elevator, waiting for Wayne to come out and give her back the phone.

In a moment, she heard Wayne saying, "I'll be right there."

Rosalynn let out a sarcastic laugh, not sure what she was feeling.

When Wayne stepped out of the elevator and saw Rosalynn, he felt inexplicably nervous and panicked.

"Leave the project stuff to Jacob and come back to H City with me."

Rosalynn reached out, took back her phone, and then looked up at Wayne. Her beautiful eyes were clear, devoid of any emotions.

"No."

Just as she was about to take her hand back, Wayne grabbed it.

"You've already got a death threat!"

"I'm not afraid," Rosalynn said calmly. "If I can't handle this little thing, how can I be an CEO?"

"Rosa..."

"Don't call me that!" Rosalynn shook off Wayne's hand.

Wayne froze.

"What are you going to do in H City? You want me to go with you?" Rosalynn asked.

Wayne looked deeply into her eyes, then said coldly, "You really don't know what's good for you."

With that, Wayne turned and left in big strides.

Rosalynn stood there, thinking, this should be the last time, right? Wayne won't bother her anymore, right?

The restaurant Jacob had found was right next to the hotel.

He was already there.

Jacob was shocked to find out that Wayne was in Q City and with Rosalynn.

He knew that Ms. Rosso had already arrived in H City, preparing for their engagement party.

They had even arranged media coverage for the upcoming official announcement.

As Jacob was thinking, Rosalynn arrived.

Jacob glanced behind her, asking, "Where's Wayne?"

"He's gone back to H City." Rosalynn took out her laptop.

"I've already ordered, let's eat first," Jacob waved his hand.

Rosalynn's face looked really unhealthy, sickly even.

"Forgive me for being nosy, but were you two...back together?" Jacob asked cautiously.

Rosalynn looked at him, "Jacob, that's a strange question. When have I ever been with Wayne? How could we get back together?"

Jacob: "..."

Secretary Tesdal had become quite sharp, huh?

"Secretary Tesdal, I admire you a lot," Jacob poured Rosalynn a cup of coffee.

"Whether it's Prodigy Inc.'s affairs or the overall planning of this project, I've seen it all. You're very capable."

"Just get to the point, why beat around the bush?"

Jacob laughed, having been called out.

"Okay then, I'll be straightforward," Jacob looked at Rosalynn. "Stop getting involved with Wayne. The union of the Silverman family and the Rosso family involves massive interests. Both families value it greatly..."

"Jacob, you're overestimating me," Rosalynn smiled bitterly. "I've been awake and aware for the past five years. What about you, have you been confused? I'm just Olivia's substitute. As you said, the alliance between Wayne and the Rosso family holds a massive interest. So why do you think Wayne would destroy that for me?"

"Even if he hasn't thought about it, others might still be wary of your presence," Jacob explained concisely.

Rosalynn looked down, conceding as Jacob had a point.

She didn't know much about Ms. Rosso, but what woman could accept her husband entangling with another woman outside?

Even if Ms. Rosso could tolerate it, could the Rosso family?

"I'll keep that in mind," Rosalynn replied indifferently.

It seemed that after the business trip, she would have to leave H City.

After dinner.

Rosalynn and Jacob discussed work.

Most of the time, it was Jacob talking.

Rosalynn listened attentively and took down many notes,

"I heard you got a death threat?" Jacob asked near the end of their conversation.

Chapter 42

Rosalynn nodded, "I don't think there's a need for us to meet with Sawyer anymore. Just call him and let's go to the site directly tomorrow."

Chapter 43

When Jacob was studying abroad before, he was quite a playboy and handsome too, which got him into a lot of trouble.

As a result, he received death threats.

He still remembered that the first time he was threatened, it was from the Y Country mafia, and it freaked him out for days.

It wasn't until his family stepped in that the problem was resolved.

"Have you been threatened before?" Jacob asked.

Rosalynn looked at him as if he was crazy. "What do you mean?"

"Aren't you scared? You're so calm," Jacob pressed.

"What's the point of being afraid?" Rosalynn put her laptop back in her bag, "Thanks for arranging the car, see you at seven in the morning downstairs in the hotel lobby."

After Rosalynn left, Jacob was still thinking, until Wayne called.

"President Silverman, where are you? I'm waiting for you to pick up the tab" Jacob said in a cheeky tone.

"I've sent a few people over." Wayne had a cold tone, "They'll take care of the local trouble." "Wow" Jacob leaned back on the soft seat, "You didn't do this all for me, bro?"

"Just let out what you have in mind." Wayne was impatient.

"Wayne, what's the deal? Aren't you letting Secretary Tesdal off the hook?" Jacob asked.

“I don’t plan to.”

Jacob, who had been slacking off, suddenly sat up straight.

“What?”

“I said, I don’t plan to.”

SHE

“What was Secretary Tesdal’s opinion?” Jacob inquired.

It didn’t seem like Secretary Tesdal wanted to continue this twisted relationship.

“Her reaction doesn’t matter. At worst, I’ll just lock her up.”

Jacob felt a chill down his spine.

“Are you going nuts thinking about Olivia?”

Wayne had given up thinking about it.

15:35

Chapter 43

Whether it was because of Olivia or Rosalynn, all he knew was that he wouldn’t let go of Rosalynn.

“Wayne, it’s not cool to do that. Rosalynn is a person too...”

“Mind your own business.” Wayne cut him off and hung up the phone.

He didn’t think he was being unkind.

If Rosalynn left him, her quality of life would drop dramatically, not to mention she’d lose his protection in this cruel world and suffer many hardships.

Except for not giving her a title, he could give her everything so that she could live carefree for the rest of her life.

Wayne thought about it and made a call to those people he sent to Q City.

“Don’t let things go too smoothly. Have Secretary Tesdal stumble a bit... but keep a close watch and don’t let her get hurt,” Wayne ordered firmly.

The person on the other end agreed, bewildered.

Weren't they there to help Secretary Tesdal and President Strand?

Why did they still have to make Secretary Tesdal stumble?

The boss's thinking was really hard to figure out!

After hanging up the phone, Wayne felt a bit better.

When she realized how hard it was outside, she'd naturally remember how easy it was with him.

That's right... he should check out some good nursing homes in H City.

Just now, Rosa was calling for her grandmother in her sleep, she must be missing her.

Chapter 44

Afterwards, he could bring her grandma over...

That would cheer her up, right?

By the time Wayne got back to H City, it was already late at night.

In the special care ward of the Rosso family's private hospital.

Wayne pushed in through the door.

"Wayne, you're here!" Maddie quickly got up.

Heatherway was lying in the hospital bed with a bloody gauze on her forehead. She was awake, and it seemed like there was no problem anywhere else.

"What happened?" Wayne asked in a deep voice.

"Mr. Wayne, what kind of tone is this?" A middle-aged woman wearing a meticulous uniform stood next to Maddie.

Wayne had seen her before. She was the housekeeper of the Heatherway family.

‘Jones, Wayne is just worried about Heatherway.’ Maddie saw that even a Rosso family’s servant dared to be cold towards Wayne and immediately raised her chin.

“Ma’am, today was the day my young lady and Mr. Wayne were supposed to pick a banquet venue. The young lady was overjoyed and had told this to Mr. and Mrs. Rosso long time ago. Now things had ended up like this, and both Mr. and Mrs. Rosso are worried and doubting the sincerity of the marriage between the Silverman and Rosso families!”

“So?” Wayne asked coldly.

“Mr...” Jones’s arrogance was instantly suppressed for the most part.

Wayne looked at Heatherway, “I told you, I don’t mind where you want to hold the wedding reception, or what kind of style you go for your wedding!”

“Wayne!” Maddie didn’t expect that Wayne would turn the tables on Heatherway.

“Did I cause your car accident?” Wayne continued to be aggressive.

“No...” Heatherway’s face turned pale, “I told mom and dad that I wasn’t familiar with the road and hit a fire hydrant...”

“Good.” Wayne glanced at Jones and continued, “Ms. Rosso, our marriage is a win-win alliance for the interests of both families. But if anyone thinks they can threaten me with this, we both probably need to cool down and think carefully about whether it is really necessary for us to continue working together.

“Wayne, what are you talking about?” Maddie scolded.

“Auntie, Wayne is right.” Heatherway looked at Wayne and said softly, “This is Jones’s fault today. I apologize for her.”

Jones’ face turned pale.

She didn’t expect such a big reaction from Wayne when she just whined a few words.

But... Wayne was clearly in the wrong today.

She had checked Wayne’s itinerary.

After leaving the hotel, he went straight to the airport and to Q City.

His secretary, who was rumored to have an unclear relationship with him, was also in Q City.

He wasn't going for work at all.

Miss Heatherway was so distracted all day because of his absence that she had a car accident!

And now, it was Heatherway who was apologizing!

Wayne was good at the carrot and stick strategy.

He softened a bit, "Are you alright?"

Heatherway's eyes were red, and she shook her head grievously, "There was an airbag, so I'm not seriously injured."

"You silly girl!" Maddie looked heartbroken, "How can you say you're not seriously hurt?? You had a concussion and sprained your hand!"

Only then did Wayne notice that Heatherway's right hand was in a cast.

Heatherway lowered her head, looking pitiful and saying nothing.

Maddie glared at Wayne.

"Heatherway has to stay in the hospital for observation overnight. You stay with her!"

Wayne remained silent for a moment before finally agreeing, "Alright."

"Heatherway, Wayne has always been like this since he was little, distant and not good at caring for others." Maddie turned to apologize to Heatherway, "It's a working progress, after you two get married, you can gradually teach him!"

Heatherway shyly nodded her head.

But... not good at caring for others?

Chapter 44

Heatherway recalled the scene when Wayne tried to pick up Secretary Tesdal anxiously, not even caring about the glass shards.

Chapter 45

The special care ward was spacious, with a sofa placed by the window.

Wayne was curled up on the sofa, dealing with some things he hadn't managed to handle during the day.

Outside the window, the autumn rain lingers.

Maddie didn't stay long and Jones tactfully went outside.

Only Wayne and Heatherway were left in the ward.

"Wayne, if you're bored, just go back. I'm fine," Heatherway said considerately.

"No worries, you just have a good rest." Wayne didn't even lift his head.

Once he was done with his tasks, he inexplicably clicked on Rosalynn's messages on Whatsapp.

In the past, if she wasn't with him, she would always ask if he had safely reached his destination after every flight. But not this time.

S

Wayne felt a bit sour and then clicked on Rosalynn's Instagram.

She had shared a picture of a fluffy little kitten.

Rosalynn replied: “I’ll send you one privately~”

Wayne’s face clouded over.

Had Rosalynn ever sent him a selfie? No.

He continued scrolling down.

Someone else replied: “I wish to be reincarnated as Secretary Tesdal’s little cat in my next life!”

Rosalynn replied with a cat emoji.

Chapter 45

Wayne liked the post, then he continued looking through her Instagram.

She seldom shared her life on social media.

The next post was from three months ago.

A picture of a small cake, with the caption: Happy Birthday.

Subconsciously, Wayne frowned. He kind of remembered that Rosalynn’s birthday was in August.

But what day it was, he... couldn’t recall.

Every year on her birthday, he’d just fill out a check and let her buy whatever she liked.

Wayne was slightly annoyed.

Her next Instagram post was from late April.

In the photo, there were two elderly people and a woman who looked somewhat like Rosalynn.

Also, an incredibly cute little girl laughing, wearing a floral dress and two small braids.

This was probably a family photo.

The caption said “I mis

you.”

Wayne furrowed his brow.

Around this time of year...she must have gone home to be with her grandmother.

So, she was feeling upset because she had to leave her grandma and return to H City?

Wayne clicked on the comments.

On every one of Rosalynn’s Instagram posts, the people from the CEO’s office would leave comments and likes.

But there were no comments under this post.

Just as he seemed to have thought of something, Heatherway suddenly let out a light hum.

Looking up, Wayne saw that Heatherway had already gotten out of bed.

“What’s wrong?” Wayne put away his phone.

Chapter 46

Wayne frowned and got up, walking over.

“Nothing, I’m just thirsty, I wanna have some water...” Heatherway said, sounding a bit flustered.

“Lie down, I’ll get it.” Wayne poured a glass of water for her.

Heatherway didn't lie back down, though, standing beside the bed.

Taking the water, she hesitated for a second, "Wayne, can we talk about Ms. Tesdal?"

Wayne frowned instinctively.

"I don't mean any harm!" Heatherway hurried to say.

"What do you want to talk about?" Wayne asked, both his tone and expression were cold.

"When Ms. Tesdal was injured, I saw how worried you were about her. You were pretty distracted afterward too." Heatherway gave a helpless smile, not seeming bothered by his relationship with Rosalynn.

"She is indeed very important to me," Wayne replied bluntly. "Ms. Rosso, I won't stand in your way if you want to date other men, so..."

"So even if we get married, you have no intention of ending things with her?" Heatherway took over his sentence.

"Exactly." Wayne nodded.

Heatherway looked like she understood. "At least you're honest."

Wayne didn't respond.

"Fine," Heatherway nodded. "It's better to talk about this upfront. I don't want to be tied down by marriage either. In the future, we'll just go our separate ways. But we still need to act like a loving couple in front of our parents and the media. Is that okay?"

"Sure." Wayne replied.

"Let's get the engagement business over with as soon as possible so we can both be free."

"Okay." Heatherway took a sip of water and lay back down.

Wayne felt rather relieved.

Now that he had talked things over with Heatherway, things should be easier.

He sat back on the couch and couldn't wait to send a message to Rosalynn, "Come back on as you're done!

Chapter 46

It was almost 1 a.m. Wayne didn't expect Rosalynn to respond right away.

He opened her Ins again, only to find that she had blocked him.

Wayne: "???"

Rosalynn found out Wayne had liked her Ins posts and changed her privacy settings.

A moment later, she received Wayne's message.

Rosalynn didn't reply. She opened the photo about her grandmother.

It was probably because it was late, but some hidden deep emotions finally surfaced, swelling uncontrollably in the darkness.

That day was her grandmother's funeral.

The overwhelming helplessness and fear for the future almost swallowed Rosalynn whole.

She was like a drowning person, desperately wanting to grasp something.

So she shared a photo that only Wayne could see.

This was the only time she acted recklessly in her five years with Wayne.

She waited for a very long time, but nothing happened, not even after her grandmother was buried.

From then on, she had no illusions about Wayne.

What she didn't expect was that, more than half a year later, Wayne would go through her Ins late at night.

He must have seen that photo too, right?

Too bad... he would never know that the words in the caption, "I miss you," were meant for him.

Chapter 47

Wayne texted her again: “?”

Rosalynn decided to ignore him.

Wayne called her directly.

The spoiled rich kid couldn't stand being neglected and ignored.

Rosalynn didn't want to answer the call, but considering she was about to run away, she couldn't risk alarming him.

She picked up the phone.

“President Silverman, you realize what time it is?”

“Why did you block me?” Wayne asked.

“I just felt like it.” Rosalynn lay down, exhaustion washing over her. “President Silverman, if you don't mind, I'm really tired. We can talk about this some other time”

“You're tired, but you had the energy to block me?”

“Well.” Rosalynn replied.

Her faint “well” was like a fluffy kitten's tail brushing Wayne's heart.

It tickled.

He licked his lips.

“How's Ms. Rosso?” Rosalynn asked suddenly.

“She's fine,” Wayne answered.

“That's good. Otherwise, I will be guilty as hell...” Perhaps she was too tired to censor herself, Rosalynn let slip whatever came to mind.

Wayne's heart tightened, and he frowned deeply. “Don't talk such nonsense. What do you have to feel guilty about?”

Rosalynn didn't respond, and Wayne listened as her breathing slowly evened out.

Ever since Rosalynn suggested cutting ties with him, Wayne's emotions had been on edge every day.

It wasn't until yesterday, holding her in his arms, feeling her breath, warmth, and heartbeat, that his negative emotions began to dissipate.

He was like a wanderer who had suddenly found his way home.

Listening to Rosalynn's breathing, Wayne couldn't bring himself to hang up.

The next morning, Rosalynn woke up to see her phone still connected.

She froze for a moment, and her first thought was that it was a good thing the phone was charged, otherwise it would have to be turned off after a night of talking.

Her second thought: Wayne must have really lost his mind.

"You awake?" Wayne's voice came through the phone.

Just as she was about to speak, she heard a gentle voice from Wayne's side, slightly muffled.

"Wayne, what would you like for breakfast?"

Rosalynn's body stiffened, though her brain hadn't processed the situation. Instinctively, she hung up.

After that, she quickly blocked Wayne's number.

The whole operation was smooth and swift.

Holding her phone, her face contorted.

Wayne was more than just a jerk; he had some disgusting habits too.

Last night... he was on the phone with her while also with Heatherway...

Rosalynn felt nauseous and rushed to the bathroom to retch.

After throwing up, she found several messages from Wayne on various social media apps.

“You blocked my number?”

“Remove my number from the blocklist immediately!”

“Rosallynn, you really are getting bolder!”

If it weren't for concern about work-related matters, Rosallynn would have loved to block all Wayne's contacts.

Instead, she chose to ignore him, changed her clothes, grabbed her laptop bag, and headed downstairs.

Chapter 48

There was a black business car parked outside the hotel. Upon seeing Rosallynn, the driver got out to open the door for her.

Jacob, dressed in a flashy suit, was lounging in the car with his long legs curled up. He casually greeted her, “Secretary Tesdal, mornin’.”

“Mornin’.” Rosallynn got in the car.

Her face was even colder than usual, and Jacob intuitively sensed that she was in a bad mood. He didn't push his luck.

Once the car started, he put on his eye mask and took a nap.

Ever since they got here, poor Jacob wasn't acclimated to the food and water, and he didn't sleep well last night.

Rosallynn didn't bother with him and was busy emailing back and forth with others.

When they arrived at the construction site, Sawyer and his team greeted them with big smiles.

“The construction site’s a mess everywhere. You guys don’t have to come here in person!” Sawyer said with a helpless expression.

“Since there’s been an incident at the site, it’s only natural that we come take a look,” Rosalynn slightly replied.

B

Sawyer nodded with a smile, “We are always having conflicts with those pesky villagers, and I’m worried they might hurt you!”

Rosalynn remained silent.

#F

Jacob chuckled, “Well, if we do run into any conflicts, it’ll just be the villagers’ bad luck.”

HE

Sawyer was taken aback, “What do you mean by that?”

“If they just want money, we can talk. But if they hurt me or Secretary Tesdal, they won’t get a single cent, and I can guarantee they’ll end up in jail,” said Jacob with a grin.

Sawyer’s smile was fading fast. “I’m only worried about your safety, that’s all.”

Jacob nodded.

They entered the conference room at the construction site, where more than a dozen locals were already seated.

Seeing someone coming in, the people directly banged on the table without saying a word.

“You’re the ones in charge of this crappy company? You guys are so shameless, trying to dig up our ancestors' graves! We're going to fight you today!"

The leader of the group was so fired up he was about to charge at them.

Seeing this, Sawyer quickly stepped forward, trying to placate the man while also winking at him to not get physical.

He didn't expect that a rich young man and a delicate young assistant wouldn't be scared off by their threats.

"Hey now, don't be impulsive," said Sawyer while pushing the man back into his seat. "President Strand and Secretary Tesdal flew all the way here from H City just to address your concerns!"

"There's no room for negotiation! You guys have to go around this piece of land!" The leader of the group exclaimed.

Perle

"Go around?" Rosalynn sat down, and asked calmly. "That's not totally impossible."

Sawyer and his team were immediately flustered.

"Secretary Tesdal, the project is halfway done, how can we go around it?"

"Do you know how much the cost will increase?"

"President Strand, what's your take on this?"

Jacob certainly didn't mean that because going around would cost them an extra billion at least.

"Why are you guys so anxious? I haven't finished yet," Rosalynn said kindly, glancing at the villagers. "You've heard it too; going around this land would mean a massive loss for our company. So, as long as you can compensate us for the cost, we'll consider going around it."

Jacob almost burst into laughter.

These people were trying to extort them, but Secretary Tesdal shut them down with the same tactic.

Sawyer and his team were all dumbfounded.

“You bitch, are you playing us? We’re asking you guys to cough up the money to smooth things over with us! And now you’re trying to get money from us?!” The leader of the group inadvertently exposed their true intentions in his anger.

Sawyer’s face darkened. His original plan was to have the villagers reject the plan to use money to resolve the issue, giving the leaders from H City a serious blow before asking for more money.

But now...

15:38

“Our company legally obtained the rights to this land three years ago, including the area where the ancestral graves are,” Rosalynn explained calmly. “Out of compassion, we agreed not to touch your graves. You can buy back that piece of land and cover our costs to work around it. What’s wrong with that?”

She smiled, “You guys can’t expect us to spend our money for nothing, right?”

Chapter 49

As soon as she finished speaking, the whole room went dead silent.

Jacob couldn’t help but lower his brows and burst into laughter, “Secretary Tesdal has a good point.”

“What do you mean? Don’t want to negotiate with us, huh?” The leading villager suddenly stood up and slammed the table.

Sawyer hurriedly tried to smooth things over, “Calm down! Calm down!”

He looked at Rosalynn, “Secretary Tesdal, We really should discuss this properly. Being stubborn won’t help. Delaying the project will only result in losses for the company.”

Rosalynn looked at Sawyer inexplicably, “Stubborn? Mr. Galen, I’m talking about the facts. Where did I say wrong?”

Sawyer’s smile nearly crumbled off his face.

He was furious to be suppressed by a woman.

Sawyer looked at Jacob.

Logically speaking, this Mr. Jacob should have a higher rank, so why was he allowing a woman to cause trouble here?

“President Strand, look, both of you came all the way here to solve the problem. You can’t let Secretary Tesdal mess around like this, can you?”

Jacob glanced at him and shrugged helplessly, “Secretary Tesdal represents the president. Her opinion is the president’s opinion.”

Sawyer was speechless, and Rosalynn remained calm, as if waiting to see how they would continue.

He gritted his teeth and turned to the villagers.

“Everyone, you’ve heard her. Unlike me, Ms. Tesdal represents the president and she can make all the decisions here. You don’t need to hold back, if you have any demands, just ask!”

Everyone looked at each other.

They had discussed this before, and when Sawyer said this, it meant they could start talking about money.

“We understand your situation, and relocation is tough and costly. So here’s the deal: give us 200 million, and we’ll relocate the graves,” the leading man held up two fingers.

“200 million?” Jacob was shocked.

“If you change the location of the site, the loss will be way more than 200 million,” the man crossed his arms, acting like they’ve compromised a lot already. “There are so many people in our village, they all will be affected by the relocation of their graves!”

“That’s right! 200 million is not much at all!”

“We’ve been very kind, using the tolerance of the entire village to save you tens of billions in losses. You better not be ungrateful!”

As the crowd got rowdy, Rosalynn remained calm, letting them carry on.

Jacob had a feeling Rosalynn might have a solution already, remembering Wayne's call last night, he decided to stand by and sat down next to her.

The crowd kept making noise, but no response came, so they gradually quieted down.

Sawyer got anxious.

"President Strand, Secretary Tesdal, what do you mean by this? They've all agreed to settle things. Even if you two are not satisfied with this, you have to give us some response. Why don't you say anything?"

"Wait a second," Rosalynn smiled and glanced at Sawyer.

When Sawyer first met Rosalynn, he felt restless inside.

He had never seen such a beautiful girl with a sexy body in all his life.

But, he didn't dare do anything to her since she was the president's woman.

Before her arrival this time, word had spread from H City that Wayne had dumped her.

Having lost her backup, how could she still act so cocky?

Sawyer stared at her. Once the issue was resolved, he'd definitely have to get a taste of this president's secretary!

As Sawyer was about to drool, he said, "Fine, I'll let you think about it again."

But unexpectedly, just as his words fell, his phone rang.

He took a glance, it was a call from his family.

He was going to hang up at first.

Chapter 50

Rosalynn smiled and said, "You should answer the phone."

Sawyer was a bit confused.

It was a call from his home. What did that have to do with her?

However, he still answered the call with a smile.

“What’s up…”

Before he could finish, crying came from the other side of the phone, “Honey, our car has been smashed, and Baldie is gone!”

“What?!” Sawyer was so anxious that he almost jumped up.

“What shall we do?” The woman on the other end of the line was crying her eyes out.

Sawyer suddenly thought of Rosalynn.

He looked astonished at the delicate woman in front of him.

“Secretary Tesdal, did you do this?”

Rosalynn’s smile became more beautiful, “Mr. Galen, can we have a proper talk now?”

Sawyer hung up and could no longer keep up his polite facade.

“We’re on the same side! Why did you hurt my family?!” Sawyer roared angrily.

The villagers looked at Sawyer, then at Rosalynn, puzzled.

Why were they suddenly fighting each other?

They hadn’t rehearsed this before, had they?

How were they supposed to perform now?

“Take a guess?” Rosalynn tilted her head slightly.

Sawyer suddenly thought of something and yelled, “I didn’t smash your car! You’ve taken revenge on the wrong person!”

Jacob raised his eyebrows.

Rosalynn laughed, “It’s strange, Mr. Galen. How did you know that my car was smashed? I didn’t tell anyone about it.”

Sawyer was stunned.

He got this child when he was old.

blurted out.

Sawyer stood there as if he had fallen into an ice cave.

“Mr. Galen, you don’t really think that President Strand and I are here to give you money, do you?” Rosalynn asked slowly, her aura overwhelming.

Sawyer took a deep breath and looked at the troublemakers, “All of you, get out.”

“But...”

“Get out!” Sawyer lost his temper.

The dozen or so people hurriedly got up and filed out one by one.

Then, only Sawyer, Jacob, and Rosalynn were left in the conference room.

Sawyer took a chair and sat down.

“It looks like you came prepared. What do you already know?” Sawyer asked.

Rosalynn’s tone was light, “Mr. Galen, you could have made a lot of money if you finished this project normally, but you got too greedy.”

“Secretary Tesdal, it’s not that I am greedy. I was forced as well!” Sawyer’s eyes filled with tears. “It was Peter... he has something on me and always threatens me with my son! I had no choice! I really had no choice!”

“Peter?” Jacob asked.

“That’s right! It was him!” Sawyer wiped his tears. “Actually, it was Peter who found people to deliberately make trouble and wanted money! At first, he directly asked for a billion. I knelt down and begged him for a long time before he agreed to at least two hundred million!”

“Really?” Rosalynn asked.

“It’s true!!”

“Well, I need to have a good talk with Peter.” Rosalynn tapped her fingertips on the table.

Sawyer was taken aback and thought sarcastically that this woman became arrogant once she found out a bit of information.

Did she really think she could interrogate Peter?

At this moment, the door was suddenly pushed open.

“Mr. Galen, something happened to Peter!”
