Chapter 51

For a moment, Sawyer thought he must have heard wrong.

“Who’s in trouble?”

“Someone exposed a lot of Peter’s dirty deeds online, like murder, arson, and all sorts of crimes. The police are already after him!” said the frightened person who just walked in. “Mr. Galen, what do we do? What if Peter rats us out?”

Before the person could finish, Sawyer kicked him.

The man finally came to his senses, realizing that there were people from the head office in the room.

He quickly shut his mouth.

“Mr. Galen, that’s enough,” Rosalynn spoke up. She was also tired of watching their act.

Sawyer turned around.

Why was it at this very moment that Peter’s dirty laundry was aired out?

Could it be...

“Secretary Tesdal, do you have anything to do with this?” Sawyer asked.

Rosalynn shrugged slightly, “Who knows? Maybe it’s just karma. I wonder if the police have caught him. I’d love to verify your claims with Peter.”

Sawyer stood there, sweating profusely.

He knew that if Peter were caught, he wouldn’t be able to get away either.

This vicious woman must have investigated everything and silently woven a huge net.

Unbeknownst to them, while they were still dreaming about extorting billions, she had already cast her net, leaving them no room to escape.

After Peter’s crimes were exposed, no matter how powerful he was, he couldn’t escape. And Sawyer’s fate wouldn’t be much better.

However...

"Secretary Tesdal, my son is still a kid and he is innocent!" Sawyer gritted his teeth.
"Release my child, and I'll turn myself in!"

"Mr. Galen, take it easy. Let's take our time and have a talk," Rosalynn gestured for him to sit down.

Sawyer was terrified.

He had already agreed to turn himself in, yet what more did she want?

But... his son was in her hands, so he had no choice but to comply.

After sitting down, Rosalynn took out a blank notebook and a pen from her laptop bag and pushed them in front of Sawyer.

"When I was little, my grandfather taught me that termites never appear alone," Rosalynn said gently. "I don't want to waste my time hunting them down one by one, so I'm asking you to list them all down for me."

Sawyer was stunned.

"Secretary Tesdal, I don't know about other people..."

Before he could finish, Rosalynn slammed the pen on the table in front of him, not saying a word more.

But Sawyer still felt an overwhelming sense of threat and pressure.

"President Strand, do you have any young children at home?" Rosalynn suddenly began making small talk with Jacob.

Jacob had been watching Rosalynn intently, so when she suddenly turned to him, his heart raced.

He coughed lightly to cover his panic, and casually replied, "I have two nephews at that age."

“Well, do you know that young children are very fragile? One careless move, even chewing something or just drinking water, can easily choke them to death.”

“Secretary Tesdal!” Sawyer shouted in horror.

Rosalynn looked back at him, her gaze puzzled. “What’s the matter? I’m just chatting with President Strand. Mr. Galen, go back to your own thing, and don’t mind us.”

Chapter 52

His head was full of Rosalynn’s threat just now!

“If I confess, will you let my son go?” Sawyer asked.

Rosalynn was a bit frustrated: “Mr. Galen, your son is missing, and I can understand your feelings. If you can get it done quicky on your side, then I can get off work early and help. you find him. I’ve got some good luck, maybe I can find your kid in no time.”

Sawyer had originally planned to drag Rosalynn into this mess.

At this point, he turned on his phone’s voice recorder, planning to have Rosalynn admit that it was she who kidnapped his son. Then, even if he went to confess, he could accuse Rosalynn of kidnapping.

But she was too cautious, not taking the bait at all. The ambiguous words she said didn't work at all.

Rosalynn glanced at the wall clock: "It's almost lunchtime, I wonder if we can find your kid before lunch."

Sawyer gritted his teeth and started writing.

Probably because he was too angry, he wrote so hard that the paper was torn.

Rosalynn watched calmly.

Sawyer wrote one name after another, followed by the deeds of each person.

Jacob was dumbfounded.

He had already planned to spend some time straightening out these people.

But he didn't expect Rosalynn to actually let Sawyer divulge the secrets of everyone directly.

Time passed, and Sawyer filled four pages with names.

Under the lead of Sawyer, this group of people embezzled a large sum of money.

"That's all I know..."

Sawyer put down the pen, his face a bit pale, and he seemed completely drained.

Most of these people had connections with him, and they had given him a lot of benefits

Now, because of his son, he had no choice but to sell out his buddies!

"Very well." Rosalynn took out another ink pad, "Mr. Galen, please give me your fingerprint."

Sawyer trembled with anger.

But after a brief confrontation with Rosalynn, he realized that his resistance had no effect in front of her absolute advantage.

He took a deep breath and started to press his fingerprint.

As he finished, Rosalynn took a close look and handed it to Jacob.

Jacob, who didn't do anything the whole time, took it blankly and looked at it, and he frowned unhappily.

These bastards were so corrupted, and what they got nearly equaled to a not-so-small company's annual earnings.

As Sawyer was anxiously waiting for Jacob to finish, his phone rang shrilly.

It was still his wife.

He hurried to answer it.

"Where's Baldie? Has Baldie been found?" Sawyer yelled.

"Honey, Baldie's been found! He was taken to the police station by a good person... Honey, I was so scared!" His wife cried non-stop.

Sawyer heaved a sigh of relief and hung up the phone. He looked at Rosalynn.

"Secretary Tesdal, I really underestimated you."

His son had only been found by a kind-hearted person and sent to the police station. What did this have to do with Rosalynn?

How could he drag Rosalynn into this mess?

Chapter 53

In the end, Rosalynn didn't even give Sawyer a chance to turn himself in.

As soon as Sawyer left the office, he was arrested and taken away by the police.

"Rosalynn, you're so ruthless! You'll get what's coming to you someday!" Sawyer yelled as he was shoved into the car.

Jacob frowned and glanced at Rosalynn. The cursed Rosalynn on the other hand, looked as cold as ice.

He slightly raised his eyebrows: "When did you arrange all of this? Why didn't you tell me?"

"Considering that the incident occurred during my term, it's only natural that I should take care of it before handing it over to President Strand." Rosalynn calmly said.

"You didn't spare them any mercy,, not even giving them a chance to turn themselves in . We've known each other for five years, right? Why didn't I see this side of you before?" Jacob crossed his arms, still looking relaxed, but there was a hint of admiration in his eyes.

"If I hadn't been so ruthless with them, I would be the one in trouble," Rosalynn paused, "Besides, they also smashed my friend's car, which was quite expensive."

"An eye for an eye, huh? Good character." Jacob grinned and gave her a thumbs up.

"President Strand, I'll keep handling this one. You don't have a problem with that, do you?" Rosalynn waved the list in her hand.

If Jacob had had doubts about Rosalynn's ability before, he now had complete faith in her. "Of course not," Jacob nodded.

Rosalynn waved to a nervous man not far away Human Resources Director Riley Horton.

Seeing Sawyer being arrested, Riley and the others looked like they were facing a formidable enemy.

With Sawyer in charge, the entire management team had been more or less corrupt.

Now everyone was afraid that they would be arrested by the police the next second.

Riley hurried over.

"Secretary Tesdal, President Strand..."

"Call everyone, we're having a meeting."

"Alright..."

Riley quickly took out his phone and notified everyone.

Jacob took out his phone, wanting to tell Wayne how adorable and interesting Secretary Tesdal was.

But for some reason, he didn't say it in the end.

Wayne was about to get married and he didn't need to know how cute and interesting of her women were.

Putting his phone back in his suit pocket, Jacob grinned at Rosalynn: "Secretary Tesdal, it's almost lunchtime. What do you feel like eating?"

"We'll eat at the cafeteria after the meeting."

Jacob was a bit surprised.

He had dated many girls.

Some loved Michelin-starred restaurants, while others preferred private restaurants or bistros.

In short, it was all extremely extravagant restaurant.

This was the first time a woman had told him she would eat in the cafeteria.

Wayne was willing to spend money on Rosalynn, so for one time, Jacob thought she was just an ordinary gold digger.

Now it seemed like that might not be the case.

"What are you looking at?"

Rosalynn noticed Jacob's curious gaze and glared at him unhappily.

Jacob grinned innocently.

"I've known Wayne for so long, and I've finally seen him make a mistake. Secretary Tesdal, you truly are a rare treasure in this world."

Chapter 54

Rosalynn sneered and then turned and went into the conference room.

These playboys ain't anything like gentlemen or good men.

She hadn't forgotten that on the day she handed in her resignation to Wayne, this master was full of excitement, jokingly trying to get her with a higher price.

young

Since they knew that people had come from headquarters, almost everyone from the Engineering Department was at the construction site.

As soon as Riley called, they gathered in the conference room.

With Sawyer being caught, nobody dared to slack off anymore.

"Secretary Tesdal, all the staff, except those who are out for procurement, have been here." Riley wiped the sweat on his forehead, "Regarding Mr. Galen's matter, we..."

Riley hadn't finished speaking, when everyone's phone started to vibrate one after another. Everyone took out their phones and looked down quickly.

Jacob had sent the evidence that Sawyer had confessed to everyone.

The crowd was shocked to read it.

"Framing! This is pure framing!"

"I didn't do this! Sawyer has gone mad, randomly framing others!"

"Yeah, President Strand, Secretary Tesdal, you have to believe us!"

"I was transferred from H City, and I've been working for the Silverman family for more than ten years..."

"Enough." Rosalynn knocked on the table.

The noise gradually subsided, and everyone was red in the face and neck from intensely arguing.

Except for a few who looked a little guilty, the others had an expression like they had suffered a great grievance.

Rosalynn spoke softly, "Sawyer's confession is quite detailed. Do you guys really think the company wouldn't be able to trace anything with this?"

Just now, people who were eager to explain were suddenly silent.

"I think what you did probably ain't that clean, and it wouldn't be too hard to investigate."

"Secretary Tesdal, I only took $500,000 in total! And I was forced!" One of them couldn't sit still, stood up and said with a howl, "I didn't spend a dime of that money. It's all on my wife's card. I can return it all to the company. Please, don't call the police and arrest me!"

After he finished, everyone began to confess their mistakes one after another.

Some people had already used the money to buy houses, cars, or squandered it on women.

"I've got a general understanding of the situation here." Rosalynn looked at them, "Most of you guys were led astray by Sawyer."

"Yes, yes!"

"Mr. Galen used to say that if we all got involved, it would be totally safe..."

"Yeah." Rosalynn nodded, "I do have an idea, and although the president will be mad at me after knowing it, it's better than seeing so many of you lose everything."

"Secretary Tesdal, just say it, and we'll definitely cooperate with you!"

Rosalynn sighed, "First, you guys must return the ill-gotten gains. The company's money ain't free, you have no objections, right?"

"No objections! No objections! I'll return the money right away!"

"Yes, yes, I'll have my wife transfer the money immediately!"

"But Secretary Tesdal, I can't come up with that much money for now..."

"For those who can't come up with the money, you can sign an IOU and pay it back slowly." Rosalynn said very generously, "As long as your attitude is sincere enough, I'll have the confidence to plead with the president f

Chapter 55

Rosalynn played both good cop and bad cop, first using Sawyer to intimidate the others. When they were all nervous and afraid of going to jail, she threw them a bone, getting them to actively return the stolen money.

Jacob watched all of these, wishing he could stand up and applaud for Rosalynn.

It didn't take long for them to recover nearly 30 million stolen money.

Rosalynn looked at everyone, who were too scared to even breathe.

Most of them had returned the money according to the amounts Sawyer had listed.

But... how could Sawyer possibly know the exact situation of each person?

Rosalynn was silent for a while, then looked up and scanned the crowd. "Everyone, did you calculate the amount correctly?"

Clearly, some people panicked, while those who hadn't lied about their share responded loudly.

Rosalynn played with the pen in her hand, "Make sure you calculate it accurately. If other higher-ups find out there's still stolen money unaccounted for, it won't be so easy to deal with then."

"I... I seem to have undercounted seven... more than seven million..." someone said, and then made another IOU

Afterward, several more people, pale-faced, amended their owed amounts, and the numbers were not small either.

In the end, the total came to 45 million.

"Secretary Tesdal, what about our jobs...?" Riley quietly asked.

He also owed over a million, and if they lost their jobs...

"Like I've said earlier, you were led astray by Sawyer, but I still recognize your abilities," Rosalynn started to give them some benefits, "So, everything will continue as usual at work. I'll persuade the president not to fire any of you, but you need to be extra careful from now on. If you make any more mistakes, I won't be able to help you."

"Secretary Tesdal, you really are beautiful and kind!" Riley immediately praised her.

Rosalynn gave a faint smile, "We all have our own problems, so just do your best from now on."

The meeting ended.

Everyone left with joy on their faces, like they'd survived a disaster.

Some people even cursed Sawyer.

"That bastard! He just dragged us down with him!"

"Right? In my owed amounts, there are even hundreds of thousands he spent. I can't stand this!"

"If he ever gets out, I'll definitely kill him!"

Rosalynn sorted everything out, put it in a folder, and handed it to Jacob, who had been shamelessly watching her with his head propped up.

"President Strand, it's up to you to collect the returned amounts as promised in these IOUS."

"Are you really going to ask Wayne to intercede on their behalf?" Jacob asked.

Rosalynn put away her computer and pen and paper.

"Of course not. For something like this, President Silverman wouldn't interfere; he only cares about the results."

"Right." Jacob laughed, "So Secretary Tesdal was using both the carrot and the stick just now? Are you really letting them off so easily?"

"What else can I do? The project is in a critical stage, and due to these people, we've already delayed the construction by a month. If I fire them and find new people, how much longer will it take?"

Time is money, especially on a construction site.

“But we can’t let them continue to handle the core work of the project. President Strand needs to send people to take over as soon as possible.”

“Also, I suggest that President Strand verifies and keeps records of everything Sawyer mentioned. If any of them cause trouble again, send the police straight to arrest them.”

She never said she was going to let them off the hook completely.

Chapter 56

As long as they behave themselves and don’t cause trouble behind the scenes, there won’t be any punishment

“Alright,” Jacob nodded, then grinned and asked, “So, are we going to the cafeteria for lunch now?”

Rosalynn was confused. What’s so exciting about going to the cafeteria? Is he trying to act naive in front of her?

Rosalynn responded and picked up her laptop bag, walking out. Jacob immediately took the bag from her hand.

“You’re injured. Let me help you.”

Rosalynn glanced at him, feeling pleased that someone was willing to help her bag.

It was almost noon, and the sun was shining brightly in Q City.

Rosalynn walked in the sunshine, feeling warm and in a much better mood.

As the two walked away, a dry, thin figure squeezed out of a narrow passage at the back of the conference room.

This person was the same one who pretended to be the villager leading the riot in the first place.

He spat on the ground.

That damn woman, using all sorts of sneaky tricks!

He looked around and took out his phone, walking towards the back door while making a call.

“Hey! It’s me! Is Peter safe now? Good. Sawyer got screwed over by that woman and has been caught. She’s the one who set Peter up too!”

The site’s cafeteria had an average environment.

Rosalynn looked around and saw that there were still many people inside.

Upon her entrance, many eyes were immediately drawn to her.

“Whose wife is this? She’s so pretty!”

“She’s not only beautiful, but she also has a perfect figure!”

“If I could sleep with a beauty like this once in my life, even if I died, it would be worth it!”

“You’re asking for trouble! She’s the president’s secretary! Sawyer was brought down by

“Her?”

“The president’s secretary? Wow, aren’t secretaries just there to be slept with by the president? Just like in the TV shows!”

Snide glances stayed glued to Rosalynn.

She intended to come to see if the cafeteria would deduct the workers food Hearing these words, she lost her appetite and put down her fork, not intending to eat.

Jacob looked at her.

“President Strand...”

“Secretary Tesdal, this time, thanks to you, if it wasn’t for your wisdom and determination to find Sawyer and these assholes, I wouldn’t have been able to report to the president if things go wrong!”

Rosalynn was stunned.

Jacob’s voice was loud enough for everyone to hear clearly.

“When we get back to H City, I’m definitely treating you to a big meal as appreciation!”

The way people look at her has changed radically.

Rosalynn came to her senses and smiled quietly.

Is Jacob really that childish?

Chapter 57

No matter what Jacob’s intentions were, Rosalynn was still grateful.

Over the years, carrying the burden of being Wayne’s secretary, no matter how well she did, people would always give Wayne the credit.

He was one of the few who spoke up for her.

Jacob was also in a good mood, finally seeing a genuine smile on Rosalynn’s face, and even the cafeteria food tasted better.

After lunch, Rosalynn was heading to the downtown area.

“Most of the issues have been resolved, so you’ll have to work on the follow-up work,” Rosalynn returned to her indifferent professional demeanor.

“Are you going straight back to H City?” Jacob asked.

“I have a flight booked for tonight,” Rosalynn answered.

Jacob smiled, but deep down, he felt a bit unhappy for some reason.

Why was she in such a hurry to go back to H City? Who would she meet after she going back?

“Secretary Tesdal, I hope you took my advice from yesterday to heart, Jacob couldn’t help. but add Rosalynn glanced at him. She didn’t bother to explain any further.

What if she told him something and he immediately went to tell Wayne? Wouldn’t that effect her escape plan?

“Well,” she responded perfunctorily and reached for the car door.

Seeing this, Jacob quickly opened the door for her, “When I said I wanted to invite you to dinner in H City after we come back earlier, I meant it.”

“You’re too kind. I’m just doing my job,” Rosalynn paused, “If President Silverman knew about my private contact with you, he wouldn’t be happy either.”

Jacob’s hand stiffened.

Rosalynn then closed the car door, and the business vehicle sped off.

Jacob stood there, dust flying into his face.

He waved his hand in front of his eyes, and soon after, Wayne called him.

Jacob glanced at it, emotionlessly picked it up.

“I heard everything’s been taken care of over there?” Wayne asked.

Chapter

Jacob could faintly hear Maddie’s voice on the other end.

“We’ve informed the media, and a formal press release will be sent out tomorrow”

“You’re announcing your engagement so soon?” Jacob gave an irrelevant answer

“Yeah Heatherway and I have agreed that we both want to complete these procedures as soon as possible so we don’t delay our upcoming tasks,” Wayne said, “Where’s Rosalynn Jacob didn’t respond.

Wayne thought his signal was poor, "Jacob?"

"Wayne, leave Rosalynn alone," Jacob said sternly.

This time it was Wayne's turn to be silent.

Since Jacob had already started, he went all in, "Didn't Rosalynn say it the other day? Her mother was driven to death by a mistress, and she wouldn't be a homewrecker in someone's marriage. Now that you are about to announce your engagement, just leave Rosalynn alone and let her go."

"Jacob," Wayne interrupted him coldly.

"You've crossed the line."

Jacob felt a chill down his spine, only to hear Wayne continue, "Since you're so curious about how I will treat Rosalynn later, I might as well tell you. Rosalynn was mine in the past. she is mine now. And she will still be mine in the future."

"Wayne, are you trying to drive her to death?"

"She won't die, I'll treat her even better than before."

"You..."

"Enough," Wayne scoffed, "You're being so serious that I'm beginning to suspect you have some inappropriate thoughts about Rosalynn."

Jacob was taken aback.

Chapter 58

Jacob instinctively denied, "Of course not, I just feel sorry for her..."

"Feel sorry?" Wayne seemed to have heard something ridiculous. "I provide her with a worry-free life and I will give her more of what she wants in the future. Why are you feeling sorry for her?"

"Forget it." Jacob also felt that he had crossed the line, and then told Wayne what had happened here.

“Secretary Tesdal is more capable than you and I thought.” Jacob added in the end.

Wayne was also surprised that she had captured all of them on her own and even recovered some of the misused funds.

Before hanging up, Jacob hesitated but still said, “Wayne, if you won’t let her go, at least don’t trap her and waste her abilities.”

“I know what I’m doing.”

After hanging up the phone, Jacob took a deep breath, looked back at the sun, and the image of Rosalynn smiling appeared in his mind again.

“Jacob!” He slapped his forehead. “Get it together, man!”

The driver quickly brought Rosalynn back to the hotel.

She made several calls on her private phone.

In addition to money, she had gained quite a few connections during the years she spent with Wayne.

She always remembered the principles her grandmother had taught her from an early age. -help others whenever possible.

Therefore, she had made many friends.

Among them, there was Jaime Jules, a young genius hacker she met when dealing with the Bane Corporation’s official website being hacked. Jaime was in a similar situation back then.

His parents were gamblers who abandoned him early on.

He grew up with his grandfather and had a natural talent for computer technology.

In order to make money to treat his grandfather’s illness, he began to use this talent illegally, and was eventually caught and sent to juvenile prison. During that time, Rosalynn. paid the fees for his grandfather out of her pocket and issued a letter of understanding on behalf of the company.

Chapter 5H

After Jaime came out of prison, he regarded Rosalynn as his sister, helping her with errands when not busy with school work.

There was also Ava Kress, who had taken away Sawyer's son as a tourist.

Rosalynn usually called her Ava.

Ava was a tough woman, but she was uneducated. She had made a lot of money earlier in her life, only to be deceived by a man and lost everything, almost ending up in jail.

At that time, she had to work in a nursing home for a living and happened to take care of Rosalynn's grandmother.

Though fierce, Ava had a kind heart and took excellent care of the old lady.

After hearing about Ava's experience, Rosalynn helped her, not only recovering some of the money that had been cheated, but also sending the bad guy to jail.

Ava was very grateful to her. After walking out of the shadow of her past relationship, Ava, with Rosalynn's help, started her business again.

She put her old connections to good use again.

The man who smashed the car today was also found by Ava.

As for road surveillance, of course, Jaime took care of it.

She called each of them one by one.

Jaime: "Sis, you don't need to thank me. Grandpa always asks when you're coming for dinner at our place?"

Rosalynn answered with a smile, "In a few days, I'll finish up the remaining work and come to see you guys."

"Great!" Jaime was delighted.

Chapter 59

Ava was drinking.

Rosalynn didn't say much. She transferred some money to Ava and told her to treat the people who had helped her well.

Then Rosalynn slowly packed her things. When she was packing the clothes she wore yesterday, a diamond cufflink fell out.

Rosalynn hesitated for a moment before picking it up.

It was a cufflink she saw in a designer store when she went on a trip to Switzerland with Wayne last year.

She really liked it and immediately bought it with two months' salary.

How ridiculous that was.

She knew her place too well and was afraid that giving him a gift would be inappropriate.

This cufflink was secretly pinned on Wayne's suit cuff when he spent the night at her place.

"Well, I guess I'll take you with me then." Rosalynn gripped the cufflink tightly in her palm, the edges digging into her flesh.

After packing her things, Rosalynn checked out of the hotel and ordered a light but nutritious meal in the hotel restaurant.

A chat group in the president's office:

A: "I heard the President is announcing his engagement tomorrow!"

B: "President Silverman hasn't been at the company for several days. I heard he's shopping for wedding dresses with his fiancée."

C: "Did you guys see the huge diamond ring President Silverman got for his fiancée?!"

A: "What a massive diamond!"

B: "Tacky as hell!"

Rosalynn stared at the huge diamond in the picture and glanced at the diamond cufflink in her hand.

Compared to the ring, the cufflink seemed downright shabby.

As she was about to put away her phone, Wayne's message popped up.

"Remove my number from your blocklist."

Rosalynn stared at the chat box for a moment.

"President Silverman, I have completed the handover of the Q City infrastructure project," Rosalynn typed a line and sent it.

Without waiting for Wayne's reply.

She sent another one right after.

"As for the secretary's job, I have already handed over all my work notes to Secretary Walley. I won't be returning to the company now that all work has been handed over."

"As for being the COO, I have given it a lot of thought and decided that I'm not suitable for it."

After sending the message, Rosalynn blocked all contacts from Wayne.

She turned off her phone, tossed it in her bag, and slowly finished her meal.

Another phone rang.

She picked it up and answered.

"Ms. Tesdal, I'm the driver taking you to the airport!"

"So early?" Rosalynn looked at the time, 20 minutes earlier than expected.

"If you're not in a hurry, I can wait for 20 minutes." The caller seemed very honest.

Rosalynn thought about it.

She could wait at the airpost as well.

"No need, I'll come down now." Rosalynn was still very cautious.

Before getting into the car, she checked the license plate again, and it was indeed the car she had ordered.

The driver got out and put her suitcase in the trunk.

Rosalynn sat in the back.

Before long, the car was on the highway.

The airport was far from the city and required more than an hour of driving.

On the way, Paige called her

Paige confirmed the time her plane would land and was coming to pick her up, while complaining about how annoying her new workplace was.

Rosalynn comforted her with a smile and glanced outside unintentionally.

A road sign went by.

Rosalynn was stunned.

If she remembered it correctly, the direction on the sign just now was the opposite of the airport!

“Honey, there’s something I need to take care of at work. I’ll call you back later.”

Rosalynn hung up the phone, her expression still calm.

She turned on her phone and searched for the place name on the sign in the map app

As expected...this wasn’t the way to the airport

“Sir, can you stop for a moment? I need to use the bathroom,” Rosalynn said softly.

“There are no bathrooms along this route. You’ll just have to hold it.”

The driver, who seemed honest and humble when he first picked her up, now looked a bit sinister.

“Then please drive faster so we can get to the airport sooner.”

As she said this, Rosalynn quickly lowered her head to send a text with the license plate number and a call for help, attempting to text the police.

However, at that moment, the car suddenly slammed on the brakes.

Rosalynn instinctively protected her belly, and hit the seat so heavy that she almost lost consciousness.

Then the driver got out of the car.

Rosalynn immediately tried to lock the car, but it was useless.

Her door was opened from the outside.

The next second, her phone was snatched away.

“Trying to call the police?” The driver glanced at the message she just sent before smashing her phone on the ground.

Rosalynn shuddered with fear but didn’t scream.

She knew that at times like this, staying calm was crucial.

“Do you want money?” Rosalynn asked.

The driver looked at her with a cold smile.

“Secretary Tesdal, don’t you know the consequences of your own actions? Did you really think you could block others’ fortunes and still be safe?”

“Did Peter send you?” Rosalynn asked.

“Correct!” The driver suddenly grabbed Rosalynn’s hair.

Rosalynn’s scalp ached.

“You little bitch, Peter just spent some of your company’s money. Those tycoons have more money than they can spend. If it can be spent on women like you, why can’t Peter get some? You wanted to wipe us all out, huh?Cold-hearted bitch!”

Rosalynn struggled to remain calm.

“You only do this for money, right? If you let me go, I can give you more money.”

“What!” The driver scoffed. “I follow Peter because he once saved my life. Do you think everyone’s like you, selling out for money?”

Rosalynn didn’t think this guy could be bought, either.

The police were still looking for Peter, and anyone he could use now had to be extremely loyal

Right now, Rosalynn just hoped her text for help had gone through.

Otherwise...

She couldn’t help but think of Wayne.

Otherwise, Wayne would happily move on and get married, while she’d die in a remote wilderness, unknown to anyone.

“Is he waiting to see me?” Rosalynn impatiently pushed the driver away and sat back in the car. “Enough talking. Drive.”

You...”

Rosalynn forced back her fear and didn’t give the driver any good looks.

He glanced at her and then snorted with contempt.

“Some of my buddies heard that Secretary Tesdal is quite a looker and they’ve been drooling for you. Once we get there, you’ll get a taste. Just remember to cry loudly, otherwise, it won’t be any fun!”

With that, the driver slammed the car door shut, laughing coldly, and prepared to start the car again.
